The Veterans at Cornell

BY DONALD H. MOYER

All alumni will be interested in this intimate appraisal of how the veterans are doing at Cornell and what their presence means to the University. The writer, Donald H. Moyer, has been since January, 1946, assistant to Professor Loren C. Petry who is University Director of Veterans Education. Moyer had a two-and-a-half-year tour of duty as lieutenant and lieutenant-commander, USNR, in charge of the Navy College Training Program at St. Lawrence University. He was at Cornell from July, 1941, to May, 1943, as the first Counselor of Men Students, having graduated at Harvard in 1927. He is the son of the late Fayette E. Moyer '96.

LIKE the first snowflake to fall in a great blizzard, the first veteran registered at Cornell under benefits of the Servicemen's Readjustment Act in July, 1944. Now, in the midst of the storm, the Campus is blanketed with 5200 ex-soldiers, sailors, marines, Waves, and Wacs, and, to extend the metaphor, it looks as if spring would be very late: maybe 1952 or '53! How has Cornell withstood the buffetings of wind and snow? More particularly, what sort of fellow is GI Joe on the Campus? What sort of Cornellian does he make?

One may easily have gained the impression from the public press that the veterans who swarm over our college campuses today are a different breed from college students as we knew them. Well, they are and they aren't; mostly they aren't. In a way it's hard to tell, because there are so few men in college now who aren't veterans that any comparison is difficult. However, these things we know: The boys still drink beer and fall in love; they join and join and join; they eat a lot at odd hours and sleep little; they fear exams more than the Luftwaffe; and their life is an odd mixture of comic strips and slide rules, lectures and bull sessions, all interspersed with phone calls, jalopies, and cokes, just as it used to be.

Add Wives, Babies

Now, into this photomontage toss 1300 wives and nearly 1000 babies, rows of barracks-like apartments, monthly checks from Uncle Sam, all the old GI clothes which aren't worn out, and a few artificial legs and arms, and you will begin to see that life on the Hill, despite the fundamental likeness to old times, must in fact have changed; and so it has.

The most outstanding characteristic of the veteran should occasion no surprise; it is his maturity—in certain ways. The published "studies" might have us believe he has grown up because of his war experiences and the responsibilities which were thrust upon him. In part this is true, but actually a two- to four-year difference in age when young people are in their 'teens and twenties is in itself enough to make a big difference in attitudes and behavior. Compare the average graduate student with the usual undergraduate and you will get the idea.

Top Pre-war Scholarship

Take the question of scholarship. From every campus you hear the same story; the veterans are running away with the honors. At Cornell, they are 'way out ahead of the old all-men's average. They were, that is, at the end of the spring term of 1946. It will be interesting to see whether they hold up. A former B-17 pilot roomed in my house his first term back at Cornell. At the end of those first four months, he turned in an 84 average in Engineering in contrast to a 70 average for the term before he enlisted. To achieve this significant accomplishment (for him), this veteran forsook any normal college life and buried himself in his books to a point where I had to urge him to get out and have some fun. In his second post-war term, this boy lived in a rooming house and began to take an interest in the extra-curricular life of the Campus. His grades dropped 10 points. For his third term he moved to his fraternity house, became active in athletics, and fell in love. His term average was 71. This term he is taking a leave of absence.

To what extent veterans in general will rebound in this way from an initial scholastic binge is difficult to predict. In some respects, the retreat from all-out scholastic effort is a healthy one. It must rest with the individual student to strike the proper balance (for him) between Campus and classroom in his college life.

The veterans' attitude toward athletics and activities was at first one of cautious approach. Bob Kane, Director of Athletics, remarked in the summer of 1946 that no one should be surprised to find missing from the line-up for a football game a star back or lineman, because with many veterans on the squad study claimed an inviolable priority. This situation never developed, but some veteran footballers, notably married ones, cut practice sessions to a minimum in order to devote more time to their academic work and family responsibilities.

Veterans are Mature

"Work hard and play hard." That is the way Proctor Charles Manning sizes up the basic attitude of the returned servicemen. Even so, the Proctor says they give him little trouble; for the most part they are gentlemen and hold their liquor well. And it is noteworthy that with a suspicion of deference and respect which was for the most part lacking before the war, Faculty members are now frequently addressed or greeted by students as "Sir" or by their names. The boys in the fraternity houses know better now how to greet and welcome and entertain their guests, and they do so with a new-found assurance and poise which distinguishes them from their pre-war predecessors. Not only are manners improved, but conversation is more natural and wider in scope than it used to be. It is no surprise to hear a veteran discussing the Palestine problem on the basis of first-hand observation while he was quartered in Tel Aviv.

VETERANS HAVE FAMILIES

The veterans have the perennial problems of all college students; study, money, and women. These troubles are, however, different in aspect if not in kind. Absence of three and a half years from the classroom means lapses of memory and of study habits. Both are quickly regained, and the University has from the first aided veterans who suffered these handicaps. Money troubles are not serious and relate mostly to the need for loans when GI checks are delayed. A special loan fund for this purpose and interest free has met all needs. Woman trouble has simply become more esoteric, as with the veterans who face the problem of bringing brides home from Europe or the boy who when he finishes his course in Agriculture is going out to marry his Filipino fiancée and grow tomatoes near Manila.

"Trial by Fire"

Without a doubt, the greatest change in the student body is to be observed in the large proportion of benedicts on Campus; about 1300 of them with their wives and children. As these boys and girls eat together, you can spot them for their relaxed manner. As one student put it, "They aren't pressing!" Another, commenting on the married women, said, "Now you have to be careful whom you whistle at." It is an interesting and significant experiment, this blending of family life and college life! It isn't going to be universally successful, and where it is, the triumph will often be at a sacrifice on both counts, because neither phase of this dual living arrangement is a normal or natural one. Two veterans, man and wife, have an eight-months-old youngster. Both attend classes, but so staggered that one is always free to tend the baby. This means rapid transportation by car and bike between classroom and "nursery." It means a valiant cooperative endeavor when one considers the diapers, the cooking, the study hours, and the privation. It is a trial by fire, and for Cornell to be a crucible in this socio-economic laboratory is both a responsibility and a challenge.

Aid in Family Affairs

One of the first steps the University took to meet the problems of the married veteran was to provide 300 temporary apartments under auspices of the FPHA. These are now designated as Vetsburg, East Vetsburg, and Tower Road. In December, 1946, the Office of Veterans Education appointed Mrs. K. B. Bowen, the wife of a Law School veteran, as Coordinator for Family Affairs. Mrs. Bowen went to work with only the instructions that her function should be to grant the wives and children of our married veterans as much peace of mind and sense of security as was possible under the unique circumstances of their existence. Among the many activities which have claimed her attention are problems of medical care, nursery schools, employment, legal aid, social events, and the dissemination of information relating to services and opportunities for the distaff side of veterans' families. Work on these problems is principally a cooperative function of the wives themselves, with Mrs. Bowen acting as the spark plug or carburetor. Her work should reveal clearly the new problems created by the large influx of married students and indicate ways and means for the University to define and implement whatever it may think wise to assume as responsibilities for this mutation in the student body.

The veterans have given Cornell and other universities a great lift. As a group, they have posed questions of basic significance in higher education. The problems which at the close of the war were anticipated by many people, neurotic aberrations and behavior problems, have just not materialized to any great extent. "Adjusting" the veteran is for the nonce almost simpler than adjusting the non-veteran Freshman.

Education Changing

This much, however, has been revealed and will call for deliberation in high quarters: College enrollments will be permanently higher. First, the so-called GI Bill of Rights has enabled qualified students to come to college who formerly, because of their low economic status, would have been denied the privilege. We now know for certain that money and brains may go together, but that mute inglorious Miltons may and do lurk beneath the cover of financial need. From the lead of the Navy V-12 program and now the GI Bill to establish equality of opportunity in higher education there can be no retreat. Subsidies of one sort or another will be established for those whose economic origins would once have kept them from college, and the day of collegiate training for the privileged few is past. How this challenge to the colleges and to the American public will ultimately be met is one of the most significant questions confronting us today.

A second problem of immediate concern and definitely linked with the more mature group of veterans who make up from 50 per cent to 75 per cent of the present male student body is recognition of the need for relating vocational motivation to all branches of higher learning. The day is past when the majority of college students came to college for four pleasant years with the vague purpose of acquiring "culture" or "polish," or general education for the sole purpose of making life "richer." Youth today may want all of this and it is a worthy ambition, but the veterans have clearly indicated that no form of education today can ignore the primary urge of all young people to fit themselves for earning a living. This offers a particular challenge to the ivory tower, to the colleges of arts and sciences which have never made clear to their students the vocational significance of the liberal arts.

A third question, less compelling but fraught with great consequence, is that of assimilating into the traditional student population large numbers of married students in such manner as to afford them some of the amenities of life and a proper balance between the responsibilities of the family and those of the classroom. This may be a transient phenomenon, but it is quite probable that the number of married students may never again fall off to the infinitesimal proportions they were in the past. The answer to the problem lies much in the study of the experiences of young married GIs who in large numbers are struggling, often against great odds, to gain an education on college campuses today.

The veteran at Cornell has been stimulating and provocative. He has lifted the tone of the University and promises to become a thoughtful, loyal, and participating alumnus. He has many ideas about education and student life. In more sober moments of reflection, he regards his college days as a privilege granted him only by a kind Providence; he cannot forget those of his brothers whose wartime sacrifice made college possible for him. As an alumnus, he will be interested in football; but in part because of his greater maturity as an undergraduate, he may also be interested and concerned in a peculiar way with the future development of Cornell as one of America's great universities.

As alumni, you may feel honored and proud to welcome Cornell's veterans into your midst. They have been a shining credit to their Alma Mater and will have left their indelible mark on the Hill.

Senator Ives Speaks

US Senator Irving M. Ives, former Dean of the School of Industrial and Labor Relations, spoke to seventy members of the Cornell Club of Washington, D. C., on the background of the School and on pending labor legislation in Congress, April 23 at the Dodge Hotel.

Spring Day Enthuses Campus with Pre-war Fervor

SPRING DAY followed three successive days of snow and freezing temperatures. Miraculously, the weather changed: the sun shone, the winds died down, and the mercury climbed to the eighties, gladdening the celebrants of the University's annual holiday.

First symptoms of spring fever on the Campus appeared on May Day, when a week of student ballyhoo blossomed into a mammoth "Apollo Contest" sponsored by the Octagon Club, supposedly to pick the handsomest Cornell male. Twelve candidates vied for the grand prize: tickets to all Spring Day events, a loving cup, and a bottle of Scotch. Before a crowd of shirt-sleeved and baby-toting students which thronged the Willard Straight steps, Central Avenue, and the lawn between Sage Chapel and Barnes Hall, the terrific twelve made their glorious entrances: one in a rowboat, borne aloft by his cohorts; one flag-draped on a bier; one astride a cow labeled "This is no bull! Vote for Gilbert"; and others in vehicles ranging from a Model T Ford to a '47 Buick. Their costumes were splendid, and eight pretty co-eds from the cast of the Octagon show, "Maid to Order," chose the winner, Thomas D. Wells '43 of Farmington, Conn.

"Ah, Wilderness!" a Hit

Fifty-four fraternities had house-parties, most of them from noon Friday, May 9, until Sunday night. The houseparty queens arrived in unprecedented numbers; Robinson Airlines carried a record 100 a day. And most of the party-goers took time out Friday and Saturday nights to see the Dramatic Club's production of "Ah, Wilderness!" by Eugene O'Neill and the Octagon Club show in Bailey Hall.

An undergraduate cast, directed by Professor Walter H. Stainton '19, Speech and Drama, provided a weekend highlight in the Willard Straight Theater; both performances of the nostalgic O'Neill comedy were sold out. James W. Benner, Jr. '50 of State College, N. Mex., and Mary E. Utting '48 of Saranac Lake were fine as Nat and Essie Miller; Richard E. Perkins '48 of Newark contributed a sensitive performance as their radical son; Anthony Geiss '46 of New York City got laughs for his portrayal of sousing Sid; and Frank C. Kallen '49 of Schenectady stole the show in his brief role as a collegiate wolf. With its philosophical musings on youth's first fling, its frequent allusion to intoxicating liquors, and its warm comedy, "Ah, Wilderness!" was an excellent choice for Spring Day.

"Gasser College" Show

"Maid to Order," a musical comedy with respective book, lyrics, and music by Robert V. Williams '49 of East Paterson, N. J., and Ben-Ami Lipetz '47 and Robert N. Jacobson '46 of New York City, depicted the invasion of "Gassar College" by four veterans, three of whom were married to Gassar girls while the fourth pretended to be in order to enroll. The plot creaked, but the music was good, the twenty-piece orchestra fast and loud, and the cast and chorus attractive and in good voice. His bachelorhood discovered, the pretender was threatened with expulsion, but saved himself by eloping with the heroine. Surprisingly, the house was not sold out for either performance.

Spring Day, May 10, was perfect. A warm sun brought new white beer-jackets out in force (see cover picture), along with a number of 1947 blazers. Chairman William Pendarvis, Jr. '47 of Barnsdall, Okla., and his committee had labored well. The "peerade" of floats, assembled late on West State Street, wound slowly up the Hill and past the reviewing stand in front of the Straight, where the judges, Secretary Edward K. Graham, PhD '38, Professor Frederick G. Marcham, PhD '26, History, and the Rev. Edward D. Eddy '44, awarded the palm (a loving cup and a keg of beer) to Theta Xi's flamboyant gondola. The holiday crowd quickly headed for Kite Hill, behind the Crescent, where a traditional Spring Day carnival muled them of small change until lunch time. Most popular exhibit was the tented Psi U Follies, hawked as "Banned in Boston! May never be allowed in Ithaca again!" Nearly 1,000 persons bought admission to this enterprise. They also pitched pennies, threw custard pies at "Apollo" Wells, tested the "Kiss-o-Meter," bet on the SAE Rat Race, listened to the band of Richard E. Flight '47, and drank numberless beers.

The afternoon was given to athletics, both public and private, and to impromptu picnics at Monkey Run, on Turkey Hill, and in other hallowed spots. Literature for sale included The Sun, printed upside down and crosswise over ("Spring Day Gambol Turns Hill Upside Down"); a "Cornell Deadly Sin" issue of the Widow; and a thirty-page official program "Holiday," edited by Leslie H. Moore, Jr. '44 of New York City, with a Biblical Spring Day Letter from Secretary Graham, a review of spring sports by Bernard M. Clarey '29, a history of the ROTC Band by Colonel Ralph A. Hospital, a "Lexicon for Cornellians" by John H. Detmold '43, and other features.

Dance Fills Barton Hall

The Navy Ball, with Tex Beneke and the Glenn Miller orchestra, attracted some 6,000 dancers to Barton Hall, Saturday night. For the first time, the entire floor of the vast drill hall was utilized, with a concession stand along the east wall and the bandstand centered on the north side. Decorations, designed by Robert M. Engelbrecht '47 Architecture, of "Campus Apollo" contestants (right) line up with Sebela Wehe at Willard Straight entrance. Below, Theta Xi float, winner in the Spring Day "peerade," passes the War Memorial.

Stover, who scored such a hit with the Junior Prom last February, included white draperies, red lights strung aloft, and pedestaled mannequins at a dozen vantage points. This affair lasted until 2:30 a. m., after which the youngest and strongest continued their merry-making at "breakfast dances" around the Hill.

Sage Chapel was well filled with couples Sunday morning, and the Library slope, warm in the cloudless sunshine, was dotted with twosomes. The Library Tower was open at noon, but not many people felt like climbing those stairs. "I don't know," one twenty-four-year-old veteran remarked, "I can't seem to take it like I used to. Must be getting old."

Intelligence

By Emerson Hinchliff '14

EAAAE took over The Cornell Daily Sun the night of May 1. For several days in advance, cryptic communications, breathlessly reporting the progress of the EAAAE through and past sundry refreshment emporia enroute down the Hill, whetted reader curiosity. Sample:

"Executing a smart undulating movement, they were told by Battalion Commander Editor-in-Chief Foster M. Coffin, 'Men, when The Sun rises again, it will be under our by-lines'."

Counter-cry from the Sun office was a clarion: "BEARY 'OT VEEN-TOVKOO, NAROD VOYEVOEE" (Russian for, "The warring people bring rifles.") This was signed by "Grand Potentate Field Marshal Harold (Hold your spitballs until you can see the knots in their shoe laces) Raynolds, Jr. '48," present editor-in-chief.

Trumpeting a "Veni, Vidi, Vici" box on page one, the issue of May 2 proclaimed victory for the attackers and announced that this number was the handicraft of EAAAE.

Lest you crack under the strain, EAAAE was not a communist-inspired militant band of partisans moving in on Ithaca's Only Morning Daily. Translated, the letters meant "Eddy's Army of Anxious Archaic Editors." Derided as "mossbacks" by the undergraduate board, the "Army" consisted of sixteen former Sun editors and managers now resident in Ithaca, two foreign correspondents (E. B. White '21 and Frank Sullivan '14), Miss Jessica Holland of the Sun business office, and F. I. (Tig) Ferris, head of the composing room.

To be more specific, the masthead listed also Frank C. Abbott '42, J. Basil Abbink '43, Garner A. Adams '35, Foster M. Coffin '12, Edward D. Eddy '44, Jacob D. Fry '45, George H. Getman '44, Hubert A. Gerstman '44, Rodney S. Gould '44, Robert D. Greenburg '44, Emerson Hinchliff '14, Arnold Hoffman '42, J. Larkin Hoyt '42, Walter P. McQuade '45, Alpheus W. Smith '19, and Robert W. Storandt '40. Six were editor-in-chief in their own generations. Many of the younger men are still studying, either finishing out their undergraduate courses or in Law or Business and Public Administration.

Actually, the Alumni Issue of the Sun was no burlesque. It was a serious effort to produce a good paper, have some fun doing it,

Good Example Ignored and incidentally, to substantiate occasional jibes we oldsters had flung at the present editors. The latter generously invited and humorously challenged us to try our hands again. Some of them helped as "competes," knocked on doors before coming in, and were obsequiously (and imperpertinently) polite. Fearing somewhat that we would run up shop overtime and thus cost them money, they still weren't above an occasional attempt at sabotage. For instance, in the copy for the Chimes program odd titles appeared, such as "Mary Widow Waltz" and the "Beers of St. Mary's." The night editor spotted them, but "Roositer" for Rossini as the composer of "William Tell" was not caught until proof was read. One bad headline got by (too many letters), a lecturer's name was misspelled, and there were probably other lapses, but it was a pretty good issue!

I might say, however, that our good example wasn't followed too well. In the next day's issue, that of Saturday, a writer forgot his date-line and announced meetings of the Campus United Nations assembly for "tomorrow and Sunday." And in the Spring Day issue, three different times were given for the start of the baseball double-header.

Editorially, the Alumni Issue called attention to the lists, published on the first page, of the newly-elected Senior society members, saying, "In their election we pass on to them not only commendation but also a challenge." Calling for practical experience beyond the classroom in extra-curricular activities, the editorial attacked the "essentially lazy men who decry participation in activities because they are 'petty'." A sideswipe was aimed at a recent speech by President Conant of Harvard.

For my money, the high spot was a "Berry Patch" column by "Frank Sullivan '76," reminiscing about the good old days, which will shortly

Contributions Amuse appear in the ALUMNI NEWS. In another column, contributor White pleaded movingly with the editor of the ALUMNI NEWS to dress up his "naked nouns" at the beginning of sentences.

I am told that the average undergraduate found most amusing a head reading: "AYD Holds May Day Meet; Stalin Reviews Parade in Moscow" and a paragraph headed, "Students to See Birds," under the by-line of Ted Eddy '44. The bird walk announcement ended: "The group will meet at the N. Cayuga Street bridge at 6 a.m. I will not be there."

Epilogue, from the Sun of May 3: "Looking madly under the typewriters, uprooting the furniture and sending a party of competes up the chimney failed to reveal any particle of Eddy's decrept (sic) editors until an Intelligence Service sports board member opened the closet. Stacks of stiff EAAAE's. Victims of the sheer mastery of their efforts."

ΦBK Initiates

PHI BETA KAPPA initiated fifty-eight new members, May 29. This is the largest number in the history of the Cornell chapter, and includes many war veterans who have returned to complete their courses in Arts and Sciences.

Professor Howard B. Adelman '20, Histology and Embryology, president of the chapter, presided at the sixty-fifth annual initiation banquet, in Willard Straight Hall. Professor Morris Bishop '14, Romance Languages, gave the principal address, on "Faith in Literature."

Initiates included three graduate students, Rhesa M. Allen of Mount Jackson, Va., Harry G. Edwards of Cambridge, England, who responded for the new members, and Paul B. Simpson of Portland, Ore.

Elected as Seniors were Ragnar L. Arnesen, Jr., Ann Arbor, Mich.; Peter L. Auer '48, South Orange, N. J.; David Barr, son of Samuel M. Barr '17 of New York City; James H. Becker '46, son of Joseph A. Becker '18 of Summit, N. J.; George R. Briggs '46, son of Professor T. Roland Briggs '09, Chemistry, and Frances Ingalls Briggs '12; Leon I. Charash '48, Irvington, N. J.; Beverly A. Chazan, Rochester; Charles D. Cornwell, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Peter L.

Detmold '45, Long Island City; Robert Dillof '46, Brooklyn; Charles W. Fischer, son of Charles W. Fischer '20 of Atlantic City, N. J.; Hyman S. Gelman '43, Buffalo; John P. Gould, Hamburg; Ernest P. Gray, Elmhurst; Mary M. Harvey, Delhi; Charles M. Holmes II '44, Orange, N. J.; Marvin I. Kalkstein '48, Brooklyn; James C. Keck '46, New York City; Elizabeth M. Kennedy, Dayton, Ohio; Blanche M. Levin, daughter of Mrs. Henry Levin (Sarah Boorstein) '25 of East Orange, N. J.; Bella J. Lewis '48, Brooklyn; Josephine Miller '48, daughter of Dr. Charles S. Miller '19 of Corona; Helen E. Muenschner '45, daughter of Professor Walter C. Muenschner, PhD '21, Botany; Flora H. Muraskin, Brooklyn; Alice J. Newman, Forest Hills; Patrick A. O'Sullivan, Jr., Buffalo; Richard W. Perlman '45, Mount Vernon; Murray Peshkin '46, Hollis; Roy Pierce, New York City; Harry C. Rogers, Jr., Baldwin; Philip J. Schapiro, New York City; George W. Skinner '46, Oakland, Cal.; Robert J. Talbert '43, Teaneck, N. J.; Eleanor Tananbaum, New York City; and Joseph Tanenhaus '45, Binghamton.

Twenty Juniors were elected: Stanley J. Altman, Brooklyn; David Baker '46, Staten Island; Frederick E. Balderston '46, Media, Pa.; Robert Barclay, Jr., Yonkers; William C. Boyne '44, East St. Louis, Ill.; Eileen M. Curran, Staten Island; Gifford B. Doxsee, Freeport; Phyllis J. Eisen, Jack M. Gershberg '46, Carl Greifinger '46, and Joan M. Jacobs of New York City; Leo P. Larkin, Jr. '47, son of Dr. Leo P. Larkin '17 of Ithaca; Viola A. Mowry, Oxford; Helen Muhlfelder, Albany; Florence M. Sacks, Brooklyn; James W. Short, Ithaca; Jeanne E. Siegel, Buffalo; Phyllis H. Stoliar, Brooklyn; Katharine R. Weidman, Woodbury, N. J.; and Bertram Zaslow '46, Brooklyn.

Offer Highway Help

ALUMNI contractors and consulting engineers who may be building roads, bridges, or doing other highway work this summer are asked to consider hiring students majoring in highway engineering in the School of Civil Engineering. Professor Taylor D. Lewis, Civil Engineering, says: "Such summer work is invaluable to our students, as it solidifies classroom knowledge and provides a basis of understanding on which to build. Aside from the benefit to the student, there may even be a benefit to the employer!"

Information about students available may be obtained from either Professor Lewis or Professor Donald J. Belcher, Lincoln Hall, Ithaca.

Student Council Changes

STUDENT COUNCIL has labored and brought forth a new organization. Seeking to strengthen student self-government, the Council appointed a constitutional revision committee, with Richard L. O'Connell '47 of Concord, Mass., as chairman. The committee's proposals were accepted by the Council with but one dissenting vote, and were ratified, five to one, by student in a postcard referendum.

The new Council will be composed of the president and secretary of the men's Classes; the four women's Class presidents; the presidents of WSGA, Willard Straight Hall, CURW, and the Pan-Hellenic, Interfraternity, Independent, and Ag-Domecon Councils; the editor of The Sun without vote; and three members elected by all students plus one additional for each 500 votes cast.

Campus organizations have been represented on previous Student Councils, but this feature was abandoned during the war as undemocratic, leaving the entire Council membership to be decided by the electorate. Under the new constitution, Class officers form the nucleus of the elected membership, thus reversing a trend which began in 1915 when the first Student Council was formed "to cure the evils of Class politics." After languishing for thirty-two years, strong undergraduate Class organizations are again in favor.

New constitutional provision for proportional representation caused some trouble. The Council, unable to understand the mechanism of PR, rejected it in favor of a straight plurality system. Professor Robert E. Cushman, Government, called in as the Council's consultant, declared that this action violated the new constitution, and with Professor Elias Huzar, Government, explained the PR "single transferable vote system" to the Council's satisfaction.

The big election was preceded by unusual political activity. Fifty-two candidates were duly nominated by petition, the number being subsequently reduced by withdrawals to forty-five. Fraternity coalitions were banned, but the new Independent Council announced its support of thirteen candidates, seven of whom were elected. Individual campaign expenses were limited to $25, with free time donated by the Radio Guild. Goldwin Smith and other halls of learning were swamped as never before with posters. 8,500 eligible voters were variously exhorted: "Vote Early and Often for Honest Bill O'Brien"; "A Vote for Stu Is a Vote for You"; "Don't Be a Square, Vote for Claire"; "Everyone's Support'n Nancy Horton"; "Who Knows?? Brown Knows!!" Platforms and pictures of the candidates were printed in The Sun, along with dozens of paid ads. Notable among the "planks" were the candidates' advocacy of frequent Class gatherings.

May 15 was election day. Only 2,178 votes were cast, which put seven representatives-at-large on next year's Council: Richard J. Keegan '46 of New Haven, Conn., Ronald L. Hailparn '47 of Rockville Centre, Joan F. Kaplan '48 of New York City, Robert A. Ornitz '45 of Pittsburgh, Pa., Jacob Sheinkman '49 of New York City, Patricia J. Kerwin '48 of West Chester, Pa., and William J. O'Brien '45 of Buffalo. Class officers, elected by plurality vote, are John N. Cullen '48 of Chicago, Ill., president, and Christus J. Larios '48 of Kingston, secretary of next year's Senior Class; Daniel C. McCarthy, Jr. '46 of Evanston, Ill., president, and Ronald E. Lindy '46 of Newark, N. J., secretary of the Junior Class; Gordon Gardiner '50 of Ridgewood, N. J., president, and Thomas S. Morse '50 of Richmond, Mass., secretary of the Sophomore Class. Freshman officers will be elected next fall. Women's Class officers will be elected at Class meetings.

WHO KNOWS ITS ORIGIN?

This Cornell stein was formerly owned by the late Professor Edward L. Nichols '75, Physics; is now the prized possession of Professor Howard B. Adelmann '20, Zoology. It is of pottery, with a metal cover and owl ornament, the sides molded to form the backbones of books; colored gold and brown. The books are labelled as those written by early members of the Faculty, the most recent The Biology of Ferns by George F. Atkinson '85, which was published in 1894. The Cornell Seal on the cover is gold and the base and handle are red. The stein is stamped on the bottom "1/2 liter" and "Made in Germany" by Vielleroy & Buch, Mettlach. If any Cornellian knows the history of this stein, the Alumni News would like it.

Crews Win, Lose

THE Varsity crew, victor over Harvard in the Spring Day regatta on Cayuga Lake May 10, bowed to the Crimson eight and to the US Naval Academy in the second annual sprint regatta of the Eastern Association of Rowing Colleges, on Carnegie Lake at Princeton, N. J., May 17.

Cornell's victory over Harvard on Cayuga was over a two-mile course along the west shore, starting at the Hog Hole and rowing north to finish off the Ithaca Yacht Club dock. Ideal weather brought out large crowds for the regatta and for baseball, track, lacrosse, tennis, and golf that day.

At Lake Carnegie, ten varsity, ten junior-varsity, and eight freshman crews rowed 2,000 meters, the Olympic distance (a rough equivalent of the Henley distance of a mile and five-sixteenths). The Cornell Varsity won its preliminary heat from Pennsylvania and Rutgers. In the final, Cornell took the early lead, but could not hold it. Harvard won by two lengths over the Naval Academy, with Cornell another length-and-a-half astern. The times: Harvard 6:05, Naval Academy 6:12.4, Cornell 6:17.

Cornell Wins on Cayuga

In the Varsity race on Cayuga Lake, Cornell defeated Harvard by one and one-quarter lengths, with Wisconsin, now coached by Norman Sonju, former assistant coach at Cornell, five lengths back in third place, and Syracuse a distant fourth. The times: Cornell 10:58, Harvard 11:03.4, Wisconsin 11:19.2, Syracuse 11:39.6.

Harvard won the junior varsity race on Cayuga by one and one-quarter lengths over Cornell, with Syracuse third, six lengths back. Syracuse captured the Freshman race, by the same margin, from Cornell. All races were at two miles. The times: Junior Varsity, Harvard 11:29, Cornell 11:33, Syracuse 11:55; Freshman, Syracuse 11:53, Cornell 11:57.

Referee of the regatta was Norman G. Stagg '26, former Varsity oarsman.

At Princeton, Cornell's Junior Varsity boat failed to qualify for the final, placing third behind Harvard and Rutgers. Harvard went on to win the final from Pennsylvania and Princeton. Cornell was not entered in the Freshman race.

Two other Cornell crews were in action May 17. The 150-pound Varsity was fifth in a field of seven on the Charles River at Boston, Mass., with Harvard winning the Joseph Wright Trophy over the Henley distance in 6:54. The order of finish: Harvard, Princeton, Yale, Pennsylvania, Cornell, MIT, and Columbia. Princeton won the 150-pound freshman race in 6:58, with Harvard second, trailed by Yale, Cornell, Columbia, and MIT. Cornell did not compete in the lightweight junior varsity race.

Win, Lose at Baseball

BASEBALL team picked up four victories in mid-May, two of them in the Eastern Intercollegiate League, but could not pull out of the circuit cellar.

Playing in two doubleheaders, Cornell defeated Columbia, 4-1, and then lost, 2-3, on Hoy Field, Spring Day. At Hanover, N. H., May 17, Cornell lost, 4-5, then defeated Dartmouth, 7-3. Syracuse was beaten twice in single games, 9-5 at Syracuse May 12, and 4-3 on Hoy Field May 21.

In the four League games, Cornell raised its team batting average to .305 to lead the League as of May 17. Thomas R. Turner '50 pitched a four-hitter in the 4-1 win over Columbia, but was beaten in the first game against Dartmouth, giving six hits in five innings. Kenneth P. Battles '48, the losing pitcher in the second Columbia game, turned in a five-hitter in the win over Dartmouth.

James F. Troutner '48, the converted infielder, also gave only five hits in Cornell's 9-5 win over Syracuse. Two Freshman pitchers, Eugene J. Hummer, Jr. '50 and Albert C. Neimeth '50, teamed in another five-hitter in the 3-2 victory over Syracuse. Neimeth, a civilian Freshman, is not eligible for League games.

The League standing after games of May 17:

	W	L	PC
Yale	4	1	.800
Harvard	5	3	.625
Pennsylvania	5	4	.556
Columbia	6	5	.545
Princeton	4	4	.500
Dartmouth	3	7	.300
Cornell	2	5	.286

Three Cornell batters were in the League's top six that date: Frank McArthur '48, center fielder, with .409; William C. Arrison '48, left fielder, with .400; and John Cordes '47, shortstop, with .389.

Illness kept Coach Mose P. Quinn home when the team went to Hanover. Assistant Coach Royner C. Greene was in charge.

In losing, 8-9, to Colgate's junior varsity at Hamilton May 17, the Junior Varsity nine dropped its first decision in five games. Earlier, it had won three and tied one.

Three Track Meets

TRACK team won two dual meets on Schoellkopf Field Spring Day, with three colleges competing in the same events. Cornell won from Princeton, 69-65 (one third place was not scored), and from Syracuse, 71½-63½. Princeton and Syracuse did not compete against each other.

A week later, Cornell scored 13½ points to place eighth in the Nonagonal Games at Cambridge, Mass. The scores: Harvard 48, US Naval Academy 43½, US Military Academy 34½, Pennsylvania 29½, Yale 24½, Columbia 19, Princeton 16, Cornell 13½, Dartmouth 12½.

William S. Owen '49 took first place at Cambridge by clearing 22 feet 11½ inches in the broad jump. The 440-yard relay team of Richard A. McCall '48, Richard H. Lustberg '49, Hilary H. Micou '46, and Bernard Bernstein '48 finished third. John L. Haughwout '44 shared in a three-way tie for third place in the pole vault. John E. Servis '49 placed fourth in the discus throw, and Frederick K. Hilton '50 and John A. Mitchell, Jr. '46, joined in an eight-way tie for fifth place in the high jump.

In the dual meets Spring Day, Cornell won through superior strength in the field events. Against Princeton, Cornell won only two track events: McCall in the 220 in 0:22.8 and Donald C. Young '48 in the two-mile in 10:26.3. It was the same story against Syracuse, with McCall winning the 220 and John W. Laibe '51 the 220-yard low hurdles. Owen won the broad jump, Haughwout the pole vault, Robert W. Bartholomay '45 the hammer throw, and Servis the discus throw in both competitions.

Tennis Team Wins

TENNIS team won two Eastern Intercollegiate Tennis Association matches in mid-May, sharing undefeated honors in the League with Yale. Yale has won five matches, Cornell three.

Cornell defeated Penn State, 8-1, in a non-League encounter at State College, May 6, then returned to the Cascadilla Courts to defeat the US Military Academy, 7-2, on Spring Day and the Naval Academy by the same score, May 17.

In the Army and Navy matches, Richard Savitt '50, John E. Riihiluoma '50, Co-captain Hollis D. Young '46, Richard N. Goldstein '49, and John N. Penn '49 each won their singles matches. Penn and Edward N. Gilbert '49 won in doubles in both matches.

Lacrosse Breaks Even

LACROSSE team broke even in two games, losing to Hobart, 2-7, on Alumni Field Spring Day and defeating Pennsylvania, 7-6, on Schoellkopf Field May 17. The Junior Varsity team dropped a 6-7 decision to Cortland State Teachers on Alumni Field May 19.

Joseph B. Allen '49, second defense, and William L. Gaines '46, first attack, each scored 2 goals against Pennsylvania.

Because such a large crowd watched the Spring Day game with Hobart, despite the many other athletic attractions that day, the Pennsylvania game was switched to Schoellkopf Field to provide seats for the spectators.

Golfers Slip

GOLF team, undefeated in its first three matches, lost a heart-breaker to Penn State, 4-5, in the qualifying round of the Eastern Intercollegiate Golf Association championships on the University course May 9.

Cornell, Penn State, the Military Academy, and Pittsburgh played a round-robin, finishing May 10. After the loss to Penn State, Cornell came back to shut out the other two teams, 9-0 each. Cornell thus accumulated 22 points in winning two and losing one. Penn State, however, won its three matches, adding 5-4 and 6-3 victories over the Military Academy and Pittsburgh, respectively, after its 5-4 conquest of Cornell to win the qualifying round. Penn State's point total was only 16.

Princeton, which lost the championship last year to Cornell by a single stroke in medal play, took the 1947 title at the Atlantic City (N. J.) Country Club, May 17, defeating the Naval Academy in the final round.

In the qualifying tournament, William D. P. Carey, Jr. '47, John L. Sheary '48, and Elwyn H. Frend '49 each won all three of their singles matches.

In a non-League match at Drumlin's Country Club May 21, Syracuse defeated Cornell, 6-3, to earn a split in the home-and-home series. Stevenson of Syracuse, former New York State amateur champion, handed Carey his first defeat of the season, 4 and 2.

Carey and Sheary will be entered in the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship matches at Ann Arbor, Mich., June 30.

For the Record

Invitations to row in the Poughkeepsie regatta June 21 have been accepted for the varsity crews of Princeton, Rutgers, Wisconsin, California, Washington and MIT. These six guest crews will row with the five members of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association, Cornell, Columbia, US Naval Academy, Pennsylvania, and Syracuse. Finish line of the new three-mile course will be above the new bridge at Poughkeepsie, thus bringing the lanes closer to the shore and the observation train than was possible when they had to go through the bridge spans.

Varsity crew will row on Lake Washington at Seattle, June 28, defending the international 2,000-meter championship which Cornell won there last June. Ten or twelve crews are expected to compete, including California, Columbia, Harvard, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Rutgers, Washington, and Wisconsin.

John F. Moakley, track coach, was elected president of the Ivy League Track Coaches' Association at the Nonagonal Games at Cambridge, May 17.

Robert J. Kane '34, Director of Physical Education and Athletics, has been named to the supplies and equipment committee of the US Olympic Committee.

Eric Dudley Dies

ERIC DUDLEY, director of the Glee Club for more than twenty years and of the First Presbyterian Church choir ever since he came to Ithaca in 1903, died May 21, 1947, in Memorial Hospital. He went to the hospital for an appendix operation; was seventy-four years old.

The English-born Dudleys, newly married, came to this country in 1903 with the Sir Charles Hawtrey production, "A Message from Mars," for which Dudley was musical director. He was a graduate of the Royal Academy of Music in London, which later named him an associate and its US examiner. Dudley left the theatrical company to become musical director and head of the vocal department at the Ithaca Conservatory of Music, now Ithaca College. Both of them soon became soloists in the Sage Chapel Choir. In 1917, Dudley was appointed by the War Department as director of music at Camp Upton. Upon the resignation of the late Hollis E. Dann in 1921, he became director of the University Glee Club. Mrs. Dudley had founded the Women's Glee Club in 1920. Both were voted the title of Director Emeritus when they retired in 1942. Since then, Dudley had continued with the Music Department as a teacher of singing. His last public appearance was at the Waldorf Astoria in New York City, February 17, when he led the singing of the "Alma Mater" at the University's Nobel Prize dinner. He was a charter member of the Ithaca Rotary Club and a longtime member of the Savage Club of Ithaca. Mrs. Dudley lives at 609 East State Street. They had no children.

Eric Dudley (left), with one of his successful pupils, Arthur Kent '28 of the Metropolitan Opera Company, who returned to Ithaca in 1940 to sing in the annual spring concert of the Glee Club.

Pittsburgh Women Meet

CORNELL Women's Club of Pittsburgh, Pa., met for dinner May 2 at the University Club, with Mrs. Charles F. Kells (Mary Klages) '24, president of the Club, presiding. Assistant Alumni Secretary Pauline J. Schmid '25 brought news of the Campus.

Glee Clubs Sing

SPRING concert of the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs, May 22 in Bailey Hall, was dedicated to the late Eric Dudley, who directed many of them in years past.

A small audience, which filled but a third of the auditorium, was treated to a varied program sung by sixty-five members of the men's group, directed by Thomas B. Tracy '31, and ninety women led by Mrs. Don Price. Most original numbers were "The Spirit of '76," with a costumed fife and drum corps, and "Oh, Susanna," accompanied by four girls in blackface, strumming banjos. Following the intermission, Theta Delta Chi's interfraternity champion chorus, led by Sidney T. Cox '43 of Nashua, N. H., rendered "Tales of Old Cornell" and their own "Stars Ablaze." The fraternity had won over seventeen other entrants, with Sigma Chi's "Sweetheart" accorded second place by judges Tracy, Allan H. Treman '21, and R. Selden Brewer '40.

Award National Scholarships To Entering Students

TWENTY-FIVE young men and women from fourteen States and the District of Columbia who will enter the University next fall as members of the Class of '51 have been awarded Cornell National Scholarships. They were selected from among 616 applicants to receive up to $600 a year and free tuition for their entire undergraduate courses, on the basis not only of their scholastic grades but for demonstrated leadership and promise of accomplishment as Cornellians.

After preliminary screening of the applications from every State but Alabama, Arizona, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Montana, Nevada, North Dakota, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Utah, Wisconsin, and Wyoming, fifty-six finalists were interviewed by Cornellians in their own districts and the interviewers' reports were sent to the final selection committee in Ithaca. Thirty-two boys were interviewed by alumni, of whom those outside of New York State also function for the McMullen Regional Scholarships in Engineering; and twenty-four girls, by alumnae committees appointed by the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs.

Chairmen of the men's committees are Chester T. Reed '03, Worcester, Mass.; Prentice Cushing '05, Albany; John S. Gorrell '05, Washington, D. C.; Edward T. Foote '06, Milwaukee, Wis.; Otto E. Hilmer '07, Cincinnati, Ohio; John W. Holt '08, Cleveland, Ohio; Alfred H. Hutchinson '09, Chicago, Ill.; H. Halsey Miller '11, Buffalo; Donald P. Beardsley '13, Philadelphia, Pa.; Paul O. Reyneau '13, New York City; Matthew Carey '15, Detroit, Mich.; Edward H. Carman, Jr. '16, Baltimore, Md.; R. Harris Cobb '16, St. Louis, Mo.; William H. Hill '22, Trenton, N. J.; Darwin F. Carrell '23, Pittsburgh, Pa.; William A. Schreyer '23, Princeton, N. J.; L. Bartlett Shapleigh '24, Cincinnati, Ohio; A. Bradford Reed '27, Worcester, Mass.; Norbert O. Fratt '28, Seattle, Wash.; James L. Paxton, Jr. '30, Omaha, Neb.; Bonham Campbell '36, Deep Springs, Cal.; and Edward E. Hughes II '38, Altoona, Pa. Women's committee chairmen were Bertha Griffin '09, Inglewood, Cal.; Mrs. Helen Lester Page '09, Forty-Fort, Pa.; Mrs. Russell T. Kerby (Regina Brunner) '15, Summit, N. J.; Mrs. Shurly R. Irish (Elizabeth Fisher) '17, Webster Groves, Mo.; Mrs. Robert C. Osborn (Agda Swenson) '20, Ithaca; Mrs. James W. Kideney (Isabel Houck) '22, Buffalo; Mrs. William F. Stotz (Anna Hoehler)

'23, Philadelphia, Pa.; Genevieve E. Bazinet '25, Hudson Falls; Mrs. Thomas A. Scanlan, Jr. (Florence Burtis) '26, New Haven, Conn.; Mrs. Clarence S. Luitwieler (Sarah Holcomb) '27, Winchester, Mass.; and Mrs. Arthur McFarlin (Muriel Lamb) '27, Ruxton, Md.

Final selections were made by a committee of which President Edmund E. Day is chairman, with George R. Pfann '24 from the Board of Trustees; Mrs. Osborn representing the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs; Elbert P. Tuttle '18, president of the Cornell Alumni Association; University Secretary Edward K. Graham, PhD '38; and Director of Admissions Herbert H. Williams '25.

Winners of the National Scholarships include nineteen men and six women. Eighteen of them prepared for college in public schools; the others come from Chadwick School, Rolling Hills, Cal.; Tower Hill School, Wilmington, Del.; Taft School, Watertown, Conn.; Valley Forge Military Academy, Wayne, Pa.; Englewood, N. J., School for Boys; Cranbrook School, Bloomfield Hills, Mich.; and Deep Springs, Cal., School. Besides ranking high in scholarship, they are officers of student government, editors and managers of school papers and yearbooks, and leaders in music, dramatics, and varied sports. Thirteen of the Scholarship winners will enter Arts and Sciences, eleven will enter Engineering, and one, Agriculture. Four are children of alumni.

The winners are James B. Casey, son of James V. Casey '21 of Mohawk; Richard Chittenden, North Edmonds, Wash.; Walter B. Davis, Kensington, Md.; Harrison P. Efferth, Jr., Lakewood, Ohio; Robert E. Fitzner, Flossmoor, Ill.; Calvin W. Gage, Minneapolis, Minn.; Charles D. Graham, Jr., Dayton, Ohio; Jane M. Haskins, daughter of Stuart C. Haskins '25 and Mrs. Haskins (Margaret Pritchard) '25, Wollaston, Mass.; Louis P. Howland, Watertown, Conn.; Katherine S. Kirk, Webster Groves, Mo.; William C. McNeal, Altoona, Pa.; Edith F. Martin, Lynbrook; Robert C. Mealey, Malverne; Walter E. Michaels, Swoyerville, Pa.; John M. Morgan, Livingston, N. J.; George A. Myers, Englewood, N. J.; Thomas O. Nuttle, Baltimore, Md.; Susan L. Pardee, Catonsville, Md.; Jeanne A. Quinlin, daughter of Frank J. Quinlin '21 and Mrs. Quinlin (Ruth Williams), AM '21, San Pedro, Cal.; Richard D. Rippe, son of the late William F. Rippe '22 and step-son of Walker L. Cisler '22, Grosse Pointe, Mich.; Theodore D. Schultz, Glencoe, Ill.; Keith M. Seegmiller, Washington, D. C.; William W. Shewman, Webster Groves, Mo.; Robert E. Shope, Kingston, N. J.; and Carolyn S. Thelander, Wilmington, Del.

Time Was . . .

Twenty Years Ago

June, 1927—"In recent years, undergraduate elections have become so pure, so public spirited, and so devoid of self-interest that nobody votes. Gone are the days when sweating campaign managers smoked dazed grinds from Heustis Street attics and drove them to the polls in hired hacks.

"Consequently, we were shocked to be told last week that the recent elections to the Student Council had not been entirely on the up-and-up and would have to be repeated. Here and there a boy had been sufficiently interested to vote for his buddy and had done it again and again and again—like the lady from Maine.

"While this news shocked us, it also reinforced our placid faith in the inevitableness of human nature. Those hack rides got the grind out in the air and brought it home to him that he belonged to the Class. Class politics organized the Class. They discovered and trained the true leaders. Nothing has yet been found to take the place of Class politics as an agency to mould 5,000 undergraduates into an effective unit."—R.B. in Sport Stuff.

DRAMATIC CLUB 'TRY-OUT' Wesp
Jean M. Thomas 50, daughter of Ray L. Thomas '27 of Fairview, Ohio, who won a National Scholarship to Arts and Sciences last fall, "tries out" for the Dramatic Club with Professor Walter H. Stainton '19, Speech and Drama (foreground), as stagehands prepare the set for "The Damask Cheek" in the Willard Straight Theater.

Fifteen Years Ago

June, 1932—"Spring comes to Ithaca with a sound of saxophones. The Drill Hall and Willard Straight are filled with dancing feet. From open fraternity windows floats the sweet agony of the modern band, with an undercurrent of tom-toms. Six house parties were held over the week end, bringing bliss to the participants and almost equal content to those who stayed home and went to bed.

"The first Senior singing of the year bathed the Campus in melody on Sunday evening. It was a lovely spring evening; the earth had ceased to exhale its winter chill; the mosquitoes were still too young to attend. The Seniors looked very beautiful in their blazers; their gay music contained just the proper hint of the melancholy of near farewells and the end of youth."—M.G.B. '14

Rochester Active

TRUSTEE Frank E. Gannett '98 addressed the luncheon meeting of the Cornell Club of Rochester, May 14 at the Powers Hotel. Club members, with guests from the Cornell Women's Club of Rochester, the Lions Club, and the Sons of the American Revolution, heard him speak on "What About America's Future?"

May 7, at a smoker at the Hotel Rochester, Basketball Coach Royner C. Greene spoke to sixty-five members of the Club, and showed movies of the Varsity games with Yale and Pennsylvania. Kenneth G. Haxton '10, president of the Club, presided.

Speaker at the April 30 luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce building was Judge Arthur L. Wilder '06; his topic, "The Court: Friend or Foe?"

Medical Alumni Gather

MEDICAL COLLEGE Alumni Association held its forty-ninth annual Alumni Day, March 13. Visiting graduates attended morning clinics to gain a close-up of the College in action. Nearly 200 alumni and Faculty members were guests of the New York Hospital at luncheon in the Nurses' Residence, which was followed by the annual business meeting of the Association.

Dr. Willis M. Weeden '16 was elected president and thus a director of the Cornell Alumni Association. New vice-president is Dr. William D. Studenbord '31, and Drs. Paul Reznikoff '20 and Mary M. Crawford '04 were re-elected as treasurer and secretary. Directors are Drs. Connie M. Guion '17, Horace S. Baldwin '21, Preston A. Wade '22, S. Bernard Wortis '27, Katharine Butler '35, and Thomas P. Almy '35.

That evening, in the grand ballroom of the Roosevelt Hotel, 627 alumni and their guests attended the annual banquet. They were addressed by President Edmund E. Day, Dean Joseph C. Hinsey, and Dr. Guion, retiring president of the Association, who announced a campaign to raise funds for a student residence and recreation center, to be located near the Medical Center on the East River, "as a gift to the Medical College on her Fiftieth Anniversary" next year. The committee in charge of the campaign is headed by Dr. Wade and includes University Trustees Neal D. Becker '05 and Victor Emanuel '19.

From Far Below...

By Bob Bliss '30

CHARLIE BLAIR tells us that the Cornell Club of New York now has a chaplain: the Rev. W. Harold Weigle, DD, better known as "Pete" Weigle '18, Beta. Pete is rector of one of the most noteworthy churches in the country, and probably the world, for that matter: historic St. Paul's at Eastchester, Mount Vernon. St. Paul's was consecrated in 1665, and in case you've forgotten is a national shrine of the Bill of Rights, so designated by the Government in 1943.

It is in Pete's church every December 15 that the Society of the National Shrine of the Bill of Rights venerates the memory of John Peter Zenger, who made a good bit of copy on the village green before the church. It was here that the "Great Election of 1733" which led to his trial was held. Zenger's brilliant defense by Andrew Hamilton and acquittal helped to establish the freedom of the press.

Pete Weigle, if you'll pardon our non-clerical diction, is quite a guy. After Cornell, he taught agriculture at the University of Nanking, China; escaped civil wars and banditry in a 450-mile junk trip from the interior. Ordained to the priesthood in Shanghai, he had sandwiched in a couple of years in the Chinese department at Columbia University when he came out of China finally in 1928 and served as chaplain of the Episcopal Actors Guild of the Little Church Around the Corner, New York. Once he blessed a coach-and-four in front of the Waldorf-Astoria, said coach being toolled by a good lady who was out to beat the record from New York to Atlantic City. She lowered the twenty-five-year mark by two hours. Later her coach, named "Valiant," showed up at St. Paul's in a Descendants' Day pageant. Our chaplain never overlooks an angle!

The saga of rejuvenation that took place at St. Paul's after Weigle went to Mount Vernon in 1929 reads like a fairy tale. There were four parishioners sitting in the broken pews which were littered with fallen plaques and decorations, on that first Sunday—nice old ladies.

Mustering his flair for the dramatic, the new rector called on all the descendants of the founders to come to his aid. Came Morgans, Rhinelanders, Pinckneys, Pells, Bartows, and Sara Delano Roosevelt who became his Lady Bountiful, taking the chair of the restoration committee. When the church was restored, with its Colonial box-pews and high pulpit, Franklin Roosevelt, then New York's Governor, came and occupied the pew of his vestryman progenitor, Jacobus. A nation-wide committee had supported Pete's program of restoration.

The 200th anniversary of the founding of Freedom of the Press was celebrated there in 1933; and the Bill of Rights group is carrying on an active program of education throughout the country.

Pete finds time for many extra-curricular activities, among which a herd of Holsteins which won an agricultural "A" award for production, rates high. He has a son, Bill, at Cornell who was a C-47 pilot, and a daughter, Elizabeth, who was with the Red Cross in the South Pacific. Pete found time recently to make over the parish house into a home for a veteran, doing some of the painting himself, in dungarees.

That's our Club chaplain!

Dancers Entertain

DANCE Club presented its ninth annual spring concert, May 17, before a full house in the Willard Straight Theater.

From the "Opening Dance" by May Atherton, director of the group; her fellow instructor in women's Physical Education, Mrs. Judith Kobrin Brown '44; and Linda J. Rannells '48 of New York City, president of the Club, the program was uniformly excellent, the dancers in good form, and the costumes striking. Among the more effective dancers were Carol B. Shapiro '47 of Havana, Cuba, Gertrude E. Rivers '47, daughter of W. Napoleon Rivers, PhD '32 and Gertrude Burroughs Rivers, PhD '39, of Washington, D. C., Alta Ann Turner '50, National Scholar from Verona, N. J., and Frances P. Eagan '26, secretary to President Edmund E. Day (who attended).

Explanation

AFTER 294 consecutive and welcome appearances since it started in the ALUMNI NEWS ten years ago, this is the first time that the familiar and popular "Now, In My Time!" by Romeyn Berry '04 has been missing from these pages.

At the time of this writing, our columnist was in Ithaca Memorial Hospital, where he underwent an operation just a few days after he turned in his "copy" for our last issue. Rym's many friends and constant readers will be pleased to learn that he is sufficiently on the way to recovery to be already at work on a very special column for our June 15 issue, which will be out in time for Class Reunions in Ithaca.

Academic Delegates

CORNELLIANS have represented the University at five more academic celebrations at sister colleges. Dean Gilmore D. Clarke '13, Architecture, was the official Cornell delegate at a convocation commemorating the 100th anniversary of CCNY, May 7 in New York City.

Representing Cornell at the inauguration of Lyndon O. Brown as president of Knox College, May 12, was Norwood G. Wright '28. Professor William L. Everitt '20, chairman of electrical engineering at the University of Illinois, was the Cornell delegate at the installation May 16 of George D. Stoddard, former University Trustee, as president of Illinois.

May 17, Ralph S. Nanz '12, professor of biology at Carroll College, Waukesha, Wis., represented Cornell at the inauguration of President Nelson V. Russell there, and O. Pomeroy Robinson, Jr. '15, at the inauguration of Rosemary Park as president of Connecticut College for Women, New London.

Maryland Entertains

CORNELL Club of Maryland entertained Coach George Hall and members of his golf team at a smoker April 11 at the University Club in Baltimore. About fifty persons were present. "The evening was spent in cards, fat-chewing in general, elbow-bending by most, and thorough enjoyment by all." Chairman of the smoker was C. Stewart Fiske '21.

Club Gathers Girls

CORNELL Women's Club of Cortland County entertained thirty-two high school girls at tea, April 1 at the YWCA. Mary R. McCall '41, president of the Club, introduced Assistant Alumni Secretary Pauline J. Schmid '25, who spoke about the University and showed colored slides of the Campus, and Margaret C. Hassan '32, assistant to the Director of Admissions, who with Miss Schmid answered questions from floor.

Heermans Prize Plays

DRAMATIC Club presented three Heermans Prize plays in the Willard Straight Theater, May 23-4.

"While the Moon Grows Cold" won a special prize in 1946 for Walter Scheinman '44. A rustic comedy despite its title, it was acted unevenly.

"Fair Day Thursday" won first prize of $100 for Patricia A. Colbert '44 in 1943. The brittle, Noel Cowardian drama was favored with a handsome set (the bar of a penthouse) and accomplished performances by John V. Foy '44 of Salamanca, as a bourbon-drinking poet, and Barbara M. Fischer '48 of Holliston, Mass., as mistress to the father of the man she loves.

"The Woman in Bed," by Frederick M. Shelley III '42, a first prize winner in 1943, recounts an episode in the career of the amazing Madame Jumel. The rousing comedy was well acted by Henry R. Erle '50 of New York City, as cozened Andre Jumel; Ted Levine '49 of New York City, as Ren Dow, a travelling preacher of hellfire and damnation; and James R.

Teple '50 of Rochester, as the worried manager of a Saratoga Springs hotel.

Ithaca: Summer Session opens

On The Campus and Down the Hill

Model UN climaxed a ten-week study and discussion program with three plenary sessions of its General Assembly, in Willard Straight Memorial Room and the moot court room of Myron Taylor Hall. Although poorly attended, the sessions were marked by spirited discussion. Committees presented their reports: the Security Council's atomic energy report was accepted unanimously, prohibiting the use of atomic weapons and asking destruction of bomb stockpiles; loans were voted to Denmark, Belgium, and Yugoslavia; and the touchy Greek and Palestine issues were tabled for future reference.

Discussion of "The Undergraduate's Role in University Life," part of Princeton University's Bicentennial Conference, was attended last month by two delegates from Cornell, appointed by the Student Council: Richard A. Paddock '46 of Auburn and Thomas S. Morse '50 of Richmond, Mass.

Cheerleading squad, criticized of late, has reorganized. Forty-five students competed for twelve posts, which were decided May 1 by the Student Council's spirit and traditions committee.

Mortar Board, honoring women with the highest scholastic averages in each College, has announced that Shirley A. Ogren '47 of Trenton, N. J., a Senior in Mechanical Engineering and daughter of the late Carl F. Ogren '17, tops all women in the University with an average of 93.58. In second place, with a 90.65 average, is Lois A. Bergen '49 of East Williston, Arts and Sciences.

Monthly coffee hours were instituted by the student association of the School of Business and Public Administration, April 3, when Professor Alpheus W. Smith '19, Industrial and Labor Relations, discussed the "Unbalance of American Society."

New WSGA president is Sylvia N. Kilbourne '48 of Ridgewood, N. J. (daughter of Edwin I. Kilbourne '17 and Elizabeth Alward Kilbourne '18); first vice-president, Matilda G. Norfleet '48 of Bethesda, Md. (daughter of Carrie Mason Norfleet '11); second vice-president, Helen M. Corbett '48 of Minneapolis, Minn. (daughter of Laurence W. Corbett '24 and Helen Ives Corbett '23, granddaughter of the late Lee C. Corbett '90); secretary, Margaret E. Fleming '48 of Niagara Falls; treasurer, Priscilla A. Karb '48 of Framingham, Mass.; and chairman of activities, Louise VanNederynen '48 of Castleton-on-Hudson. President-elect Kilbourne and her predecessor, Arlie Williamson '47 of Staten Island, attended the convention of the International Association of Women Students at the University of Minnesota.

Play Day, arranged by the Women's Athletic Association, saw Cornell women defeat teams from Ithaca College, Cortland State Teachers College, and William Smith in baseball, tennis, and archery. WAA has elected Barbara Unz '48 of Darien, Conn., president; Peggy A. Jack '49 of Maplewood, N. J., vice-president; and Nan Sumner '48 of Georgetown, Conn., secretary-treasurer; and presented C's to Miss Unz, Phyllis Dean '47 of Washington, D. C., Fent J. Hoffman '47 of Buffalo, Barbara J. Hume '47 of West Darby, Pa., Sara L. MacLeod '49 of Ardsley, Helen J. Palmer '48 of Ithaca, Barbara Sherlock '48 of Sharpsville, Pa., and Dorothy B. Taylor '49 of Schenectady.

Delegates from eighteen New York State colleges met in Willard Straight Hall last month to consider proposals they wish to have discussed at the constitutional convention of the National Students Organization, scheduled at the University of Wisconsin this summer.

Sixteen New York State colleges sent representatives to the model legislative assembly at Albany, May 16 and 17. Cornell delegates were Manfred R. Buxbaum '50 of Canandaigua, Milton Eisenberg '49 of Brooklyn, and Lawrence Greenapple '50 and Eve L. Weinschenker '50 of New York City. Professor C. C. Arnold, Speech, Faculty adviser of the Debate Association, was conference parliamentarian.

Varsity chess team defeated the University of Rochester, 3-2, and Syracuse, 4-3, to end their season unbeaten.

SENIOR CLASS women were invited by Mrs. Day to "at homes" at the President's House the afternoons of May 24 and 25. Following longstanding custom, they were given corsages by their Sophomore Class "grand-daughters" at a tea in Willard Straight Hall, May 23.

Discussion of the desirability of Communism in America was sponsored by the Marxist Discussion Group, May 21. The organization's president, Robert W. Fogel '48 of New York City, former president of AYD, argued for the proposition, stressing the economic inequalities of the capitalist system. John P. Roche, Grad, of Garden City, president of the Student League for Industrial Democracy, declared that a Communist government "would establish a despotism which would make the present capitalist system, with its admitted inequalities, seem a Utopia."

Prizes: Corson French Prize, established in 1902 by Professor Hiram Corson in memory of his wife and consisting of a gold medal or $50, has been awarded to Harry G. Edwards, Grad, of Cambridge, England, for his essay on "Poe in France." Gloria F. Hunter '47 of Maspeth won the Courant Prize of $40 for having the best four-year record in French; the Prize was established in 1923 in memory of Juliette M. Courant '16. Charles L. Pack Forestry Prize of $40 went to Helen B. Ross, Grad, of Myerstown, Pa., for her essay on fire prevention.

Board of Army officers meets at the University June 2, to examine candidates applying for commissions in the Regular Army under current regulations of the War Department. Commissions are offered to former officers of any branch of the armed forces who left the service to complete their education, either as undergraduates or graduate students, and who will receive first degrees on or before July 15, 1947.

Unique rapport exists between Faculty and students in the School of Industrial and Labor Relations. Four students, representing each Class, meet with the resident Faculty to discuss changes in curriculum. An honor system proposed by the students was accepted by the Faculty on the condition that at least three-quarters of the students signify approval by mail referendum. Finally, the students and Faculty exchange criticism in "gripe sessions." Professor Maurice F. Neufeld, for instance, called the studentry "very dear, but very queer," decried their lack of classroom discipline and consciousness of dress and manners. On the other hand, he cited the appearance of "the two best verses from Omar Khayam" in the washroom, instead of "the ordinary stuff."

The Faculty

President Edmund E. Day addressed the National Education Association, May 2 in Washington, D. C. He described the role of science in the atomic era and urged the formation of a National Science Foundation.

National Academy of Sciences elected to membership April 30 Professor Robert F. Bacher, Physics, on leave as scientific member of the US Atomic Energy Commission. Professor Bacher's election brings the number of Cornellian members of the Academy to thirty.

Dean S. C. Hollister, Engineering, flew to Fort Knox, Ky., May 6 at the invitation of Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson to observe the Army's universal military training program now in operation on an experimental basis. Formerly chairman of the American Society of Engineering Education committee to study universal military training and now a member of its committee for national defense, Dean Hollister is working on a plan to relate universal military training and engineering education.

Dean Cornelis W. de Kiewiet, Arts and Sciences, has been appointed to the advisory board of the Watumull Foundation. The Foundation awards fellowships for graduate and post-doctoral study in the United States, and arranges for visiting professorships and lectureships in the field of Indic studies.

Dean Elizabeth Lee Vincent, Home Economics, spoke on "The Influence of the Family on Social Change," May 3 at Michigan State College in East Lansing, during observance of the fiftieth anniversary of home economics at that institution. May 7, she gave a talk on "Young People and Their Needs" at the spring conference of College Teachers of Textiles and Clothing of the Eastern Region, in Washington, D. C.

Egon Petri, formerly University Pianist-in-residence, will teach next year at Mills College in Oakland, Cal. Before leaving for California, he gave a farewell concert in Ithaca, May 13. Willard Straight Memorial Room was packed with an enthusiastic and sincerely devoted audience which won three encores with its great applause.

Provost Arthur S. Adams discussed the role of the university in providing a workshop for the advancement of the medical and social sciences at a meeting of the American Association of Industrial Physicians and Surgeons in Buffalo, May 1. He said that "every department of the modern university can contribute useful knowledge toward the advancement of industrial medicine."

For "marked contributions to medicine during his career," Professor Eugene F. Du Bois, Physiology, Medical College, was awarded the George M. Kober Medal, May 7, at the annual meeting of the Association of American Physicians in Atlantic City, N. J.

Participants in the fourteenth conference of Princeton's bicentennial year, on "Scholarship and Research in the Arts," April 22-24, included Professor Otto Kinkeldey, Musicology, Emeritus, and former University Librarian, now visiting professor of music at Harvard, Professor Frederick O. Waage, History of Art and Archaeology, and Professor Donald J. Grout, Music and University Organist. Professor W. Oliver Strunk '21 of the Princeton music department assisted in the arrangements of the "Music and Renaissance" phase of the program.

Professor Alex M. Drummond, Speech and Drama and Director of the University Theatre, has been elected a corporate member of the American National Theatre and Academy, authorized by Congressional charter in 1935 and now establishing an active Foundation in New York City. The aim of the ANTA is "to bring the best of the theatre to the greatest number of people at the lowest feasible prices" and to encourage progressive theatre people in starting playhouses and helping to revive the living theatre in their own home towns. The Experimental Theatre in New York is under ANTA sponsorship.

In recognition of his research on cheese and milk, Professor Robert S. Breed, Bacteriology, Geneva Experiment Station, was guest of honor of the National Cheese Institute at a banquet in Chicago, Ill., May 6. Professor Arthur C. Dahlberg, Grad '27-'28, Dairy Industry, was the principal speaker, reporting on the research on cheese flavor which the Institute has sponsored at the University for the last seven years under his supervision, with Professor Frank V. Kosikowsky, PhD '44.

Nassau Daily Review-Star annual award for distinguished service by citizens of Nassau County was conferred May 8 upon President John C. Adams '26 of Hofstra College, Hempstead, former associate professor of English, and Halsey B. Knapp '12, director of the State Institute of Applied Agriculture at Farmingdale, former assistant extension professor of Pomology, and University Trustee 1939-40. Given "in recognition of leadership, inspiration or devotion to a cause resulting in something significant and worthwhile, representing an advance over previous conditions or meeting an unusual problem" in Nassau County, the award is a gold medallion with accompanying citation. President Adams and Director Knapp received the honor for outstanding service to education and to youth. It was said of President Adams: "Since he came to Hofstra three years ago, the College has increased its enrollment 597 per cent, permanent and temporary buildings costing $465,000 have been added, the faculty has increased from thirty-six to 128, there has been a substantial addition to equipment, the campus has been enlarged, and an extension college established at Hempstead High School for the accommodation of 425 veterans." Director Knapp was thus distinguished: "During twenty-four years as director of the Long Island Agricultural and Technical Institute, he has helped launch hundreds of students on successful careers, enrollment has increased from sixty to more than 700 students, temporary housing has been provided for thirty-five married and 150 single veterans, new industrial and related courses at the technical level set up for more than 300 veterans, and appropriations for $2,000,000 in future improvements obtained." Both served on the Nassau County committee on adult and vocational education. Adams is a member of the State Examinations Board of the University of the State of New York and secretary-treasurer of the Association of Colleges and Universities of the State of New York. Knapp is Long Island chairman for United Service to China, Inc., and a member of the advisory council of the Near East Foundation.

Professor James M. Sherman, Bacteriology and head of the Department of Dairy Industry, has been elected the American vice-president for the dairy and food bacteriology section of the Fourth International Congress of Microbiology, to be held in Copenhagen, Denmark, July 20-26. He will give a paper on pathogenic streptococci before the medical section of the Congress.

The Rev. Frank R. Williams, former Navy chaplain at the University, was ordained to the priesthood of the Episcopal Church, May 1 at The Church of the Epiphany in Washington, D. C. He came here in 1944 as the first Navy chaplain assigned to Cornell; later he was promoted to commander, USNR, and went to be chaplain at Corpus Christi, Tex.

Faculty Appointments

TRUSTEES have appointed five professors and promoted fifty-four others, each action being effective July 1 unless otherwise noted.

David B. Hand, PhD '30, returns to the University June 15 as professor of Biochemistry and head of the Division of Food Science and Technology at the Geneva Experiment Station. Appointed assistant in 1926 and advanced to associate professor of Biochemistry in 1940, Professor Hand was on leave of absence from 1942 until 1946, when he resigned to become technical director of research and quality control for the Sheffield Farms Co., New York City.

Carl H. Schaaf, appointed associate professor of Administration in the School of Business and Public Administration, received the AB "with distinction" in 1935 and the PhD in 1940 at the University of Michigan. With UNRRA since 1944, he has been with the European Regional Office in London, successively as director of clothing and footwear, on a special assignment to Stockholm to negotiate for Swedish relief stocks, director of industrial rehabilitation, UNRRA commissioner to investigate distribution in Yugoslavia, and chief of supply department.

Clifford R. Harrington '36, appointed May 1 associate professor in Extension Service and assistant State leader of county agricultural agents, received the BS here in 1936 and has since been county agricultural agent in Allegany and other New York State counties.

Frederick H. Stutz '35, son of Trustee Harry G. Stutz '07, becomes assistant professor of Education. He received the AB in 1935, the AM in 1937, and the PhD in 1945, taught at Ithaca High School and returns to the University from Michigan State College, where he has been assistant professor of social science.

Alfred E. Kahn, new assistant professor of Economics, received the AB in 1936 and the AM in 1937 at NYU, and the PhD in 1942 at Yale. He comes to Cornell from Ripon (Wis.) College, where he has been chairman of the department of economics.

Named Surgeon-in-chief

Trustees promoted Dr. Frank Glenn, associate professor of Clinical Surgery, to the Lewis Atterbury Stimson Professorship of Surgery and he becomes surgeon-in-chief of the New York Hospital. Dr. Glenn has been at the Medical College since 1932; during the war, he served as surgical consultant to the Sixth Army in the Southwest Pacific with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Twenty-one other associate professors were promoted to professorships: Henry B. Hansteen, Howard G. Smith '30, and Alexander B. Credle '30, Electrical Engineering; Clyde I. Millard '26, Industrial Engineering; Thomas N. Hurd, PhD '36, and Herrell F. DeGraff '37, Land Economics; Arthur W. Dimock and Leon J. Tyler, Plant Pathology; Asahel D. Woodruff and Roy A. Olney '15, Rural Education; Robert A. Polson, Rural Sociology; William J. Hamilton '26, Zoology; Forrest B. Wright '22, Agricultural Engineering; Marlin G. Cline, PhD '42, Soil Science; William E. Blauvelt '25, Economic Entomology; Arthur H. Peterson, AM '34, Business Administration and associate director of finance in Agriculture; Grace A. Steininger, Food and Nutrition in Home Economics; William T. Miller, Jr., Chemistry; Friedrich Solmsen, Classics; Mario Einaudi, Government; and Charles H. Thomas '21, Speech and Drama.

Also Promoted:

Trustees promoted thirty assistant professors to associate professorships: Kenneth L. Washburn '26 and James O. Mahoney, Fine Arts; Dale R. Corson, Kenneth I. Greisen, PhD '42, and Paul L. Hartman, PhD '39, Physics; William A. Wimsatt '39, Zoology; Marvin Bogema, MCE '42, Civil Engineering; William H. Erickson, Electrical Engineering; Rolland T. Hinkle PhD '44, Mechanical Engineering; Juan E. Reyna '98, Agricultural Engineering Drawing; Raymond Albrechtsen '30, Animal Husbandry; Frank V. Kosikowsky, PhD '44, Dairy Industry; James E. Dewey '40, Entomology; Robert L. Patton, Insect Physiology; David B. Fales, MS '44, and John A. Lennox, both Extension Service and assistant State 4-H Club leaders; Ellis F. Wallihan, PhD '38, Forest Soils and Agronomy; Karl H. Fernow '16, Plant Pathology; Randall K. Cole, PhD '39, Poultry Husbandry and Animal Genetics; Emmett I. Robertson, PhD '46, Poultry Husbandry; Thomas L. Bayne, PhD '26, Rural Education; William R. Eadie, PhD '39, Zoology; Ralph W. Dean, Entomology; Wilbur T. Schroeder, Plant Pathology; John Einset, PhD '42, and Nelson J. Shaulis, PhD '41, both Pomology; Mary G. Phillips, Extension Teaching and Information; Mary K. Heiner, Economics of the Household and Household Management; Ruby M. Loper, Housing and Design; and Jean C. T. McKelvey, Industrial and Labor Relations.

Two instructors became assistant professors in Hotel Administration: Helen M. Johnston and Thomas W. Silk '38, effective April 1, 1947.

Start Korea Club

CORNELL Club of Korea has been started by Frank A. Sherwood '45, Lieutenant Calvin G. Brown '45, and five other alumni in Seoul, Korea. The group has been duly recognized as a member of the Federation of Cornell Men's Clubs.

Sigma Xi Elects

FOUNDING chapter of Sigma Xi, national honor society in science, initiated 109 new members April 24 in Martha Van Rensselaer Hall, with Professor James N. Goodier, Machine Design, president of the chapter, the initiating officer.

The ceremony was followed by the society's annual banquet, at which the toastmaster, Professor Richard Bradfield, Agronomy, introduced Professor James B. Sumner, Biochemistry winner of the 1946 Nobel Prize in chemistry, who spoke on "Myosin and Muscular Contraction."

Twelve new members were elected from the Faculty: Professors Everett M. Strong and Lawrence A. Burkmyer, Jr. '25, Electrical Engineering; Rolland T. Hinkle, PhD '44, Machine Design; George W. Pearce, Chemistry at the Geneva Experiment Station; Kenneth Post, Floriculture; Harold H. Smith, Plant Breeding; John M. Wild, Aeronautical Engineering; also Research Associates Ernest D. Courant, Nuclear Studies; Ella G. Gleim '38, Frances E. Volz, MS '45, and Gladys A. Sperling, MS '36, Nutrition; and Dr. Edward C. Kunkle, Jr. '39, Medicine.

Alumnus member is Herman Halperin '20 of Chicago, Ill., for twenty-five years an engineer with the Commonwealth Edison Co. and father of Robert M. Halperin '49.

Among the ninety-three graduate students elected, the following were undergraduates at Cornell: John F. Cornman '36, Robert L. Ehrenfeld '42, Walter A. Gregory '41, Max K. Hecht '44, Everett W. Jameson, Jr. '43, Dr. Alexander D. Rankin '38, Harold A. Strecker '40, Robert J. Tedeschi '44, Richard N. Work '42 (son of Professor Paul Work, Vegetable Crops, MSA '13, and Helen Nicholas Work '14), Arnold H. Fainberg '42, Robert S. Rochlin '44, Jack H. Smith '43, Robert B. Trousdale '44 (son of Assistant Treasurer James B. Trousdale '22 and Ruth St. John Trousdale '22), and Winfield W. Tyler '43 (son of Winfield W. Tyler '13).

Three undergraduates were elected: Brina Kessel '47, daughter of Marcel Kessel '21 and Quinta Cattel Kessel, MS '24, of Storrs, Conn.; William J. Rossi '47 of Lead, S. Dak.; and Esta Soloway '47 of Bay Shore.

TOKYO ALUMNI ASSIST AT BLACKWELL-POPHAM WEDDING

Attended by old friends from Cornell and of former visits to Japan, Captain Walter D. Popham '22, AUS, married Pearl A. Blackwell February 15 in the chapel of St. Luke's Hospital in Tokyo, Japan. Major William J. Chase (behind the bride in the picture), FEAF chaplain in Tokyo and former Episcopal student chaplain at the University, performed the ceremony; Colonel F. D. Sharp (behind the groom), former member of the University ROTC staff, gave the bride away. First man at left is Hiroshi Mitsui '39; in front of him, left to right, his sister, Naoka Mitsui; Fumiko Akabane, daughter of Seiichi Akabane '25; and Michie Yokogawa, maid of honor, daughter of Tokisuke Yokogawa '21. Not in the picture, Paul T. Tono, MLD '21, furnished the flowers; Gumpei Masuda '23 found a hall for the reception; Michael G. Frisch, husband of Elizabeth Dallenbach '42, arranged for MP control; Yokogawa and Captain Otto Marquart '43 "did a thousand and one things to help." Captain Popham is on duty with the G-2 section of GHQ in Tokyo. Mrs. Popham is a graduate of Illinois Wesleyan College and received the AM at Columbia.

AND NOW, it's time to talk about Reunions. We hope you are planning to return this year, and although you may not recognize the Campus, with its temporary buildings and its baby carriages, you'll find the Co-op at the same old stand in Barnes Hall.

A good many of the oldtimers are still with us and you may remember some of them, but you can be sure that all of us, oldtimers and newtimers, are looking forward to Reunions and will do our best to make your visit pleasant.

You'll find some new things at the Co-op: A couple of new Cornell Mascots, such as "Stinky" and "Myrtle the Turtle"; a new Cornell Car Plate, equally attractive on Fords or Cadillacs. Or you can find camera film, smokes, or that forgotten tube of toothpaste, right on the Campus. The most direct path from Baker to the Drill Hall runs right through the Co-op!

And a word for those unfortunates who can't make the Reunions this year: The Co-op is as close to you as a penny postcard and when we get that card, we'll break our necks to furnish whatever you may want and to ship it to you promptly.

THE CORNELL CO-OP

Advance registrations for the "15th Whooperdo for '32" are coming in at the record-breaking rate of one out of every two, according to those returning Freddy Biggs's questionnaires. Many of the others are still uncertain about their plans, but trying to make it. They're coming from all points of the compass, too. Manuel P. Marin plans to come from Mexico City, the most remote registrant to date. So far, fourteen States are represented. For complete details, watch for your copy of the special "15th—The Whooperdo for 'Thirty Two," being mailed from Ithaca. If you don't receive your copy, containing complete details of the Reunion program and news of Class-members, write the Alumni Office for it. Pete McManus, in Ithaca, is rumored to be organizing the '32 crew for a spin on the Inlet. Crew members signing up include Lew Hartman, Ben Falk, Whitey Mullestein, and enough substitutes to fill the boat. Better get on board! When you land in Ithaca, come direct to the '32 tent in Baker Dorms court, for your uniform—and p'raps even a beer!

Here are the things to do now to insure your getting in on the fun: Send your pre-reunion dues to Fred Biggs; reserve your bed in Baker Dorms by writing to Ed Amberg, Hotel Pontiac, Oswego; and practice up on your beer drinkin! —Jack Hazlewood

"I was prepared for disappointments when I returned to Ithaca after nearly fifteen years in the hinterlands. But I should have known that Bull Durham would still be stamping his feet with the old gusto while he told Freshmen from the stage at Bailey Hall about the glories of Cornell, that Alex Drummond's cigarette would stick to his lower lip at the same angle as he prepared the script for a production of the Dramatic Club, that Harry Caplan would talk about medieval rhetoric with the same fluency, and only slightly more erudition, after a year among the musty manuscripts of Europe's great libraries, and that Lane Cooper had merely moved from Barnes Hall across the street to Willard Straight."

In OUR CORNELL, Raymond F. Howes '24 writes as above of those men, from Hiram Corson to Bristow Adams, who have helped make the University great. THE FUTURE BELONGS TO THOSE WHO PREPARE FOR IT

Most likely to succeed

Most likely to succeed, in this country, are the boys and girls who can go through school and college. Today there are more than ten times as many college graduates as in 1900—ten times as many young people starting out with a big educational advantage to make a place for themselves in this tough, competitive world.

You want your child to have his chance to make his life successful—and it is much easier to be sure there will be money for his education if you plan it the Prudential way. Prudential makes it possible to have a fund ready for college expenses exactly at the time it's needed—and a great advantage of this Prudential education insurance is that the money will be available even if you should die before that time comes.

Thousands of parents provide funds for their children's education through The Prudential. Ask your Prudential representative about such a plan—soon.
