INVITE ALUMNI VISITORS To Summer Session Classes

Cornellians and their families are invited this year to visit the Summer Session as guests of the University, under a new plan announced through the ALUMNI NEWS by Professor Loren C. Petry, Director of the Summer Session. No formal registration will be required, but alumni who call at the office of the Director in Goldwin Smith Hall during the Summer Session may obtain guest tickets which will admit them for three or four days to any Summer Session classes at which auditors are permitted, and will entitle them to attend all the public events of the Summer Session on the same terms as regular students.

Professor Petry points out that the Summer Session opens July 5 and closes August 13; and that alumni will be welcomed at any time between these dates, but the first and last weeks of the Session are less suitable for such visits than the intervening weeks. Some Cornell families, he thinks, may welcome this opportunity to spend a pleasant few days at the University as a part of their summer vacations. Ithaca is not crowded at this time, and inexpensive living accommodations are easily found. Correspondence in advance is not necessary, but may be addressed to Dr. Petry or to Foster M. Coffin '12, Alumni Representative.

The Summer Session Faculty of 213 members is composed for the most part of regular members of the University instructing staff; the forty visiting instructors including several alumni. Courses will be given five days a week in almost every department of knowledge, including the arts and music; languages and literatures; philosophy, history, economics, and government; education; natural and physical sciences; engineering; agriculture; economics; and hotel administration.

The Summer Theatre will give ten performances in the Willard Straight Theatre; public concerts are scheduled by the Department of Music on five Thursday evenings and organ recitals three Sunday evenings; public lectures will be given Monday and Wednesday evenings, and lectures and demonstrations at the Observatory Monday, Wednesday, and Friday evenings throughout the Session. Geology excursions to Taughannock, Watkins, and Niagara Falls are included in the plans, and certain Botany field trips will also be open to visitors. The Beebe Lake swimming pool will be in operation, and visitors have the use of University tennis courts and other recreational facilities, with opportunity for pleasant walks through the gorges and to enjoy the Campus.

The illustrated Announcement of the Summer Session, giving complete information about courses offered, is available on request to the Office of the Director, Ithaca; and the weekly Summer Session calendar, announcing dates, subjects, and places of public events, will be mailed without cost to alumni who request it.

WESTFIELD OFFICERS

HONOR TINKHAM UNIT Three Here at Anniversary

Twenty years ago May 24 the first combat unit of Americans in the World War went to the Aisne front, led by Captain Edward I. Tinkham '16 and composed largely of Cornell men. Last week on the anniversary of that date, three members of that unit took part in ceremonies before the University's War Memorial to commemorate the event, the more than 9,000 Cornellians who served in the War, and especially the 268 who lost their lives.

A scattering of alumni and Faculty members were present at the simple ceremonies this May 24 who were in Ithaca during the spring of 1917. To them the brief address of Professor Charles L. Durham '99 brought back those stirring days when Cornell prepared for war, and undergraduates left by the hundreds to join the armed forces. Never-to-be-forgotten memories were renewed as the speaker called the roll of the thirty Cornell members of that first unit at the front, and as each name but four was answered to by their comrades present. A prayer was offered by the Rev. Dutton S. Peterson of Odessa, formerly of the Marine Corps. Undergraduate members of the ROTC, commanded by Colonel James I. Muir, and every spectator stood at attention as the bugles sounded "Taps" and "Retreat" and the band played the National anthem while the colors were slowly lowered. As the gathering broke up this peaceful sunny May afternoon, the Chimes from the Clock Tower rang out in the "Alma Mater."

Professor Durham reviewed briefly Tinkham's services in France as a member of the American Ambulance Field Service before the United States entered the war, and his return to Ithaca to recruit the Cornell unit. He spoke of the inspiring assistance given by the late Professor Martin W. Sampson, English, both then and later, in enrolling and equipping volunteers. Most of the first unit, enlisted for six months service with the French, transferred with their leader from ambulance service to one of more pressing need, that of transporting munitions. It was this unit of the American Field Service, TMU 526, which left its base camp May 24, 1917, armed with carbines (unloaded, they say now) and driving five-ton trucks, and became the first American combat unit to go to the front after the United States declared war.

Few remembered that the services last week also marked the anniversary of the very foundation of Cornell University. It was May 24, 1844, that the original Morse telegraph instrument, the basis of Ezra Cornell's fortune, tapped out its historic message at Washington: "What hath God wrought!"

The three members of TMU 526 who attended the anniversary exercises last week are Alden B. Sherry '16, now president of The Morris Plan Industrial Bank of Syracuse; Richard Parmenter '17, who that morning had successfully completed his examination for the PhD in Physiology; and A. Alvord Baker '19, who operates a farm near Freeville.

Three of the four deceased members of the unit lost their lives in military service. Captain Tinkham, having become a flight Ensign in the Navy, died March 30, 1919, at the Italian Military Hospital at Ravenna, Italy. Warren T. Kent '14 entered the Army Air Service and was shot down over Pannes, behind the German lines, September 7, 1918. Horace B. Forman III '18 became an officer in the Army Air Service and was killed in an accident at the air station at Issoudun, France, September 14, 1918. C. Ward Comstock '18 served in Naval Aviation in France and as instructor in various American Army camps, returned to receive the BS degree in 1920, and was killed at Van Buren, Me., June 13, 1924.

Surviving members of this first unit of TMU 526, so far as is known, are:

SPRING DAY HAPPY

Enjoy "Hill-Billy Holiday"

Ithaca weather smiled on the 1937 Spring Day, warm sun and summer breezes making quite appropriate the "official" Hill-billy costumes of straw hats, bandannas, and overalls in which many of the participants and spectators of both sexes were dressed.

First of the public festivities was the Navy Ball in the Drill Hall Friday night, and here the decorations carried out the Spring Day theme. More than 3,000 couples danced to the music of Benny Goodman and Joe Haymes, and at midnight musical compliments were exchanged over the air with Ohio State, holding their Spring Promenade that night. Goodman's orchestra broadcast the Ohio Marching Song, and from Columbus over the ether waves came Cornell music.

Some eighty floats were in line for the Spring Day parade Saturday morning as it made its way up the Hill from down town past the reviewing stand opposite Willard Straight and to the circus on Alumni Field. Most of the fraternity floats and those of other student organizations were decidedly on the rural theme, and the parade, headed by the ROTC band, included also members of Varsity teams, afoot, and exhibits of downtown merchants and others. Judges were Mrs. Farrand, Colonel John J. Fulmer, commandant of the ROTC, and R. Leo Sullivan of the Lehigh Valley Railroad. They awarded first prize to Delta Kappa Epsilon, whose entry was a dilapidated buggy in which rode two "mountaineers" caressing a white hen.

At the circus on Alumni Field, the much-advertised "chicken Derby" was won by Phi Gamma Delta's racing hen, "Whiskey," the cup being presented by Professor Charles L. Durham '99; and Hugh C. Troy, Jr. '26 judged the contests for the boy and girl with the most apparent "vice, virtue, vim, vigor, and vitality," the prizes said to have been awarded to J. Frederick Hillegas '37, editor of the Sun, and Grace Ballard '38. The usual sideshows were there, consisting mostly of the barkers outside, and they did a good business with the Spring Day throng for the benefit of athletics.

Most colorful feature of the day was the East-West polo match in the afternoon between the ROTC and the hard-riding horsemen from New Mexico Military Institute. Upper Alumni Field was crowded with cars behind the boxes along the south side of the playing field, the flags on the President's box fluttering in the wind, and against the tall hedge of lilacs in full bloom on the north side the stands were full. Spectators even crowded the windows and roofs of the Agriculture buildings, some as far away as Plant Industry.

After the game many of the crowd went to the crew races on the Lake, some in boats of all sizes and descriptions and some along the bank, the Lake road being lined solidly with cars along the entire course.

Both Friday and Saturday nights the many fraternity houses giving house-parties were decorated with colored lights and their flags, as the gay revellers danced and made merry. Nearly 1,000 guests were said to have enjoyed the rural week end.

Among the visitors this year were four representatives of the March of Time, come to film the social life of Cornell for inclusion in a feature on the colleges to be released next fall. Head camera man was Richard W. Maedler, who had been with Martin Johnson in South Africa. For the benefit of the movies the recent Model League of Nations Assembly was re-enacted Friday afternoon in Myron Taylor moot court room; and they took shots of students on the Campus, of the War Memorial, the Navy Ball, the polo game, crew races, and at Phi Delta Theta's houseparty dance.

Other Cornellians on the convention program were John K. Conant '18, purchasing agent, General Printing Ink Corporation, New York City; Albert E. Petermann '00, vice-president, Calumet and Hecla Consolidated Copper Co., New York City; John H. Van Deventer '03, editor, The Iron Age, New York City; Ralph M. NEW HAVEN SMOKER

The Cornell Club of New Haven had a smoker at the Winchester Club, May 21, on the eve of the regatta at Derby, Conn. Thomas I. S. Boak '14, president of the Club, introduced James Lynah '05, director of athletics, and the rowing coaches, Harrison Sanford and Norman Sonju, and Malcolm Farmer, chairman of the board of control of the Yale Athletic Association. Motion pictures were sent down by the Alumni Office.

RICHTMYER TO BROADCAST

Dean Floyd K. Richtmyer '04, who is in the South Seas with the National Geographic Society-U. S. Navy expedition to observe the eclipse of the sun, will take part June 7 and 8 in international broadcasts from the headquarters of the expedition. The National Broadcasting Company will begin radio reports of the eclipse June 8 at one P.M. Eastern daylight saving time, over its Blue network. From 3 to 3:15 a description of the eclipse will be broadcast on the Blue network, and that evening, beginning at 10:45, Dean Richtmyer and other scientists will describe over the Red network "What the Eclipse Expedition Saw." On Monday evening, June 7, from 7:45 to 8, a "Dress Rehearsal for the Eclipse" will be broadcast on the Blue network. Sunday evening the expedition broadcast its celebration of Memorial Day in the South Seas, with Professor Richtmyer and other members giving brief personal messages.

About ATHLETICS

THIRD IN INTERCOLLEGIATES

The Varsity track team, scoring only one man in the field events, took third place in the Intercollegiates at Randall's Island, New York City, Friday and Saturday, with 23, to 30½ for Pittsburgh and 30 for Columbia. J. Hamilton Hucker '38 of Buffalo regained his title of two years ago in the 220-yard low hurdles, and in doing so lowered the oldest intercollegiate record on the books. Side-by-side with Captain Irwin of Princeton, he closed in on Donovan of Dartmouth in the latter half of the race, and won by a yard in 23.2 seconds, lowering by exactly 4 seconds the record set in 1898 by Kraenzlein of Pennsylvania and equalled only twice since. Hucker also came within a foot of winning the 120-yard high hurdles, won by Donovan in 14.8.

A second intercollegiate title came to Cornell with the performance of Howard W. Welch '38 of Trumansburg, who unleashed a terrific burst of speed on the last turn to win the two-mile race by ten yards, in 9 min. 28.4 sec. Originally entered for the mile, Welch was switched by Coach Moakley to the longer distance just before the race, Herbert H. Cornell '38, the defending champion, being not sufficiently recovered from an attack of grippe last winter to enter.

William V. Bassett '37 of West Newton, Mass. finished third in the two-mile; Captain John A. Meaden '37 of LaGrange, Ill. took fourth in the half-mile, won by Woodruff of Pittsburgh in 1:52.1; William W. Rossiter '37 of Bronxville, fifth in the high hurdles. Only Cornell scorer in the field events was Elliot H. Hooper '38 of Long Valley, N. J., who threw the javelin 194 ft. 7¼ in. for third place. Alfred F. Van Ranst '39 of Brooklyn was sixth in the discus throw, with 132 ft. 2½ in., but not to score. Other Cornell entries were Pender in the 100-yard dash, Nevius and Pender in the 220-yard dash, Nevius in the 440-, Levy in the half-mile, Schwarz in the low hurdles, Tallman in the broad jump, Van Ranst in the shot put, and McKeever in the hammer throw.

After the first three, team scores were: Michigan State 20½, Rhode Island State 17½, Dartmouth 16½, Princeton 14½, Yale 13, Marquette and Manhattan 10 each, Harvard 8½, Boston College 8, Rutgers and New York University 4 each, Williams and Holy Cross 3 each, Penn State and Northeastern 2½ each, Maine 2, and Brown and Colgate 1 each.

POLO TEAM WINS

Outstanding sporting event of Spring Day at Ithaca was the polo game between the Eastern indoor championship ROTC Varsity and New Mexico Military Institute, holder of the Southwestern open, the Arizona, and the Pacific Coast championships. Cornell won, 9-7, but was ahead by only one point until a New Mexico foul was made good by Combs just before the final bell clanged.

It was nip and tuck throughout the game, the Western horses far superior to Cornell's in speed whenever New Mexico got free on the ball; but this was overbalanced by the visitors' lack of accuracy in their goal shots and by the superior playing of Clarence C. Combs '39 of Lakewood, N. J., playing his last year for the Varsity. Combs was everywhere on the ball, making 8 of Cornell's goals. The other was credited to a pony, as a New Mexico rider, attempting a defending back shot, flipped the ball between his own goal posts. Combs was expertly backed up, however, by Captain Stephen J. Roberts '38 of Hamburg, playing No. 1; by Thomas Lawrence '38 of Smithtown Branch, No. 3; and by Walter P. Naquin, Jr. '38 of Kukuihaele, Hawaii, No. 4.

Upper Alumni Field was lined with a colorful Spring Day crowd, against the tall hedge of lilacs in full bloom along Tower Road. As the ball went back and forth over the long playing field, followed by the eager horses, excitement was at fever pitch. In the first three chukkers Cornell outdistanced the visitors 7-2, and scored in each, but in the fourth Shirley, New Mexico, made 3; and after another goal by Combs in the fifth, Captain Thompson opened the sixth with another for the visitors and after four minutes Shirley made another, seriously to threaten Cornell's lead.

The New Mexico team travelled 2,000 miles from Roswell, bringing their Western bred horses in a palace express car and arriving in Ithaca May 25 with their mascot Chihuahua bear, "Tail Shot," for three days of practice on the turf. They were well entertained in Ithaca, and left Sunday, to play five games during the return trip, in Detroit, Chicago, Omaha, St. Louis, and Kansas City.

Major Charles E. Boyle of the ROTC and Major A. H. Norton, New Mexico coach, refereed Saturday's game, and Lieutenants J. R. Pitman and A. S. Reynolds were umpires on the field.

SPLIT DARTMOUTH GAMES

The Varsity baseball team broke even in two seven-inning games with Dartmouth at Hanover Saturday, losing the first, 4-8, and winning the second, 5-1. Stehnach pitched the first and made one of the tallies, the others by Johnson, Batten, and Rigney. Dodd, pitching the second game, allowed only one hit. Cornell runs were made by Gannett, Johnson, Sheffer, Doering, and Florence.

During the trip Walter Johnson '38 of Hector, second baseman, and Jack W. Lozier '38 of Elmira, pitcher, were elected co-captains of baseball for next year.

With the season finished except for the exhibition game with the Cleveland Indians June 14, the Cornell record stands at two League wins, from Columbia and Dartmouth, and ten defeats. Batten, who has played mostly at left field this year, leads his team mates in batting, with an average of .348.

FRESHMAN TEAMS WIN

Freshman lacrosse and tennis teams won in Ithaca May 26, the former defeating Geneva High School, 11-4, for its fifth win, and the latter beating the Christian Brothers Academy, of Syracuse, 7-0.

FROSH GETS POTTER CUP

The Potter cup for cross country novices, given by Daniel F. Potter, Jr. '16, former captain and intercollegiate champion, was awarded for this year to George M. Walker '40 of Somerville, Mass. Walker won two of the four races of the series and took second place in two, for a total of 18 points. Second man was James C. Plunket '39 of Lackawack.

FRESHMAN CREW WINS

The Freshman crew won its Spring Day race with Syracuse on Cayuga Lake, and brought the only victory for Cornell. The Lake was perfect for rowing, with a gentle north wind and just a slight ripple on the water, which had almost gone by the time of the Varsity race. Boats of all descriptions lined the course, and the east shore at the finish near the old salt block was well covered with spectators, as cars lined the Lake road for miles toward Estys.

Best race of the afternoon was the first. The Freshmen got away ahead and settled to a 32 beat to the Syracuse 35. The two boats held even to the last quarter-mile, when the Orange yearlings slipped ahead slightly, to be met with a strong spurt from the Red boat, which finished a deck length and half-second ahead, in 10 min. 33.9 sec. Except for two men, this was the same Freshman crew which beat Yale and Princeton freshmen on the Housatonic the week before. Joseph B. Gilbert of Newark replaced Sylstra at No. 3, and Jonathan W. Lester of Massillon, Ohio, was back at No. 7, displacing Fisher. Their average height is 6 ft. 2¾ in.; weight, 177¾.

The Varsity crew made a slow start, and never overhauled Syracuse in the two miles. From the three-quarter mile mark, Syracuse led by a length, and finished in 10:26, with Cornell passing the mark in 10:30.

The Junior Varsity rowed Syracuse even all the way, but were unable to match a final spurt which put Syracuse over the finish half a length ahead, in 10:37.2. Cornell's time was 10:39.

Rowing a half-mile race, an independent four-oared shell beat that of Sigma Nu, interfraternity champions.

SPORTS EXTRA!

The Oxford-Cambridge Meet

The ninth Oxford, Cambridge-Princeton, Cornell track meeting has been announced to be held at the Palmer Stadium, Princeton, on Saturday, July 17, at 4:30 P.M. The British universities will meet the combined teams of Harvard and Yale at Cambridge on the preceeding Saturday, July 10.

The Princeton-Cornell Team

The personnel of the joint Princeton-Cornell team was tentatively selected at a meeting of the managements of the two colleges held in New York May 28. The performances at the dual meet are made the rough basis of selection, but it must be remembered that Freshmen are eligible for competition in this event, and that the primary object is to select a joint team that will win the largest number of first places. Only first places count except in the event of a tie, when second places then determine the outcome.

Subject to accidents or reversals in form, the Princeton-Cornell team will be:

100 yd. dash: Pender, Cornell, and Wilson, Princeton.

220 yd. dash: Nevius and Pender, Cornell.

440 yd. dash: Hucker, Cornell, and either Gould, Princeton, or Nevius, Cornell.

880 yd. run: Meaden and Levy, Cornell.

Mile run: Bradley and Rosengarten, Princeton.

2 mile run: Welch and Bassett, Cornell.

High Hurdles: Hucker, Cornell, and White, Princeton.

Low Hurdles: Irwin, Princeton, and Schwarz, Cornell.

Shot Put: Van Ranst, Cornell, and Wise, Princeton.

Pole Vault: Medina, Princeton, and either Patterson or Rainier, both of Princeton.

High Jump: Wise, Princeton, and Murdock, Cornell.

Broad Jump: Perina, Princeton, and either Way, Princeton, or Murdock, Cornell.

The discus, javelin, and hammer events are not included in the Oxford-Cambridge program.

Freshmen

Among the men mentioned above the outstanding freshmen are Perina of Princeton, who is usually good for 24 feet in the broad jump, and Murdock of Cornell, who is better than 6 ft. 2 in. in the high jump and has done 23 ft. 6 in. in the broad.

The Cornell group will return to Ithaca at the end of June for training. Early in the week of July 11 Oxford and Cambridge, together with Cornell, will join up at Princeton, where the athletes of all four universities will live together as they complete their training.

Tickets

Tickets for the games are $1.65 and $1.10. After July 1 they can be obtained of either the Princeton or Cornell Athletic Associations, or at the usual places in New York City. The Palmer Stadium is, of course, a vast place and there will be no difficulty in obtaining good seats at the box office on the day of the games.

MUSICAL CLUBS "RUSTICANA"

In "Rusticana," the Musical Clubs' reunion week show, to be given in Bailey Hall Friday evening, June 18, the Glee Club and Instrumental Club will take their audience "down on the farm," according to the manager, John S. Kittle '38. Divided informally into sections, "Orientale," "Mexicana," "Norwegiana," and "Cornelliana," the show will have as guest artists Mrs. Tseh Liang Kwan of Hankow, China, a Major Bowes radio star; Thomas B. Tracy '31; and the Savage Club quartette, composed of Allan H. Treman '21, William B. Corcoran '23, C. Wesley Thomas '25, and Truman K. Powers '30.

CHICAGO WOMEN ELECT

At its last meeting for the year, held at the Women's University Club May 22, the Cornell Women's Club of Chicago discussed plans for the coming year and elected officers. Mrs. Amos W. Hodgkiss (Marian Irish) '20 was re-elected president; Mrs. Franklin N. Corbin, Jr. (Margaret Arronet) '21 was elected vice-president; and Mrs. Caleb H. Richmond (Helen McFadden) '28 was elected secretary-treasurer.

STUDENTS HONOR FARRANDS

Undergraduates said good by to President and Mrs. Farrand May 26 at a typically Cornell gathering in Bailey Hall. Following music by the ROTC band and the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs, Katharine E. Skehan, Senior president of WSGA, introduced Mrs. Farrand.

Speaking humorously of the "light-hearted moments of the last sixteen years," Mrs. Farrand recalled that "many a football man has broken training on the Farrand chocolate cake," and mentioned her experiences in judging "everything, from duck races to horse shows." "The undergraduates have been a well of youth to us," she continued; "... we can never grow old if you will remember us.

"In closing," she continued, "I must say that if I have contributed anything of value, it is because I have been side by side for many years with the man who has been your President. His constant kindness, sense of justice and humor, infinite decency, and fair play have been a constant inspiration."

Recalling the first meeting in Bailey Hall, November 11, 1921, when he first met undergraduates, Dr. Farrand expressed his feeling as analagous to that time, and said: "I can't help wishing that I might be back in your places. I am thinking what the years in a university like Cornell can mean in your lives: more honest thinking, straightforwardness, energy in the expression of ideals, good sportmanship with all that implies, broadening one's background to achieve sound judgements and respect for the things that are worth while.

"The memory that I take away will be a never-failing source of satisfaction to me, because, although we have had our differences and although you may have questioned my decisions, you have never questioned the motives behind them. My last word to you is one of gratitude and thanks."

John M. Batten, Senior president of the Student Council, announced that undergraduates are having two sugar maple trees planted as their gift on the grounds of the new home of the Farrands at Brewster. Accepting the gift, Dr. Farrand promised that "these permanent growing trees will always represent to us the youth of Cornell."

REUNIONS PROMISE NEW FEATURES

Alumni To Be Busy Here June 18-20

But two weeks remain before alumni will be coming back to Ithaca from all parts of the country—with at least one from Europe—by railroad, plane, and automobile, for the class reunions on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday, June 18, 19, and 20. Class secretaries and reunion chairmen are putting on the finishing touches. Some Classes are prophesying record returns this year, with many alumni saying that they will not miss this opportunity to do honor to President Farrand on his retirement after sixteen years in office. He will speak twice on Saturday, in Bailey Hall: at the meeting of the Cornell Alumni Corporation at 10:30 a.m. and at the general rally that evening. Alumni who can stay over for the Commencement exercises in the Drill Hall Monday morning may procure tickets of admission as long as the supply lasts.

Of special interest also are the exhibits and demonstrations of University work being arranged this year for the first time by various Colleges and departments. Many of these will be open throughout reunions, but Friday afternoon is being set aside with no conflicting events when alumni may see them all. Plans are rapidly developing, and a complete schedule will appear in the next ALUMNI NEWS. Already the University Library, Architecture, Engineering, Agriculture, Physics, and Chemistry are at work on exhibits of interest to all alumni, and others are underway.

Architecture will show in White Hall the year-end problems of students, and examples of class work done through the year in all departments. In all the Engineering buildings research will be underway, with competent guides to explain it, including the work done with the U. S. Army in flood control. The Medical College will cooperate in all departments, with motion pictures of various life processes scheduled in the Stimson Hall amphitheatre and exhibits in anatomy, histology, physiology, and biochemistry. Members of the Department of Physiology will be at the experimental farm on Hanshaw Road to demonstrate their work on animal neuroses.

Agriculture will show color movies of the development of the chick embryo, as studied by Professor Alexis L. Romanoff '25, Poultry; the Fuertes bird collection and later additions as now arranged in Fernow Hall, and sound films of birds, will be shown by the Ornithology Department; and the Floriculture greenhouses will be open to visitors, with the Department's orchid collections and demonstrations of the germination of orchids as developed here. At Baker Laboratory the Chemistry Department will show its experimental work in organic and inorganic chemistry, chemical engineering, and chemical microscopy; and the Physics Department will have its cyclotron for the study of the atom in operation, and other demonstrations.

The general program of reunions, included this week in "Coming Events," indicates two days of interesting activity, to say nothing of the special events being arranged by the various Classes. William D. Crim, reunion chairman of '17, for example, has arranged special events for the first War Class which include a smoker Friday night, with Varsity coaches and members of the Faculty, and movies of Class events; brief services Saturday afternoon at the War Memorial for the Class dead; a '17 crew "that will have no equal" to row on the Inlet later Saturday, recruited by John Collyer, Class president who will come from England, and James E. Brinckerhoff; and Professor Charles L. Durham '99 as the speaker at the Class banquet Saturday night. More than 100 members of '17 had last week said they would come, and Herbert R. Johnston, Class secretary, estimates that attendance will be "heavier" than ever before. ("1917 wives," he says, "claim that the Class carries more weight than ever, being fat and forty!")

Similarly, word comes from William G. Atwood, reunion chairman, that with more than forty members of the Class of '92 already signed up, "it looks as though '92's forty-fifth would be the best so far, and there have been no better reunions than those of '92."

A new event in reunions this year will be an invitation dance in the Old Armory Saturday night after the rally, at which returning alumni will be guests of the Class of '12.

All classes are invited to attend the memorial service arranged by the Class of '07 in Sage Chapel Friday morning at 11.

"... side-by-side for many years with the man who has been your President."

A REAL OPPORTUNITY

Cornell's brief experiment in alumni education ended, temporarily at least, after the second annual Institute. Lack of attendance, possibly lack of faith, were contributing factors in the decision. The Institute has been definitely abandoned for this year, without prejudice for the future.

There are many ways, as we have on occasion pointed out, in which alumni are enabled to renew their educational contacts with their colleges or universities. Directed reading, flying circuses of educators, circulating libraries, and many other mechanisms in addition to Institutes have been utilized at one college or another to reestablish the broken, neglected, and sometimes almost forgotten contacts. They enable the alumni to resume their positions as men and women of culture. They provide an attractive means of varying the daily conversation to include some of the delights of literature and science, appreciation of the more elusive subjects with which familiarity was terminated with the baccalaureate commencement. The alumnus is thus no longer wholly dependent for his intellection on the news and feature articles of the newspapers, and is returned to a realm of thought where once his interest had been awakened and entrapped, and from which the scramble for a living released him.

In general, the criticism of adult education among college graduates is that the pleasure, convenience, and residual ability of the alumnus is consulted much less often than the convenience of the college. Possibly this could be obviated by using a committee largely of non-teaching alumni, with just enough of the faculty and college administration to do the disagreeable tasks of getting up the show that the committee orders. On the other hand, this method is rarely employed.

Comes now the Director of the Cornell Summer Session with a proposal that practically solves these problems in toto. The Summer Session offers virtually everything, somewhat condensed and intensified to fit a six-week term, that the University offers in its regular course. The alumnus may have a card for a few days admitting him to nearly anything the Session offers. He may select his own time. There is no fee. He may presumably discuss his problem of reeducation with competent educators. He may find his own living quarters and may combine the return to Ithaca with his vacation.

Announcement of this experiment may well be regarded as one of the most intelligent and progressive steps taken in the realm of adult education for college graduates. We hope that enough Cornellians will take advantage of it to justify the effort of producing and carrying out the idea. For the alumnus the first step is to apply to the Summer Session for its announcement. After laying out the desired schedule his next task is to make the few easy arrangements, and come to Ithaca for a new experience.

NEXT ISSUE JUNE 17

Final examinations start next Monday, June 7, and continue through June 15. As usual during this period, and to maintain our schedule of thirty-five issues in the college year, the ALUMNI NEWS will suspend publication next week. Our next issue will appear June 17, the day before Class reunions at Ithaca. It will contain a complete directory of the various Class headquarters and schedule of reunion events for the convenience of returning alumni and the information of those who cannot come.

Some member of the staff will be found during most of the reunion week end at the ALUMNI NEWS Campus office on the top floor of Alumni House, 3 East Avenue. Subscribers and other alumni are cordially invited to drop in for a visit, both there and at our main office, 113 East Green Street, down town.

FUND NEAR NEW HIGH

Entering the last month of its fiscal year, the University's Alumni Fund on May 28 had reached the sum of $105,233., from 5,065 subscribers. This was within approximately $5,000 of the total for all of last year, and the month of June is expected to bring a total for the year considerably above that of 1935-36.

The Class of '10 still leads in amount, with $11,418., and is followed, for the highest ten, by '91, '20, '16, '11, '90, '98, '06, '93, and '24. In number of contributors the Class of '36 leads, with 210; followed by '16, '35, '13, '12, '18, with '17, '22, and '34 tied for seventh place, and '26.

ITHACA WEATHER has outdone itself in 1937. Since January 1, the Weather Bureau says, this year's total precipitation of 14.1 inches has been exceeded only once since 1900; and that in 1929, when 17.25 inches fell in the same period.

ON THE CAMPUS AND DOWN THE HILL

By Romeyn Berry

EVERYONE IS ENTHUSIASTIC about that Spring Day polo match with New Mexico Military Institute. New Mexico had the better horses and Cornell had Combs. That made a nip-and-tuck battle of it, with lots of speed, excitement, and color.

THE LADY WHO COVERED the Navy Ball for us said she would mark it C—, and let it go at that. She admitted, however, she wasn't a fair judge because she was cold sober and her feet hurt. The vast throng who crowded the Drill Hall did not appear to suffer the least bit from the first-named of her ailments, and gave every evidence of enjoying the affair immensely.

THE FEATURE of the Spring Day regatta from the standpoint of the press appears to have been the press boat. We have interrogated various reporters about the boat race and they all insist on telling us about the press boat. It was a fine boat, but it broke down soon after the start of the first race. It looked for a time as if the Associated Press, the United, the International, would have to buy a newspaper if they ever learned how the races came out. A speed boat was commandeered in time for the Varsity race, however, and the journalistic big shots were transferred to that in time to cover the main event adequately.

SUNDAY EVENING after Spring Day there was a sunset prayer meeting on that little terrace overhanging Fall Creek gorge just below the Sigma Nu house at the end of Willard Way. It was conducted by the Rev. Hugh Moran, Presbyterian student pastor, and was very impressive. People who live on Willard Way close to that lovely terrace inform us eagerly that what went on around that terrace the night before wasn't any prayer meeting!

LOTS AND LOTS of fraternities had house parties over the week end. The Sun carried two impressive lists of the parties and printed the names of all the chaperones and girls who came. When we were in college it was professors' wives mostly who chaperoned at these parties. This is not the case now. We went over the printed list carefully and failed to find the names of many professors' wives. Both the fraternities and the professors' wives appear to have become gun-shy at about the same time.

LEFT TO THEMSELVES, students sometimes do things that are painfully gauche; conversely and under the same conditions they frequently think of things that are so suitable, so infinitely fitting and thoughtful, that their elders are left feeling humble and respectful.

YOUR CORRESPONDENT was neither on the Campus nor down the Hill last week. He returned on the Black Diamond Saturday, and reached Ithaca just as the crowd was returning from the Spring Day boat races. Instead of reporting what happened, he will have to tell you what folks said happened. For example, he knew we'd lost the boat race the minute he stepped off the train. The students were driving their cars carefully and quietly. If we'd won they would have been yelling and driving all over the sidewalks.

Take the students' good-by present to Dr. and Mrs. Farrand, for example. It was two little saplings from the Campus to be planted on the new Farrand place at Brewster. Could anything have been nicer? Your correspondent wishes he might report that the Farrand saplings were descendants of the Ostrander elms on East Avenue (See Autobiography of A. D. White—Ostrander elms); and he would in a minute if they were even elms. But unfortunately for the purposes of this added touch, the Farrand saplings are hard maples.

CORSON FRENCH PRIZE, established thirty-five years ago by Professor Hiram Corson in memory of Mrs. Corson, has been awarded to Harold E. Johnson '38 of Kew Gardens, for his essay: "The Origin and Development of the Opera Comique in France."

SAGE CHAPEL PREACHER June 6 is the Rev. George A. Buttrick, minister of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA has won again this year for the second time the scholarship cup of the Pan-Hellenic Council. Sigma Delta Tau was second, and Alpha Epsilon Phi, third. Presentation was made by Dean R. Louise Fitch at a Willard Straight tea which also featured the annual intersorority song contest, won by Pi Beta Phi. Alpha Phi and Delta Delta Delta were second and third best singers, respectively.

THE MUSICAL CLUBS awarded a cup for a competition in fraternity singing. Six houses went out for it and sang their loudest for the honor of Chi Whoop and Alpha Beta Flop. Psi Upsilon won and Theta Xi was second. In presenting the cup Mrs. Farrand said, "This is the beginning of a sound idea." And she's absolutely right. Fraternity singing isn't nearly as good as it used to be. It needs every encouragement.

FORMER PRESIDENT Jacob Gould Schurman spent three days in Ithaca last week, shortly after his eighty-third birthday. He stayed quietly at the Telluride house, looked splendidly, and had a good time. One day he drove around the Campus with Professor Walter F. Willcox and saw all the new buildings; on another about sixty of his old colleagues of the Faculty gave him a quiet dinner where there were more reminiscences than speeches. President Farrand invited him to address the University on Thursday evening in Bailey, but Dr. Schurman declined. He said that the one outstanding thing he had learned in thirty-odd years at Cornell was that students didn't want to hear a talk from him or anybody else on the eve of Spring Day. Of the European crisis he said to a Sun reporter: "The situation is grave and dangerous, but I do not believe that war is likely to break out within the next few years. A new stabilizing factor has come into the problem in Great Britain's rearmament." President Schurman did not pay calls during his visit; people called on him. He made one exception, however. He put on his best clothes one afternoon and went to Balch Hall where he called on Miss Julia Juicheng Sze '38, daughter of Alfred Sze '01, former Chinese Ambassador to the United States. That was a nice touch, if you ask us, from the former American Ambassador to China.

THE CORNELL OARSMEN have their training table down stairs in the Johnny Parson club, on the coast of Beebe Lake. Up stairs is a public restaurant. Both the training table and the restaurant are operated by the Cornell Athletic Association. The restaurant is now advertising "Crew-Sized Porterhouse Steaks," which strikes us as commercializing something, but we can't make out quite what.

THE FOREST CITY HOTEL, later Mobbs' Hotel, which adjoined Twist's livery stable on South Cayuga Street, is being demolished. The old building, which for many years welcomed travelers to Ithaca over the old plank road from Elmira and the south, was built in 1828. Now it will make room for an automobile "lubratorium" and service station.

RECENTLY WE REPORTED that Christopher Morley, Jr. '38 had won the Guilford Essay Prize. Last week it was announced that Mr. Morley had also won the Corson Browning Prize with his essay on "Stratford, One Hundred Years After: An Autopsy." First thing you know, some professor will be warning this young man that he mustn't neglect his lessons to write essays!

Concerning THE FACULTY

DR. EDMUND EZRA DAY, president-elect of the University, was given the honorary degree of LLD at the sixty-sixth commencement of Syracuse University May 31. In an interview he said that he was not launching any world-shaking new policies for Cornell until he finds out "what it's all about." He added, "That doesn't mean that I haven't ideas, but when I do express them, they will be presented inside the 'family circle' first."

PROFESSOR GEORGE F. WARREN '03, Agricultural Economics, writes on "Gold in 1937" in the June Farm Journal. He says in part, "We have made much progress from the unbalanced price structure of 1933, but a further rise in prices will be necessary in order to restore farm products and other raw materials, and farm wages, to their usual relationship to city wages and consumers' prices."

STANLEY E. WADSWORTH '35, Floriculture, in a series of experiments running through the winter, has discovered that glass wool is excellent for the protection of plants against temperature changes and for mulching evergreens that must have light during the winter.

PROFESSOR CHARLES R. STOCKARD, Anatomy, of the Medical College, New York City, gave the baccalaureate address at the graduation exercises of the Mississippi State College for Women, Columbus, Miss., May 31.

PROFESSOR GILMORE D. CLARKE '13, Regional Planning, has been elected an honorary member of the American Institute of Architects. He was cited as consulting architect for the New York City Department of Parks, the Henry Hudson Authority and the Riverside Drive Improvement, and a member of the board of design for the New York World's Fair of 1939.

NECROLOGY

FREDERICK EUGENE IVES, May 27, 1937, at his home in Philadelphia. Inventor of the half-tone engraving process, pioneer in color photography, and inventor of the modern form of binocular microscope, he was University photographer from 1874 to 1878. While at Cornell he invented the half-tone process, now universally used by newspapers and magazines. The modern polychrome process of color photography is a development of work which he began many years ago and the present Techni-color process is said to be an adaptation of several Ives inventions on which the patents had expired. Many of his patents ran out before their value was commercially recognized with the result that many of his inventions have been credited to men who long afterwards exploited them. He was a fellow of more than a dozen scientific societies in this country and Europe and had received many medals for his inventions. In the News of February 20, 1936, at the time of his eightieth birthday, more complete details of his inventions are given.

KIMBALL IN CALIFORNIA

Dean Dexter S. Kimball was the guest of honor at a special meeting of the Cornell Club of Southern California in Los Angeles, May 27. Frederick O. Schreiner '22 as president of the Club, introduced the Dean, who told interesting anecdotes of the early days of Cornell and reported on current happenings.

Sterling C. Lines '98, chairman of the scholarship committee, reported that during the next four years at least, the two McMullen Regional Scholarships from that district would be supplemented from the Club's scholarship fund to the extent of $200 each.

Morris R. Ebersole, '00 Grad, accompanied by B. Eugene Taylor, Jr. '20 at the piano, led the singing, and Irland Davis '08 sang solo parts in several numbers.

PROFESSOR McDERMOTT DIES

Professor George Robert McDermott, Structural Design, Emeritus, died in Ithaca May 26, after a brief illness. Born in Glasgow, Scotland, October 28, 1860, and educated at Glasgow Academy and Technical Institute, he joined the Faculty of Sibley College in 1892 as assistant professor of naval architecture after two years as naval architect and assistant to the general manager of the Southampton (England) Naval Works. In 1905 he was appointed professor of naval architecture, in charge of the Department of Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering, and in 1909 became professor of structural design. He retired in 1929.

From 1910-12, on leave of absence from the University, he was chief engineer in the organization and construction of the Brazilian Naval Repair Station at Rio de Janeiro, and during the World War was district officer and agent of the U. S. Shipping Board, Emergency Fleet Corporation. In 1921 he was appointed chairman of the Government commission, Atlantic and Gulf Coast division, on loadlines of mercantile vessels. He was the author of the Screw Propeller Computer and Textbook on Screw Propellers; a member of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, Sigma Xi, and Tau Beta Pi.

Professor McDermott is survived by a daughter, Jean McDermott, 205 Willard Way, Ithaca; and a son, G. Rolland McDermott '05, of Toledo, Ohio.

CAMP OTTER

JULY 6 TO AUGUST 27, 1937

FOR BOYS EIGHT TO SEVENTEEN YEARS

THIS is the seventh and last of a series of advertisements that have appeared in this magazine about Camp Otter in the Muskoka Region at Dorset, Ontario; an old, established camp with a peculiar Cornell background.

The Other Six Advertisements

We have told you that Camp Otter was about to start its 27th consecutive season of successful operation; that many of the boys who are coming this year are sons of men (many of them Cornell men) who had been Camp Otter boys themselves, and that we expected to enroll before long some Camp Otter grandsons. We have demonstrated that boys like Camp Otter and that parents trust it. We have mentioned the attractive program—for the 1937 season—water sports, canoe trips, athletics, horseback riding (without extra charge)—and we have told you about the fine men and athletes who will again act as counsellors this year.

Results

These advertisements must have been effective in some degree, because we have advertised in no other alumni paper and our roster for the present season is about filled. We're going to stop advertising for the current year because we've got to get ready for the opening of Camp on July 6. Camp Otter has limited enrollment, but there are still a few openings.

Post-Season Camp

Fathers who visit Camp Otter sometimes become envious of their sons. There is a post season camp for such fathers, starting at the conclusion of the regular camp, August 27. Sometimes a boy holds over to spend a week of fishing with his father. Sometimes middle aged men come back for a week or two of rest and recuperation among the lakes and forests they learned to love when they were boys at Camp Otter. The leaves are beginning to turn at the first of September and the country is peculiarly beautiful. The charges are not high.

Charges

Camp Otter fees are geared to modest incomes. The cost for the entire regular season of eight weeks is $175. There are no extras.

References

We like to have people ask questions about Camp Otter, particularly of boys who have been there. If you want to inquire of older men, Ithaca is full of people with Camp Otter connections—Farrands, Durhams, Tremans, Staggs, Bancrofts, Brauners, Morses, Crandalls, Baldridges, Smith's, etc. References from many other towns we'll gladly send you.

William Crewson, licensed Canadian guide, has for twenty years led the Camp Otter canoe trips where boys learn woodsmanship and camping, and takes charge of the food.
