Cornelliana.

Final examinations ended yesterday. Next week come Commencement and the Class Reunions.

The senior banquet of the class of 1911 will be held next Saturday evening, June 17. The posters state that "Mr. Schlitz will be present."

Both houses of the legislature have passed a bill to appropriate $10,000 for the establishment of a school of sanitary science and public health at Cornell University.

Dr. Edward Godfrey Cox, who has been an instructor in English at Cornell for the past four years, will leave the University at the end of the present term to accept the position of assistant professor of English in the University of Washington at Seattle. Dr. Cox is a member of the Savage Club.

Employees of the Leland Company of Rochester put a sun dial in place on the table in the Sheldon memorial exedra last week. The top of the table, a slab of verd antique, suffered from the weather last winter and will be replaced by a new stone. The installation of the sun dial is therefore temporary.

Signs have been placed on the roads entering the campus warning automobile drivers to slow down to ten miles an hour. The excellent condition of the roads on the campus has been tempting to some drivers and students have had to step lively to avoid being run down.

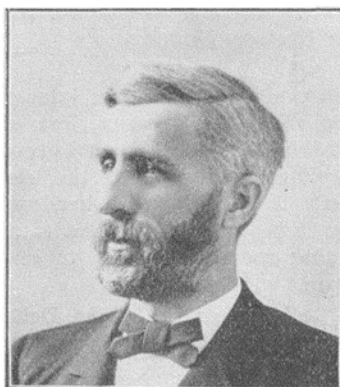

Albany dispatches last week stated that Director Bailey of the College of Agriculture was to be appointed State Forest, Fish and Game Commissioner. He has had no official notification of such appointment. He recently declined the office of Commissioner of Agriculture.

Many members of the University Faculty are to make commencement day addresses at various high schools this week and next.

DR. WILDER TO LEAVE ITHACA.

Emeritus Professor Will Make His Future Home in Brookline, Mass.

After Commencement next week Dr. Burt G. Wilder will leave Ithaca for Brookline, Mass., where he will make his future home. He was born in Boston and spent his boyhood in

DR. BURT G. WILDER.

Brookline, and he has many relatives and friends there. Mrs. Wilder gave private instruction in Brookline for twenty years before their marriage. Professor and Mrs. Wilder will continue to spend their summers at Siasconset, Nantucket Island.

During the past year Professor Wilder has been relieved of active teaching, having been appointed an emeritus professor at the end of the academic year 1909-10, when he had completed his forty-third year in the service of the University as professor of neurology, vertebrate zoology and physiology. He has devoted the year to looking over the specimens prepared or collected by him and to collating their more or less scattered records for the use of his successors. In speaking of his collection Dr. Wilder said:

"About one hundred of my specimens are either unique or so rare or otherwise worthy of extended study and publication that they would fully occupy ten trained investigators for at least five years. Much as I should like to cooperate in this advancement of science, I feel that it can be done more satisfactorily by younger men more familiar with modern methods. Furthermore, there are other tasks for which I believe myself peculiarly qualified and which will keep me busy for at least twenty years. The first of these is the publication of the historical portions of the letters written daily by me during the Civil War, all of which were preserved. While serving on the medical staff of the Fifty-fifth Massachusetts Infantry, colored, I was deeply impressed with the character, ability, and valor of the colored troops, and I believe that my observations justify the contention that their color should not debar negroes from any opportunity or any civil, legal or political rights that are enjoyed by whites of equal character, education, and property."

At the request of a member of the American Neurological Association (of which he was president in 1885) Professor Wilder has made an approximately complete list of his publications, beginning with 1861. There are six books, about 220 technical scientific articles, about 230 reviews, mostly in the Nation, and articles of popular science and letters on various topics. Deducting part of a volume and part of an article written by Professor S. H. Gage, and estimating all as octavo pages of average size, they cover about 3330 pages, with 862 illustrations, mostly original.

While at Cornell Professor Wilder has gathered what is probably the most extensive collection of brains, human and of lower orders, that is in existence today. A collection of hearts, although smaller, is considered of great importance to students of science. He said that these collections would become the property of the University.

RUINS OF THE SIGMA ALPHA EPSILON HOUSE.

S. A. E. HOUSE BURNED.

Almost Entirely Destroyed—Alpha Delta Phi House Was in Danger.

Fire which started at 9 o'clock Saturday night almost completely destroyed the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house on Hill Crest. It is thought that defective wiring near the top of the freight elevator shaft caused the fire. Because of its remote situation the house was doomed before the first of the fire companies arrived. The loss on the building and its contents is estimated at $20,000. The building was insured.

Harold E. Drake '11, of Gardner, Mass., and Austin P. Story '13, of Chillicothe, O., were the only members of the fraternity in the house when the thermostatic alarm sounded. Drake ran to the freight elevator shaft and discovered the blaze near the top. He then went to the home of Professor Charles M. Tyler and telephoned an alarm. Story started to save what he could of the contents of the house. Before the alarm was given men from the neighboring fraternities and a party of sophomores of the Psi Upsilon fraternity, who had been dining at the home of Professor Dennis, arrived. Nearly all the furniture on the first floor, including the piano and the silverware, and some clothing from the second floor, were saved.

Fortunately the fire occurred at an early hour in the evening. Had it been three or four hours later, members of the society say, loss of life could hardly have been prevented. Starting as it did in the elevator shaft, it gained great headway before it heated a thermostat in an adjoining room sufficiently to give the alarm.

The house of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity, to the south, was in danger during the fire. A brisk north wind blew embers as far as University Avenue. The Alpha Delta Phi roof was showered with sparks and as it is a shingle roof the members of the fraternity had their hands full keeping it drenched with water and covered with wet blankets. The house suffered slight damage from water which leaked from hose laid through the rooms to the roof.

The Cornell chapter of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, which was established in 1891, is the New York Alpha. Until about ten years ago the chapter was housed at 804 East Seneca street. Then the present house was sold to the fraternity by Mrs. Adaline Prentiss. It was of frame construction with brick walls one story high. Of the thirty-one members of the chapter, nineteen lived in the house. Of this number three had gone home for the year. The other sixteen men lost practically all their belongings.

After the fire the neighboring fraternities opened their houses to the members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon. Most of the men spent Saturday night and Sunday at the Chi Psi and Alpha Delta Phi houses. Members of the fraternity said that the house would probably be rebuilt at once.

President Schurman Gives Up His Visit to Europe.

President Schurman is prevented by University business from carrying out his plan of spending the coming year in Europe. He had expected to go abroad soon after Commencement, and had been appointed by the faculty and Trustees to represent the University at several centenary celebrations in Europe. On account of his change of plan other delegates have been named.

Professor J. R. S. Sterrett has been appointed delegate to represent Cornell University at the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the foundation of the University of Breslau, August 1-3.

Professor E. L. Nichols has been appointed delegate to represent Cornell University at the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the foundation of the University of Christiania, September 5-6.

Professor H. A. Sill has been appointed delegate to represent Cornell University at the celebration of the 500th anniversary of the foundation of St. Andrews University, September 12-15.

Faculty Appointments.

The following appointments were made at a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees on June 6:

David Clinton Gillespie, A. M., Ph. D., to be assistant professor of mathematics.

Frank Millett Morgan '09 to be assistant in mathematics; J. J. Mackenzie to be instructor in economic geology; G. W. Nasmyth '06 to be instructor in physics; Wheeler P. Davey to be assistant in physics; Joseph J. Davies to be assistant in physics; Charles A. Carroll '10 to be instructor in English.

Mr. Nasmyth returns next fall from a year's study at the University of Berlin. He has taken four degrees at Cornell—A. B. in 1906, A. M. in 1908 and M. E. and Ph. D. in 1910.

Professor Hiram Corson is again confined to his home by illness.

An Exhibition of Rare Bibles.

In commemoration of the three hundredth anniversary of the publication of King James's Bible, there has been placed in the west bay of the White Library an exhibition of manuscripts and rare editions of the Bible, furnished chiefly by the President White Library. The books are arranged in a sequence intended to illustrate the transmission of the Scriptures before and after the invention of printing. The south case contains a handsome illuminated manuscript of St. Paul's Epistles, on vellum, dating from the 11th or early 12th century; a beautifully written 13th century manuscript on vellum of the Vulgate version of the Old Testament, also illuminated; an illuminated vellum roll, 9 feet long, containing the Book of Esther in Hebrew; the first published Greek Testament, with a Latin translation by Erasmus, printed in 1516; specimens of the first Bible printed with a date (1462), Coverdale's first English Bible (1535) and the "Great Bible" in English (1539), and the first edition of the Gospels in Anglo-Saxon printed in Anglo-Saxon characters (1571).

The north case contains a copy (lent by Professor Hewett) of the first edition of King James's Bible (1611), commonly known as the authorized version; the Bishops' Bible (1588), sometimes called the "Treacle Bible;" the last folio edition of the Genevan English version (1616), commonly known as the "Breeches Bible;" the first edition of the Roman Catholic version in English (1609-10), generally known as the Douai Bible, and sometimes called the rosin Bible; a facsimile of the Bay Psalm-Book (1640), the first book in the English language printed in America; first editions of the Icelandic New Testament (1540), and of the versions in the Upper and Lower Engadine dialects of Romaunsch; the first edition of Luther's German Bible (1534), sometimes called the "Wartburg Bible," and several other translations.

Fuller descriptions of the characteristic features are given on the cards accompanying the books. The exhibition will continue through Commencement.

Professor M. W. Sampson and Mrs. Sampson sailed on Saturday for Europe. They will spend the summer in travel. Professor J. P. Bretz is to be in Paris during the summer. Professor Strunk will travel in Spain and France during the vacation.

Extension Work in Agriculture.

A Farm Bureau has been organized by the Binghamton Chamber of Commerce in cooperation with the State College of Agriculture at Cornell, the state and federal departments of agriculture and the Lackawanna Railroad, to improve farming conditions in the neighborhood of Binghamton. The College of Agriculture at Cornell is acting as an adviser to the bureau and is furnishing lecturers as they are needed. The work of the bureau is in charge of John M. Barron '06, of Nunda, N. Y., who was appointed by the Chamber of Commerce upon the recommendation of the College of Agriculture. Since he graduated from Cornell, Mr. Barron has been connected with the United States Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Soils; with the Pennsylvania State College of Agriculture, and with the New York State Department of Agriculture, for the past two years as an assistant conductor of farmers' institutes.

The cooperation of the College of Agriculture with the Binghamton Chamber of Commerce in its effort to improve country life conditions in and about its city is but one of many ways in which the college at Cornell is seeking to aid the farmers of the state. Besides the extension department of the college, which is carrying on the work on a large scale, the various other departments are each doing something to improve farm life. The farmer is reached through many agencies and organizations. The railroads are now beginning to turn their attention to country life subjects and their farm bureaus call upon the college frequently for advice and for trained men to carry on their work.

If present plans mature, the department of rural education at the College of Agriculture will be in operation next fall. The appointment of a professor of rural education has been authorized by the Trustees but the appointment has not yet been made. Agriculture has taken a place among the sciences taught in the public schools and the college is preparing to train teachers for the subject.

Besides the schools, the railroads and the other recognized forms of extension work at the college, a movement was started last winter to bring into cooperation with the college another class—the country pastors. Several conferences have been held at the College of Agriculture this year between professors and representatives of various religious organizations. Many of the clergymen have familiarized themselves with the work of the college in order that they may be able to give advice to their parishioners on problems of country life.

ATHLETICS.

Rowing.

Daily rows to Crowbar Point under excellent weather conditions and the launching of the 1911 shell were the rowing events of last week. Many undergraduates followed the crews last Wednesday on the steamer Horton. All the combinations looked well.

The 1911 shell, from the workshop of John Hoyle, went into the water Saturday. It was ready to launch Friday, but John would not permit the ceremony to take place then. It would have brought bad luck, according to Hoyle. The boat was launched stern first. This is another precaution that John always follows. He says they seem to prove better boats if launched stern first. The 1911 shell is considerably lighter than some of the previous boats. Cornell is to have the lightest crew in years this season and there may be some connection between this fact and the weight of the boat. A new set of oars was turned out by Mr. Hoyle to go with the shell.

The varsity and freshman combinations, the varsity four and four substitutes, together with the coaches and managers, left Ithaca for Poughkeepsie yesterday. They will be quartered at the Oaks until after the regatta on June 27. The varsity eight-oared race is scheduled to be rowed at 5:30 o'clock, just fourteen minutes before the ebb tide is at its strongest. The fours will row in dead water. The freshman race is to be started at the beginning of the ebb. In the drawings for the race of varsity eights, Cornell drew fourth place. Pennsylvania will row in lane No. 1. Columbia will be in No. 2 and Syracuse in No. 3. The Wisconsin crew has the outside. In the freshman race the crews will line up in the following order: Cornell, Columbia, Wisconsin, Syracuse, Pennsylvania. For the four-oared race they will be in the following positions: Syracuse, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Columbia.

Final Intercollege Standing.

The students of the College of Agriculture won the intercollege athletic championship for the year. The final ranking of the colleges is as follows: Agriculture, 58; Mechanical Engineering, 39 1-3; Civil Engineering, 38 5-6; Law, 31 1-3; Arts, 23; Veterinary, 18 1-2; Architecture, 13. The last series to be played was baseball. Without this the College of Agriculture had the championship assured. However, Agriculture won the series, the standing being as follows:

College	Won	Lost	P.C.
Agriculture .....	6	1	.857
Mechanical Eng.....	4	2	.666
Civil Engineering.....	4	2	.666
Law .....	4	2	.666
Veterinary .....	2	3	.400
Architecture .....	1	4	.200
Arts and Sciences.....	0	4	.000

Professor Young estimates that about 900 men took part in the intercollege sports during the past year. The dues from the colleges and the receipts from the indoor carnival amounted to about $150. This was the only sum available for meeting the expense of the contests.

The Athletic Council has granted the track "C" for special merit to A. S. Elsenbast '12 and E. A. McKrell '11. Elsenbast has been a member of the one-mile relay team and has competed in the 440-yard dash and the broad jump. McKrell's specialty is the hurdles.

By defeating Kappa Sigma 14 to 4 last week, Zodiac won the interfraternity baseball championship. A final series of three games was to have been played between the teams, but it was agreed to let one contest decide the issue.

After much discussion of the question the undergraduates of the College of Civil Engineering have voted to retain the honor system of conducting examinations in their college.

Ithaca, N. Y., June 14, 1911.

There is a plan before the Faculty to change the University calendar so as to make Commencement Day occur five days earlier than it does at present and come on a Saturday instead of a Thursday. An effort was made by the class of 1911 to have such a change put into effect this year, but plans for class reunions and alumni meetings had gone so far that it was impossible. It is receiving consideration by the Faculty, which has appointed a committee composed of Professors Shearer, Dennis and Hammond to investigate the plan and report next fall. Under the existing arrangement of the calendar, final examinations end in the middle of the week before Commencement, leaving a hiatus of several days before the beginning of what is variously known as "Commencement week," "senior week" and "alumni week." It is proposed to have all the graduating class events, including the Class Day exercises, the senior ball, the concert and the play, take place in the few days just following final examinations and culminate in the Commencement on Saturday morning. The object of the proposed change is frankly to separate senior week from alumni week. It is suggested that the alumni reunions be held on Monday and Tuesday after Commencement and it is pointed out that any alumni who come back for the reunions and who wish to attend the Commencement exercises also would only need to come to Ithaca on Saturday morning instead of on Monday. Every graduating class for several years past has tried to arrange its plans so that the guests of the seniors could be entertained at a time when the alumni were not in Ithaca, and the present plan is the latest and apparently the most practicable that has been suggested.

There is no Cornellian who has not heard of Dr. Wilder. His connection with this University dates from 1867, a year before the doors of the old South Building were opened. Dr. Wilder will celebrate his seventieth birthday anniversary, deo volente, on August 11 next. He has given up active teaching, but has work to do which he says will keep him busy for at least twenty years. The good wishes of Cornellians go with him to his home at Brookline.

Inquirers about tickets for the observation train at the Poughkeepsie regatta are referred to a paragraph printed in last week's ALUMNI NEWS, page 416.

OBITUARY.

W. R. DUDLEY '74.

William Russell Dudley, B. S. '74, M. S. '76, emeritus professor of botany in Leland Stanford Junior University, and formerly for many years a member of the Cornell faculty, died at Stanford University on June 4. He had been in poor health for several years and he retired from active teaching a few months ago.

Professor Dudley was born in Guilford, Conn., on March 1, 1849. He entered Cornell University in 1870, taking the course in science. A pupil of Agassiz while here, he caught the enthusiasm for the study of natural history which that teacher brought to Cornell. He studied in the Agassiz School at Penikese Island during the summer after his graduation in 1874. While continuing his studies here as a candidate for the master's degree in science, he served as instructor in botany. In 1876 he was appointed assistant professor of botany and in 1883 assistant professor in charge of cryptogamic botany. In 1887-8 he spent a sabbatic year in study at Strassburg and Berlin. He remained at Cornell until 1892, when he accepted a call from President Jordan, then organizing the faculty of Stanford University, to take charge of the department of botany in the new institution. He taught at Stanford until the middle of the present college year, when he retired from active work in the hope of regaining his health, which had been weakened by a severe illness.

Professor Dudley was the author of "The Cayuga Flora," "Lackawanna and Wyoming Flora," and (with Professor M. B. Thomas) "Manual of Histology." He was a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, vice-president of the California section of the American Forestry Association, and secretary of the California Redwood Park Association. He was associate editor of the Bulletin of the Sierra Club.

An appreciation of Professor Dudley's work at Stanford was published in The Stanford Alumnus for February and reprinted in the ALUMNI NEWS for March 8. It spoke especially of his interest in forest preservation. During the summer vacations the pursuit of his botanical studies took him into the mountains and forested areas of California, where he was impressed by the constant waste of forest resources. He became one of the pioneers in the movement toward conservation, and rendered valuable services to the state and the nation through suggestions and advice to the Forest Service and other authorities. The establishment of the California Redwood Park, a tract of forested land set aside by the state for the purpose of preserving a forest of the coast redwood in its primitive conditions, was accomplished largely through his efforts. He was secretary of the first Park Commission. He also labored for the establishment of courses in forestry at Stanford, and this project was in a fair way to success when the earthquake of April 18, 1906, brought serious financial embarrassment to the university and prevented the realization of his plans. Soon afterward he contracted a serious illness which left him physically weakened.

W. G. HALSEY '75.

William Gurden Halsey died of monia. Mr. Halsey was a special student at Cornell from 1871 to 1875. He did not graduate, but the certificate of Licentiate in Mechanical Drafting was given him. He was a member of the Kappa Alpha Society, sang on the Collegensia Quartet, and was catcher of the varsity baseball team. At the time of his death Mr. Halsey was secretary and treasurer of the Essex Pure Water Company of Orange, and secretary of the Boston Water Purifier Company of New York City. He was married in 1880 to Eunice C. Kirtland, who survives him, with two sons.

M. L. ABRAHAMS '06.

Morris Landa Abrahams, a graduate of Sibley College of the class of 1906, died at his home in San Antonio, Texas, on May 28. He was twenty-six years old. He graduated from the Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College in 1903 and then entered Cornell.

'72, M. S.—Dr. David Starr Jordan has tendered to President Taft his resignation as international commissioner of fisheries. This position was created three years ago under the treaty of April 11, 1908, with Great Britain. Under the terms of the appointment, the work of the commissioner ceases on the completion of the series of fishery regulations of the boundary waters, and the technical investigations necessary for
