Tickets go on sale Nov. 1.

NOV. 25—PENNSYLVANIA AT PHILADELPHIA
Admission $3.42, Box seats $4.56.
Tickets go on sale Nov. 15.

Prices quoted for the Princeton, Dartmouth, and Pennsylvania games apply to seats in the Cornell sections. For those games there are other seats which can be obtained of the respective Athletic Associations.

EVERYBODY WILL BE BACK FOR THE HOMECOMING GAME AT ITHACA AGAINST COLUMBIA ON OCTOBER 30. MARK THE DATE ON YOUR CALENDAR.

You will receive your ticket application blanks by August 31, if you live outside of Ithaca. If for any reason your blanks go astray, and you want blanks, please write to

THE CORNELL UNIVERSITY ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION
Ithaca, New York

Alumni are cordially invited to join the A. A. The dues are $5.00 per year, for which members receive priority in the purchase of tickets for all athletic events and also receive monthly the Director's Confidential Letter. All alumni are eligible for membership. To join, send in your name, class and address with $5.00.

SUMMER SESSION OVER Enrolment Diversified

Concensus of the Campus seems to be that the six-weeks' Summer Session which closed August 13 was one of the most pleasant and generally profitable of the forty-six which have been held at the University. It was the third under the new plan by which the five previous separate summer schools have been coordinated under an administrative board with Professor Loren C. Petry, Botany, as Director.

Enrolment this year was 1,996, just 72 greater than last summer. This year, the proportion of men to women increased markedly, there being 1139 men and 857 women, as compared with 1076 and 848, respectively, last year; and an increased number of students came from outside New York State—especially the South, Middle West, and New England—with a small decrease in the number from New York.

About a half-dozen alumni families, Dr. Petrie says, availed themselves of the invitations first announced in the ALUMNI NEWS June 3, to attend Summer Session classes for three or four days as guests of the University. Those who did come seemed to be so well pleased with their experience that the Director promises the invitation will be offered again next summer.

Besides the regular classes, this year's extra-curricular offerings—recitals, and concerts, public lectures, field trips, The Summer Theatre, and evenings at the Observatory—were more than usually popular and well attended. A lecture recital on "Modern Music" by Professor Paul J. Weaver and Luther M. Noss attracted a capacity audience to Memorial Room of Willard Straight Hall the evening of registration day, July 5; and Bailey Hall was well filled for a piano recital by Ida Deck Haigh, the wife of Professor Andrew C. Haigh, Music; as it was for a recital of sagas and folk songs of his native India given by Raton Devi, and for the Syracuse Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Andre Polah. Popular also were programs of symphonic recordings, introduced this year at sundown on the Willard Straight terrace; and a summer chorus of thirty-five voices was organized at the initiative of students.

Among the public lectures, those of President Day, "Some Observations on Scholarship in Liberal Arts Colleges;" of Professor Arthur A. Allen '08, Ornithology, "Hunting With a Microphone;" and of Dean Floyd K. Richtmyer '04, August 9, giving his first public account of the National Geographic Society—U. S. Navy eclipse expedition to the South Seas, were high points in interest shown; while color motion pictures of the living chick embryo, the work of Professor Alexis L. Romanoff '25, Poultry Husbandry, and Elmer S. Phillips '32, Agriculture Extension, had to be repeated to accommodate the crowd which came to see them.

Saturday afternoon field trips conducted by the Geology Department, to Watkins Glen and to the sand dune country near Lake Ontario and the drumlin belt of northern New York, each attracted about fifty persons from all departments of the Summer Session.

The Summer Theatre opened its fourteenth season with "The Importance of Being Earnest," by Oscar Wilde, which was followed by Pirandello's "Six Characters in Search of an Author." The summer classes in play production were cast in four one-act plays by popular authors; resulting in demand for more that was met by presenting five others, played the next week by members of the Summer Theatre staff. The season was concluded August 7 with presentation of "Traffic Signals," the modern morality in two movements by Professor Alex M. Drummond, University Theatre Director.

Among the alumni who took part in the summer's productions: Jonathan W. Curvin '32, Elizabeth D. Worman '22, Arthur L. Woehl '23, Helen Champlin Curvin, AM '33, Ross E. Scanlan '24, Marvin J. Herrick '21, Rachel H. Wood '30, Ellen R. Albertini '35, Margaret L. Schramm '35, J. Colby Lewis '33, Joel Trapido '34, and William G. McCollom '33.

COLORADO OFFICERS

At the annual picnic June 19 of the Cornell Club of Colorado, Charles Lahr '15 and Russell D. Welsh '13 were re-elected, respectively, president and secretary. Other officers are: Herman F. Seep '31, vice-president; Karl T. Dreher '33, treasurer; Joseph S. Gowdy '29 and Goddard Shackelford '14, directors.

MORE McMULLEN AWARDS To Regional Scholars

President Day announced August 7 the award of McMullen regional scholarships of $300 for each of four or five years, depending upon their courses, to thirty-six entering members of the Class of '41 in the College of Engineering. Of the recipients, selected on the basis of scholarship, character, and personality, all ranking scholastically in the top fifth of their preparatory school classes, ten are sons of Cornellians.

Four of the new scholarship holders will study Civil Engineering; eight, Electrical Engineering and sixteen, Mechanical Engineering, some taking in combination the work in Administrative Engineering; and eight will enter the five-year course in Chemical Engineering. They are:

MECHANICAL ENGINEERING

Frederick D. Amsler, Pittsburgh, Pa. (son of Arthur C. Amsler '09); Frederick W. Badger, Berwick, Me.; John V. Barnes, Grosse Point, Mich.; Lewis M. Birckhead, Milwaukee, Wisc. (son of Peter H. Birckhead '16); Thomas S. Carnes, Portland, Me. (son of Frederick Carnes '08); Elza W. Dozier, Madisonville, Ky.; Robert W. Haase, Kansas City, Mo.; Wilbur D. Hart, Jr., Dixon, Ill. (father, '10); Shurley R. Irish, Jr., Webster Groves, Mo. (father, '18; mother, the former Elizabeth B. Fisher '17); Calvin S. Lenderman, Jr., Florence, N. J.; Robert E. Chaus, Irvington, N. J.; Michael S. Remorenko, Brookhaven, Pa.; Mayo E. Roe, Jr., Elyria, Ohio (father, '04); Robert R. Stark, Pittsburgh, Pa.; John C. Sterling, Jr., Newport News, Va.; James D. Thackrey, Camden, Ark.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERING

Lyle M. Beagle, Jefferson City, Mo. (son of Nathan R. Beagle '12 and the former Hermione V. Jones '12); William C. Flickinger, Shaker Heights, Ohio (son of Walter E. Flickinger '08); Forrest L. Griffith, Jr., Baltimore, Md.; John P. Gurdak, Spring Creek, Pa.; Arthur M. Hopkins, Twin Falls, Ida.; Raymond W. Kruse, St. Davids, Pa. (son of Otto V. Kruse '09); Jack T. Riday III, Winnetka, Ill.; John L. Schlener, Jr., Chicago Heights, Ill.

CIVIL ENGINEERING

John F. Funkey, Detroit, Mich.; Charles W. Lake, Jr., Madison, Wisc. (father, '14); Henry W. Lansing, Cranford, N. J.; William F. Lynn, LaGrange, Ill.

CHEMICAL ENGINEERING

Joseph L. Bennett, Dearborn, Mich.; Donald W. Bunte, Prescott, Ariz.; Richard T. Dungan, Dayton, Ohio; Robert K. Finn, Waukesha, Wisc.; Robert

C. Newman, Tulsa, Okla.; Norman W. Ryan, Casper, Wyo.; Sol Ruden, Atlanta, Ga.; Wellington R. Ramsey, Bryn Mawr, Pa.

With these thirty-six new McMullen regional scholars, next year will see seventy-five attending the College of Engineering; fifteen having been appointed in 1935 and twenty-four last year, all from outside New York State. Besides the regional scholarships, the McMullen Fund, left to the University by the late John McMullen of Norwalk, Conn. "for the education of young men as engineers," provides cash scholarships of $200 annually to Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors, and $1,000 annual scholarships to graduate students. Representing the earnings of a dredging concern, the principal of the Fund now approximates $1,500,000. Since its inception in 1925, $242,886 had been disbursed to June 30 from its earnings for scholarships and fellowships.

Each of the leading applicants for McMullen regional scholarships was interviewed by Engineering alumni in fifteen districts outside of New York State. Recommendations of the interviewers were forwarded to Dean Herman Diedrichs '97 and Associate Dean S. C. Hollister, who made the selections, the appointments coming from President Day. Alumni chairmen of the regional committees were:

Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Rhode Island: Chester T. Reed '03.

Pennsylvania: Thomas F. Crawford '05 and Eugene C. Batchelar '02.

New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia: Creed W. Fulton '09 and G. Gilson Terriberry '15.

Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina: William E. O'Neil, Jr. '29.

Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana: James D. Willcox '07.

West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee: Professor Nathan W. Dougherty '13.

Ohio: Frederick W. Krebs '12 and Forrest E. Cardullo '01.

Indiana, Michigan: Matthew Carey '15.

Illinois: Alfred H. Hutchinson '09.

Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas: John G. Pew '25.

Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas: Shurly R. Irish '18.

Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota: Charles S. Whitney '14.

North Dakota, South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming: Pitt Covert, Jr. '11.

Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico, Nevada, Utah: Carl A. Gould '07.

California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho: Orrin W. Fisher '14, Carroll R. Harding '10, and Sterling C. Lines '98.

NASSAU COUNTY DANCES

The Cornell Club of Nassau County held its sixth annual dinner dance at the Lakeville County Club in Great Neck, Long Island, April 10. Music was by the orchestra of L. Edward Stiles '31. During dinner the guests sang, among other songs, "The Rooter Song" recently composed by a member, Judge Ernest M. Strong '02, and his wife. More than two hundred attended; a new high.

At the annual meeting March 27, Lyman D. Hall '27 was elected president, succeeding Herman Stuetzer, Jr. '31. Other officers are John D. Bennett '33, secretary; Judge J. Dwight Rogers '05, vice-president; and Hobart V. Cornwell '13, treasurer. New members of the board of governors are Jerome L. Loewenberg '29, Richard H. Brown '19, Dr. Louis A. VanKleeck '09, Charles E. Ward '32, and Stuetzer.

About ATHLETICS

FOOTBALL SEPTEMBER 6

Football practice and the training table start September 6, and notice has been sent to fifty-three candidates for the Varsity team. Members of last year's team who will not be back this year include Captain John M. Batten and Willard W. Zeigler, backs; Egbert W. Pfeiffer, center; Leonard P. Gunsch and Frank J. Politi, guards; Burton C. Buell and William E. Kennedy, Jr., tackles; and William G. Rossiter, end—all members of the Class of '37; Richard A. Baker '39, back, has withdrawn from the University; and John W. Sheffer, Jr. '39, another dependable back, is on the doubtful list for scholastic eligibility.

Coach Snavelly plans again this year to open all practice sessions to the public; the squad working on Alumni Field both mornings and afternoons on fair days until University classes start, September 30. The first game, with Penn State, is scheduled for Schoellkopf Field September 25, the Saturday before registration opens. The remainder of the football schedule, and such other athletic events as have so far been announced, is included in our current column, "Coming Events."

OXFORD-CAMBRIDGE MEET

On July 17, ten picked athletes from Cornell combined with twelve from Princeton to face a similarly picked team from Oxford and Cambridge in the eighth international meet between members of this foursome. Giving advance notice of their power by defeating a Harvard-Yale combination the week before, the Britishers duplicated their triumph at Palmer Stadium at Princeton by the identical score of 7-5.

Only first places count in these meets. In most cases two entrants from each group compete with each other. As a consequence, there is considerable intra-team rivalry. The meet at Palmer Stadium was packed with thrills and performances of championship calibre. The competition was so close in a number of events that the Britishers were able to establish five new records in the twelve-event program.

Of the 5 points credited to the Americans, Princeton won four and Cornell achieved one first place. That was the fine victory of Howard W. Welch '38 in the two-mile run. With the lead seeing between William V. Bassett '37 and Hawkey of Oxford for more than a mile-and-a-half, Welch was never better than third for fifteen of the sixteen laps. In a terrific spurt in the last 220 yards, he passed his British opponent and steadily drew up on his team-mate, Bassett, who had piled up a substantial lead. In the last fifty yards, Welch went by like a streak, to win in 9:36.4, with Bassett second in 9:37.9.

Getting away to a slow start in the 120-yard high hurdles, J. Hamilton Hucker '38, the favorite in the event, was outdistanced by White of Princeton, whom he had beaten previously, and had to content himself with second place. In the 100-yard dash, James B. Pender '39 lost to Alan Pennington of Oxford by a single stride. In the quarter-mile, spectators saw one of the finest races of the day. Godfrey Brown, the Cambridge captain, and one of the world's greatest middle-distance men, gave an exhibition of running that was beautiful to see. With Hucker setting the pace and out in front until the last twenty yards, Godfrey Brown "went to town," passing Hucker with comparative ease, and with no apparent effort breasted the tape almost a full second ahead of Hucker. The time: 48.6 for Brown, and 49.4 for Hucker. It was a fast event.

When the final event of the day, the half-mile run, was started, the Britishers were leading by the score of 6-5. If Captain John A. Meaden '37 could win, the meet would be a tie. But the great Godfrey Brown was in the event, and a special rest period had been provided for him after his sparkling victory in the quarter. With Benjamin F. Levy '39 setting the pace, Meaden and Brown followed close on his heels. Levy soon tired, and then Meaden took charge. He quickened his stride and stepped out in front. The relentless Brown ran easily, despite the speed, and in the last straightaway ran around Meaden to take the lead and the victory, in the same effortless manner of his previous victory. His time was a new meet record, 1:52.2, with Captain Meaden clocked in his last race for Cornell in the fast time of 1:53.8.

A good second for Pender in the 220; and a similar place for Walter W. Zittel '40 in the low hurdles were other noteworthy Cornell performances.

Next year the meet will be held in England, and a continuance of the friendships cemented by a week of close association in Princeton's hospitable environs is promised.

This was the tenor of the remarks at the concluding event of the week-end, the international banquet at the Princeton Inn. With William A. Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, as master, the captains of all four teams toasted each other, cheered each other, and kidded each other. John T. McGovern '00, who has had much to do with the preservation of the games and their fine sportmanship, made the principal speech. Avoiding the platitude, "hands across the sea," McGovern spoke of the values of athletic competition, sportmanship, and good-fellowship. "If they contribute but a mite in promoting international friendship and encouraging tolerance and fairness, these games are very much worth while," he concluded.

ALUMNAE IN TOKYO

Cornell Club of Tokyo, Japan, entertained at dinner, June 10, two alumnae who were in Tokyo during the course of a world cruise. Edith C. Stenberg '29, of Rockville Center, and Delphine L. Ten Broeck, Grad., who is the daughter of Floyd G. Ten Broeck '95, were presented with Japanese dolls and treasure the autographs of the twenty members of the Club who were present.

President of the Cornell Club of Tokyo is Seikichi Iwasaki '89; vice-president, Nagaatsu Kuroda '12.

BLOOD WILL TELL!

(R. B. in "State and Tioga," Ibaca Journal)

Barn swallows have an interesting method for diverting cats from their homes. In the manner of youthful aviators given to chance-taking, they dart and swoop successively at the cat's head and eyes, missing only by inches. Our cat must pass the barn door where the swallows live many times during her business day. Each occasion is made miserable for her by the darting pilots. They puncture her dignity and make her lose face, which is the worst thing that can happen to a cat.

At first our cat would turn under the persecution and jab at her attackers with a darting paw. She soon realized, however, that her 100 percent record for clean misses was making her even more ridiculous in the eyes of mice and men. Being a pedigreed cat of noble lineage, she then forced herself into the appearance of complete ignorance of a swallow's existence. It's a grand exhibition of false indifference: a masterly poker face. But I notice that she manages to make her voyages through the swallow zone as infrequent as possible!

Not so our neighbor's cat. He's a useful cat of peculiar effectiveness with field mice. But he comes from unknown sources and lacks the blood that flows through the ears and finger tips of heroes. He tries his best to appear unmindful of the swallow barrage, but with small measure of success. Try as he will, he can't help wincing and ducking; which is fatal to cat aplomb. And then realizing his moral defeat, he surrenders and takes it on the lam for home.

Cat blood will tell!

NOW, IN MY TIME!

By Romeyn Berry

Members who gather at the Cornell Club bar in the late afternoon have learned, with a vague sense of disturbed spiritual values, that St. Mary's College, home of Mr. Slip Madigan and the Galloping Gaels, went broke recently and was sold at public auction for $411,150.

This news came as a sudden shock to some of the older members who had always supposed the St. Mary's College football team took in more than that every year. They had assumed (without knowing the first darn thing about it, of course) that any college in the Poison Ivy League which possessed both the Galloping Gaels and Mr. Slip Madigan might be rated as "richly endowed," and crossed off the Rockefeller Foundation's Christmas list. This turns out not to be the case. The Galloping Gaels took in lots of money every year, but it costs fully that to support Galloping Gaels in a style to which they were not accustomed. There were no net profits accruing to the College.

A Rum Collins '06 and a Planter's Punch '12 over by the window became increasingly distressed by all the applications and implications of the Galloping Gaels' débâcle. Could it be possible that a college might have unhappy moments even though it had a good football team?

But the Rum Collins pointed out that things were probably different in the Poison Ivy League; you know—uncertain! It wouldn't happen here, with the alumni watching out for things. "Out there," he said, "no matter how sorry things look, there's always a Slip Madigan 'twixt the cup and the lip."

SCHOLARSHIP FUND GROWS

A recent contribution to the new Scholarship Holders' Endowment Fund is that of Mrs. Charles G. Woodbury (Marion Benjamin) '05, of Washington, D. C. Writing to the Cornellian Council, Mrs. Woodbury says:

"This seems to me an excellent way for those who have received scholarships in the past to show their appreciation and their interest in helping worthy students of Cornell. In the fall of 1901 I received one of the undergraduate scholarships amounting to $400. I am now enclosing my check for this amount, to be added to the fund already started. I hope that others will be able from time to time to add to the nucleus."

Mrs. Woodbury entered the Arts College in '01 from Cleveland, Ohio, and soon transferred to Architecture, receiving the BArch degree in '06. She was a brilliant student, winning the Sands Medal in her Senior year "for work of exceptional merit," and was active in Campus affairs: Sennightly, Lyric Club, Raven and Serpent, and "Der Hexenkreis" (now Mortar Board). Married in 1908 to a young associate in horticulture at Purdue Experiment Station who had received the BS at Michigan Agricultural College four years earlier, she lives now with her husband and family of a girl and two boys in an attractive home and garden of her own design at 1801 Hoban Road, N.W., in Washington, where Woodbury is chief of research for the National Cannery Association. He was called to that position from the directorship of the Indiana Agricultural Experiment Station in 1920.

The University's Scholarship Holders' Endowment Fund was given that name last spring to combine a gift of $401 made in 1914 by Dr. G. Willis Graves '05, former holder of a State tuition scholarship, and one of $1200 made last year by L. Carroll Root '92, who thus showed his appreciation of an undergraduate scholarship and a fellowship in History which he had held. Its purpose is to segregate such funds contributed by alumni, for the similar benefit of present worthy students.

PRESIDENT'S FIRST SPEECH

The new President made his first official appearance at 9 a.m. July 1, to welcome to Cornell the gathering of distinguished physicists who met in Rockefeller Hall for three days to exchange experiences on "The Structure of Metallic Phases." The President said:

From my point of view this engagement is pressing the Administration a bit. By no stretch of the imagination can anybody say that I have been in office more than about nine hours and I think it would be quite reasonable to say that I have been in office only a few minutes. Under these circumstances I would suggest that the tables might be turned and that you might extend a brief welcome to me. Nevertheless I appreciate this opportunity of expressing this welcome to you on behalf of the University.

Doubtless in time I shall become accustomed to addressing audiences with regard to whose special interests I am woefully ignorant. At the moment, however, I feel a bit embarrassed to be talking to a group of up-to-date physicists. There was a time when I pretended to some knowledge of the elements of this subject; enough so that I could materially assist a couple of my classmates in college who were wise on the football field but stupid enough otherwise to take physics to meet the college science requirement. I always regarded as one of my most distinguished undergraduate achievements my success in getting this pair of star backs by the elementary course in physics. What I knew about physics at that time doubtless would look as antiquated today as the original Ford.

Happily, I have learned a few things in my years of association with other members of the staff of the Rockefeller Foundation who know something about this field. I assure the local community that I do know the difference between a centrifuge and a subterfuge. But I wouldn't get far on any examination in modern physics of the model 1937.

It is one of the wonders of science, I suppose, that such extraordinary progress can be made in a single field in so brief a time. Some of us have worked in other fields where progress is not so easily identified. You physicists may be moving fast and outmoding earlier work rapidly, but at least you have a sense of direction. As an economist riding on the train of scientific advance in that field and looking out on the passing landscape, I have sometimes wondered if I were riding backward or forward. You probably have never experienced that kind of confusion. I congratulate you on being in a field which is so extraordinarily active, and apparently is working wonders in the direction of new scientific discovery.

I wish I were equipped to follow technically the discussions you will be having. But I presume, in view of the fact that this is the day on which I assume other responsibilities, I may be relieved of undertaking all of the conference program and may content myself with the batch of homework which has been placed in my hands. I shall always recall this occasion pleasantly. This is my first official appearance as President of Cornell. I am glad that it is this kind of occasion and this particular conference. I can recall two years ago the pleasure with which my chief, President Max Mason of the Rockefeller Foundation, came back from attendance at the first of these symposiums at Ithaca. He said that he had had an extraordinarily enjoyable time, and in his judgment one of the most stimulating experiences he had had in a long time.

I trust you will all share that kind of a three-day period here, enjoying yourselves to the utmost and finding in the papers which are presented and the discussions which take place a definite lift in your work. I am sure the University, in so far as I can speak for it, welcomes you heartily to the symposium, and wishes you a most successful time.

ARTS DEAN'S LIST

The semi-annual Dean's List of the College of Arts and Sciences, comprising the twenty-five students in each of the three Classes returning next year who had the highest scholarship averages for the second term, represents fifty-seven high schools and preparatory schools in nine States. As announced by Dean Robert M. Ogden '00, the names of those thus recognized follow:

CLASS OF '38

William J. Argersinger, Chittenango; Alden K. Boyd, Bay Shore; Philip W. Callanan, Auburn; Clarke T. Case, Ithaca; Willis D. Curtiss, Sodas; David A. Dreiling, Brooklyn; Patricia M. Frueh, Cleveland, Ohio; Marvin M. Goldmann, New York City; Frank S. Grzywaczewski, Little Falls; Virginia C. Herring, West Hartford, Conn.; Henry Hurwitz, jr., New York City; Morris O. Lieberman, Ithaca; Robert O. Loomis, Haddonfield, N. J.; Christopher Morley, jr., Roslyn Heights; Karl J. Nelson, Springfield, Mass.; Joseph C. Noback, Scarsdale; Chester M. Ross, Brooklyn; Allen D. Shapiro, Newburgh; Eugene Simonoff, New York City; Howard J. Simons, Ithaca; Stanley E. Smith, Plattsburg; Ralph W. Spitzer, Erie, Pa.; Roy H. Steyer, Brooklyn; Robert A. Wichert, Watertown; Emanuel Wolinsky, New York City.

CLASS OF '39

Philip Bondy, Brooklyn; William N. Cohen, Brooklyn; Joseph Coors, Golden, Colo.; Mary J. Davison, Staten Island; Hannah Garb, Trenton, N. J.; Milton T. Gilberg, Rochester; Catherine H. Grady, Great Neck; Howell J. Heaney, Beacon; Virginia Hoyt, East Aurora; Bernard Hyde, Brooklyn; Simon H. Lachenbruch, New Rochelle; Mabel H. Lang, Hamilton; Philip J. McCarthy, Friendship; Rex Morgan, Kenmore; Florence Morgenstern, Brooklyn; George A. Neumark, New York City; Frances R. Ransom, Buffalo;

Randall W. Reyer, Pelham Manor; Clinton L. Rossiter, 3d, Bronxville; Donald L. Sanders, Maplewood, N. J.; Joseph S. Shapiro, Paterson, N. J.; Herbert E. Sultan, Brooklyn; Ruth J. Switzer, Ithaca; Alvin C. Weinstein, Brooklyn; Robert S. Weisz, Washington, D. C.

CLASS OF '40

Harold S. Auerhan, Passaic, N. J.; Robert D. Deans, Ridgewood, N. J.; Richard B. Drooz, Albany; Henry J. Ehresman, Utica; Frederick Fahnoe, Sharon, Pa.; Ellen Ford, Birmingham, Mich.; George A. Gentes, Buffalo; Francis Greenspan, Perth Amboy, N. J.; Isaac N. Groner, Buffalo; Robert A. Gumbinner, Yonkers; Mary S. Hewlett, Schenectady; Solomon Lasof, Trenton, N. J.; Leon Lazare, New York City; Edward A. Levine, New York City; Morris O. Locks, Brooklyn; Ralph S. Ludington, Holley; Richard V. Meaney, Roslyn Heights; Harold C. Miles, Olean; George F. Polzer, Staten Island; Robert W. Pressing, Washington, D. C.; Jack L. Ratzkin, Brooklyn; Ruth A. Roeder, Niagara Falls; Edward H. Rothstein, Far Rockaway; Oliver N. Salmon, Greig; Dean H. Towner, Saranac Lake.

HOW THEY STARTED

The following, by CDXXXVI (Melville Shavelson '37) comprised "The Berry Patch" in the Commencement issue of The Cornell Daily Sun, June 18, under the title, "It's Only the Beginning." It is reprinted for the edification of readers of the ALUMNI NEWS:

The little man invented Alumni by accident. The Amalgamated University Presidents called him in to invent Commencement, and the first thing he knew, there were the Alumni.

The little man was pretty mad when he saw them. "I didn't invent you!" he yelled, "What are you doing around, if I didn't invent you?"

The Alumni just laughed, and started an Alumni Fund to Take Care of the Little Man. That made him feel a little better. So he went to the Amalgamated University Presidents and said proudly, "I have just invented the Alumni."

"What is that?" asked the AUP, innocently.

"What are they!" the little man corrected them.

The AUP pulled out their diplomas. "Whom do you think you're correcting?" they said. And then they said, "What are the alumni?"

"Oh," said the little man, "people."

"People!" shouted the AUP, "don't we have enough people already? Gee whiz, here we go and hire you to invent Commencement so we can get students out of our universities and make it nice and restful, and you go right ahead and invent people!"

"Alumni are different," said the little man, "I wouldn't exactly call them people, because they're—oh, well, I can't explain. But I can show you a couple, if you can take it."

He whistled, and a couple of Alumni came in with six football players on a leash.

"See?" said the little man, "do they look like people to you?"

"What are they wearing those funny hats for?" asked the AUP, "And those funny pants?"

"Because they're Alumni!" the little man shouted. "My very good gracious, didn't you ever hear about Reunions? And Rym Berry?"

"No," said the AUP. So right away the Alumni started a Fund to Teach University Presidents About Reunions and Stuff.

"That's all very well," said the AUP, "but we still don't see any sense in Alumni. Please take those football players out back where we can make believe we don't see them. And when you come in again, remember where you are."

So the Alumni took the football players outside and came back on a fire engine. "Clang! clang!" they yelled, "We're on the water wagon!"

"Shhhh!" whispered the little man, "don't forget we have to persuade the AUP that you are necessary."

"Fine!" yelled the Alumni, "suppose we start a little fund to Persuade the—"

So the little man started a fire outside and the Alumni went out to throw each other into it. And the little man began talking very fast to the AUP.

"If you want Commencement," he said, "you have to have Alumni."

"Fine!" said the AUP, "then we won't have Commencement. Those caps and gowns don't do justice to our figures, anyway, if you ask us."

"Nobody's asking you," the little man said, "and what's more, if you don't have Commencement, how are you going to get people to listen to your speeches?"

The President of Princeton looked up, "Say," he said suddenly, "I think you've got something there." And he stood up and began to make a speech. "I might as well get this one in while I can," he said, with a little apologetic smile, "it really isn't as bad as it sounds."

The other presidents sat around on the floor and pretended to listen. "You didn't forget that stuff about The Future Leaders of Our Nation?" said one.

"Oh, no," said the President of Princeton, "I get right into that in an hour and a quarter."

"How about Our Changing Times?" asked another, professionally.

"And the New Deal? How About the New Deal?" said another, who looked a little like the President of Harvard.

"And War. And the Constitution. And Unemployment. And gumdrops," said another.

The President of Princeton stopped talking. "What about gumdrops?" he said, pettishly.

The president who had spoken was a little embarrassed. "Well," he said, blushing, "I always mention gumdrops. It appeals to the younger generation."

"I believe I can get along without gumdrops," said the President of Princeton, haughtily, "I get better results with Sex."

Right away the Alumni were back in, riding on a calliope. "Suppose we start a little fund to Get Better Results with—"

"Shh!" said the little man, "won't you boys ever grow up?"

"We don't have to grow up," they said, "we graduated!" And they began to laugh like anything.

So the AUP gave up and accepted Commencement and the Alumni. And to make them feel better the little man invented Seniors, and Sentiment, and Alma Maters, and gloamings, and Sad Partings.

So at every Commencement, the Seniors put on caps and gowns and have tears in their eyes. And the Alumni laugh like anything.

STONEPOSTS' CALENDAR

(R. B. in "State and Tioga," Ithaca Journal)

Our Jersey heifer, the gift of Dr. Booth of Kingtown, has been named Elmira in honor of the Doctor. Some of our readers may not regard that name as a good one for a cow, and they may be right, but we feel strongly that with all its possible defects Elmira is still a better name for a cow than it is for a railroad town.

Elmira is due to freshen, as we say, in February. It will be very convenient to have her take up the torch at that time, because the black Burr cow is not taking any milk contracts for around Lincoln's Birthday. In spite of all they tell you up at the Department of Rural Engineering, the most indispensable implement around the farm still remains the calendar.

LETTERS

Subject to the usual restrictions of space and good taste, we shall print letters from subscribers on any side of any subject of interest to Cornellians. The ALUMNI NEWS often may not agree with the sentiments expressed, and disclaims any responsibility beyond that of fostering interest in the University.

HOTEL EZRA CORNELL

TO THE EDITOR:

Examining the CORNELL ALUMNI NEWS issued recently I observe that on the page giving the 1936-37 Chronology you have omitted the opening of the Ezra Cornell Hotel-For-a-Day by the students in Hotel Administration. This occurred on May 7 this year and was very successful. There was a capacity crowd and every available space in the Main Hall of Willard Straight was used—the banquet was also served in other rooms to accommodate the overflow. Many influential and nationally known men were in attendance, and Dr. and Mrs. Farrand, Dean and Mrs. Mann and other members of the Faculty were also present.

In preparing your news items for the coming year we would sincerely appreciate your consideration of this important event in the ALUMNI NEWS.

JOSEPH P. BINNS '28

Twelfth annual Hotel Ezra Cornell, expertly staged by Hotel Administration students May 7, was fully reported and described in the ALUMNI NEWS May 13, but inadvertently omitted from the 1936-7 Chronology published last issue. Apologies to Reader Binns, president of the Cornell Society of Hotelmen and vice-president and managing director of the Claridge, Atlantic City, N. J. and who directs also the operation of the McAlpin and St. James in Philadelphia, the Lee in Washington, and other hotels.—ED.

THE SUN REBUTS

TO THE EDITOR:

Your issue of July 15 contained a very interesting, if slightly misleading article. The reference is to the delightfully personal opinions expressed by J. M. Batten '37 in his humorous article entitled "Students Improve Cornell Spirit" in which Author Batten described the major issues with which the 1937 student governing group dealt.

The accomplishments included an internal reorganization of the Council and the stimulation of a more satisfactory spirit at Cornell through emphasis on student cheering, Campus balloting, and "interest in other worthwhile endeavors." With these important issues well under control, the remaining thorn in Cornell's side, according to ex-president Batten, is the Cornell Daily Sun. If one is to take the article seriously it is evident that the newspaper is the principal cause of the lack of spirit on the Campus.

It should not be necessary to remind Cornellians that the Sun first suggested internal reorganization of the Council, acted as ex-officio member of the committee of two which drafted the entire new constitution, and then backed the proposal with all its facilities. Included in the latter is a paid circulation of more than twice as many students as have ever voted, free of charge, in any Student Council election.

It should not be necessary to suggest that the Sun, through its editorial columns, has long advocated better Cornell spirit and cheering.

It is patent to everyone that a college editor likes nothing better than the chance to crusade against shady election methods. The Sun has demanded ballot reform for years.

Quoting Mr. Batten's own phrase, "Certainly it [the Sun] has been run by the students; and many of us think rather poorly." It certainly has, Mr. Batten, and many of us certainly do, rather poorly, if we think that a corporation, over which the students have no control but their boycott, can be forced to reorganize.

In the interests of accuracy,

ALAN R. WILLSON '37,
Former Sun editor-in-chief.

NORTH CALIFORNIA ELECTS

Mrs. Edwin W. Kramer (Olive Edwards) '05 was elected president of the Cornell Women's Club of Northern California, succeeding Mrs. Wilson D. Clark (Frances Bell) '10. Mrs. D. Scott Fox (Grace Fordyce) '15 is the new recording secretary; Mrs. Nairne F. Ward (Janet Nundy) '26, corresponding secretary. Mrs. Francis G. Short (Louise Baker) '19 is vice-president.

NEW CHICAGO OFFICERS

Cornell Club of Chicago at its annual meeting June 24 elected Frederick H. Bird '11 the new president; Albert J. McAllister '28, vice-president; James M. Gilchrist '00, second vice-president; Richard D. Vanderwarker '33, secretary; Mead Montgomery '24, treasurer; and Buel McNeil '27 and Henry H. Garrett '22 members of the board of governors.

The retiring president, Harry W. Helmer '09, reports briefly to the members through the Club publication, "Cornell Clippings:" the publication of a Chicago Cornell directory; on the election of Alfred H. Hutchinson '09 as Alumni Trustee; that the Musical Clubs may come to Chicago during next Christmas recess; on the sixtieth annual banquet, to Dr. Farrand; that the regional scholarship fund (committee headed by Frank J. Durham '16) has been substantially increased, to the extent of $112 by the Cornell-Black Horse Troop polo game and of $136 by the June Night party, and now stands at $1,600; and that weekly luncheons next year will be held at the University Club. He expresses the hope that the 1938 Alumni Corporation convention may come to Chicago, and says that an invitation has already been extended.

REUNIONS — BY CLASS REPRESENTATIVES

Following are the stories of individual Class reunions, June 18-20, received from Class secretaries and reunion chairmen:

Class of '77

Last January a letter was sent to all supposedly living members of the Class urging them to come to the reunion and see how our Alma Mater has grown in stature in the sixty years since the Thursday, June 21, 1877, when at nine o'clock in the morning, in Library Hall in the Cornell Library building at the corner of Seneca and Tioga Streets, the ninth annual Commencement of the University was held.

After the exercises we came forth with our diplomas handed to each person individually by the President of the University. We had become, following the order of the Commencement Program of the day: A.B.'s, B.L.'s, the scattering members of the earliest Classes, this year 1869-1886. The nearly fifty at the dinner included as guests the two daughters of Mynderse Van Cleef '74, who started the joint dinners for the early Classes. We were gratified to have with us also the former Chief Justice of the Court of Appeals of New York, Frank H. Hiscock '75, and, toward the close of the banquet, President Farrand came in to give us a farewell address, which made everyone feel anew how deeply the President had taken hold of the confidence and affection of the alumni. To show in some way our affection, the Class of '77, with the help of the other banqueters, subscribed $50 to the fund for the Farrands' new garden at Brewster.

After speeches by every member of the Class of '77, and by Judge Hiscock, Dr. A. W. Booth representing the Van Cleefs, and A. W. Smith and Dr. Eugene Baker for '78, who will carry on the Van Cleef dinner at their sixtieth where he had now landed, and particularly what younger Cornellians he had furnished.

Probably '97 got its greatest reunion "kick" Saturday afternoon in seeing so many of the great Varsity crew of its Senior year boated and rowing beautifully with the same style and grace as when they won their two great Poughkeepsie races over Yale, Harvard, Columbia, and Pennsylvania, in June, 1897. Members of the Class who took part were: Freddie Colson, cox; Capt. Spillman, 6; Mark Odell, 5; Doc Crum, bow (a member of the "Strawberry Crew"); and Tad Mordock, manager.

Saturday evening men and women and guests of the Class banqueted in one of the charming dining rooms of Balch Halls. The affair was honored by the presence of Provost Mann, who, like President Farrand, about to leave Cornell, spoke most interestingly and feelingly of his Alma Mater and was taken leave of

WHO THEY ARE

Reunion chairmen and some of their Classmates were unable to identify all the members of the larger groups photographed at reunions, including the record-breaking Class of '12, '97, and '17, of the photographs reproduced above. The other three Class groups are identified as follows, from left to right:

Seated on ground: S. W. Bates, Elaine Keiffer, Kathryn Feerick, Lenard B. Keiffer, George W. Bacon. Bottom row: A. S. Capwell, Harry D. Howe, Caroline H. Swartout, Frank Bowman, H. E. Nelson, Mrs. McAllister, Peter McAllister, Elmer E. Studley, Charles Werner, John L. Elliott, Frank Taylor, Nelson Nichols, Mrs. S. W. Bates, Mrs. Russell Elliott, Russell Elliott, Mrs. William G. Atwood. Second row: Clyde A. Dumitway, Ward Mosher, Mrs. Mosher, George R. Townsend, Mrs. Townsend, John P. P. Lathrop, R. T. Mickle, Fred J. Platt, E. E. Clark, George T. Hogg, George V. Edwards, Alfred Miller, Mrs. Marble, L. M. Marble, William G. Smith, Mrs. Smith, William G. Atwood. Third row: William G. Starkweather, Frank C. Moore, Mrs. Lenard Keiffer, Mrs. H. C. Nelson, Mrs. Roscoe C. Beebe, Frances Beebe, Charles C. Johnson, Mrs. Johnson, Frances Aldrich, Mrs. E. H. Wood, Mrs. C. Lee Boswick, L. Carroll Root, Mrs. Root, Mary A. Porter, E. G. Horton, Mrs. Olive H. Feerick. Top row: Mrs. W. G. Starkweather, Henry Hicks, E. F. McKinley, W. C. Ellis, Roscoe C. Beebe, Fred B. Haring, E. H. Wood, Mrs. Aldrich, Elliott F. Aldrich, D. L. Soon after Commencement we scattered all over the United States, and to many foreign countries, even as far away as Australia.

Of the 240 members of the Class, graduate and non-graduate, thirty with known addresses are still in the land of the living. Five of that number were at the reunion: Gage, Gurley, McNairy, Pennock, and Ostrom. Several others had expressed their intention of returning, but the weight of years and infirmities prevented.

Of course, the vigorous five were on hand at all the general events of Alumni Week, and some of us stayed to Commencement, again on June 21.

The five of us would have made rather a sorry group of banqueters, so it was early decided that for the Saturday evening dinner we should sponsor the Van Cleef dinner for anniversary next year (D.V.), President Gurley of '77 adjourned the meeting for the rally in Bailey Hall.—SIMON H. GAGE.

Class of '97

The forty-year reunion of the Class of '97 was so enjoyable that plans were adopted for an early beginning of a campaign to get a larger number back for a forty-fifth in 1942.

Most of the sixty who returned lived at Prudence Risley Hall except a little group who think they prefer a park bench any time to a women's dormitory.

Our Friday evening stag dinner, at the Alhambra, downtown, was a very jolly get-together. Chief features were the special ovation given Mark Odell, who had come all the way from Seattle, particularly to occupy his seat next afternoon in Tad Mordock's reboating of the '97 Varsity crew, and the brief reporting by every one present of what he had been doing during the forty years, with deep regret. On Sunday morning a committee placed flowers on the grave of Louis Fuertes, now, as forty years ago, the most beloved member of the Class.—JERVIS LANGDON.

'00 Women

Special events for the '00 women included a dinner at Balch with the women of '99, '01, and '02, a delightful tea at the home of Mrs. George Young, Jr., and the joint dinner of '99 and '00 at Forest Home. As the general reunion program was unusually good, reunion days were very full and enjoyable.—MABEL L. ROSE.

'00 Men

Quality rather than quantity distinguished the reunion of the Class of '00. Julian Smith passed up his railroads and utilities to come down from Canada; while H. H. Clark took the prize for distance, coming from California. Both brought their wives.

It is a time-worn custom of the Class not to have a complete reunion program made out in advance; the idea being that all that is necessary to a perfect reunion is to get the members back and living together again. Our dinner with '99 proved that a set program is not needed. The time until we had to break up for the rally was all too short to cover fully the years since our last reunion.

Final keynote of the 1900 reunion was the adoption as our slogan "The Biggest Forty-Year Reunion Ever." Sentiment was general that many members of '00 should be brought back then who have gotten out of the reunion habit. The coming three years will be devoted to rounding up the whole gang, and it is confidently expected that every member of 1900, whether a graduate or not, will begin to make plans to be back in Ithaca in June, 1940, for "The Biggest Forty-Year Reunion Ever."—GEORGE H. YOUNG.

Class of '01

Fifty-four members—forty-four men and ten women—of the Class of '01 returned for its thirty-six-year reunion; almost as many as came back last year. The men were quartered in McFadden Hall; the women in Balch. The men wore Chinese hats, in honor of Alfred Sze, who, recalled to China, had unfortunately sailed from San Francisco May 29, and arm bands with the Class numerals. Record for distance travelled was claimed by George Ferguson, who came from Seattle, Wash.

One of the features of '01 reunions which has become an institution is the stag dinner Friday night. This year's, at Fontainebleau on Lake Kayutah, was so enjoyable it was voted to repeat it there the next reunion. The '01 women joined with those of '99, '00, and '02 for dinner Friday evening at Balch Hall, and men and women, with their families and guests, came to the Class dinner Saturday night.

Great credit is due Katherine Buckley, women's reunion chairman, for the large proportion who returned. As so well phrased by Gay in reporting our thirty-five-year reunion, it was less the set events than it was the impromptu gatherings, the meetings with old friends, the reminiscing and discussion, that made the reunion a success.

At Saturday's dinner the following Class officers were elected: "Jim" O'Malley, president; "Archie" Morrison, secretary; and "Rod" Williams, treasurer. "Bess" Winslow Hirshfeld was re-elected secretary for the women, and Katherine Buckley was re-elected women's chairman.—A. B. MORRISON and R. B. WILLIAMS, Jr.

Class of '02

The thirty-five-year reunion of the Class of '02 was a very delightful occasion to those who attended. Sixty men and ten women registered. On Friday evening at a dinner in Willard Straight of the male members of the Class, it was discovered that there were some barber shop chords among them. But on Saturday evening, when both men and women held a dinner at Willard Straight Hall, we found the barber shop chords had either disappeared or were completely quieted by the presence of the ladies. Even Kathryn Carrigan couldn't get any recognizable tunes out of the crowd.

That failure resulted in a very delightful incident, however, because each one present gave a short personal biography of his life since graduation. It was discovered that a number of our Class had gone into agriculture, and from their biographies it was clear that farming is not unprofitable. Most of our farmers had raised four or five children, and had sent them to college, and were either now retired, or living "the life of Riley." Another noticeable fact in the biographies was the number of grandchildren reported by their grandparents at the reunion. Many were headed for Cornell but some have been diverted to other colleges by the influence of their maternal ancestor.

Altogether, the meetings and opportunities for anecdotes and reminiscences at the Drill Hall and at the various dinners resulted in a very pleasurable reunion. There were no casualties reported to the officers; but the Class always was noted for its dryness and sobriety. It apparently has lived up to its reputation, and certainly as a Class it does not know the barroom ballads.

The forty-year reunion is looked forward to with great pleasure—W. C. GEER and RALPH S. KENT.

More than eighty came back.

Blake brought his son, Dawson, almost completely recovered from his recent illness, brought his family. Bill Dugan brought his brother-in-law, Fritz Howes, Alvin King, Sheffer, Schmidt, LaBrecque, Hutchins, brought their wives. Munschauer and Fred Sly brought their sons. Elsie Rand Tucker brought two strapping sons, and a number of the women of the Class were here. Altogether, it was a big party and everybody had a grand time. It was great to meet all the fellows at the buffet supper on Thursday night. Our Class had the biggest delegation in town. Things started with a boom because Win Taylor had brought Gahagan of "Naughty Naught," who knew all the songs that we knew and then some. He played the piano while the crowd sang. After serenading dormitories, the crowd adjourned to the Dutch for a real old-fashioned songfest which broke up some time during the night.

On Friday, the Class of 1912, fire engines and all, joined with us in a Memorial Service at Sage Chapel. Norm Mason sang the solo, which brought back memories of times gone by. Many fine comments regarding the service were heard and there is a suggestion that such a service be made a regular part of every reunion.

After dinner at the Johnny Parson Club, the Class split up during the evening. Some attended the reception to the Faculty and many went to the Glee Club concert, which they thoroughly enjoyed. They found that Glee Club programs have gone through an evolution and are now very different and some say more interesting than the programs that were put on when we were in college. On Saturday, the engineers and architects went to their respective breakfasts and almost everybody went to hear President Farrand's last intimate talk.

After luncheon at the Drill Hall the crowd scattered for various personal projects, to meet again for dinner at Taughannock Farm, on the hillside above Taughannock Point, overlooking the Lake. About ninety sat down to dinner, including sons, daughters, nieces, nephews, and other pro-tem members of the Class.

At the rally at Bailey Hall the alumni paid a fine tribute to our retiring President, and the Class thought it proper to make a small contribution toward the parting gift from the alumni.

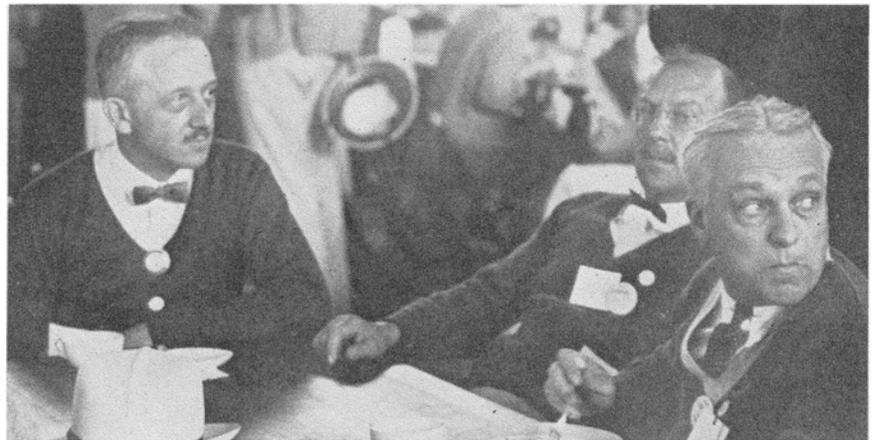

Many members could not be with us. Babe Pollak and George Lewis had sons or daughters "graduating." Edmond Brown was in Europe. Artie DuBois is in Barranquilla, Columbia, South America, and has charge of the port and some twenty miles of "one of those big rivers that is never satisfied to stay put. What with jetties out into the sea, dikes, and what not we've got a pretty good hold, but like some women, she's temperamental." Patten and Jake Fried expected to come but had to change their plans at the last minute and sent their greetings. Edgar Stehli and J. D. Willcox couldn't take time away from their life insurance business in Chicago and Birmingham, Ala., respectively. W. J. Turner sent us a heartfelt greeting from the Braden Copper Co., Rancagua, Chili. Colonel George Ruhlen wanted to come, but the Government decided that he had better leave for the Philippines just three days before the reunion. Nelson Darling, with Peavey, Bartholomay, and Conover, planned to attend in a body. Something must have happened to the car for they didn't arrive. Rod Drennen telegraphed "for the first time I am compelled to telegraph greetings and felicitations to the good old loyal memoirs of nineteen seven. I miss it terribly. Skoal."—WILLIAM R. WIGLEY.

'12 Women

Although the campaign for our twenty-five-year reunion got off to a late start, the final results were gratifying: 32 women back on the Campus, to help win the cup for 1912, with a grand total of 224. This was the fourth time that 1912 had the largest number back for a reunion, and it was rather thrilling to receive again the silver cup at the Rally in Bailey Hall on Saturday night.

But there are other things about a reunion than winning silver cups. There was chiefly the delight in seeing old friends again, and in hearing what the years had done to us. This time many girls were back who had never returned for a reunion, and of course the "old guard" who always come were on hand to greet them. We attended the usual luncheons at Drill Hall on Friday and Saturday, and had many long talks in Sage and elsewhere. Several of the girls brought back sons and daughters, and of course reports about those left at home.

The nicest occasion for the women was the Class dinner on Saturday night. This was held at Risley, and with us were the daughters, who had a chance to see what a reunion dinner was like. Beulah Bailey had recently announced her engagement, and was to be married the following Saturday, June 26th, so we made her the center of some of our program; Mariana Macauley Van Deventer presenting her with a set of Cornell service plates as a token from the Class. After dinner each of us gave a brief account of what she had been doing since graduation: there were husbands and children to mention, and for a few of us "careers" to report upon. Altogether, we did have a most satisfying evening together. Later there was the rally, staged by 1922, which was by far the best since 1912's own fifteen-year rally! It was a little tinged with sadness, however, as it was also Dr. Farrand's last appearance as President of Cornell—but one of the most perfect of occasions.

On Sunday we had our usual breakfast in Elsa Guerdum Allen's charming glen. The morning was perfect, breakfast good, and the company better, and we were glad to welcome several husbands too. This was the last occasion when we gathered as a group, but everyone declared the twenty-five-year reunion had been a most delightful and happy one.—NINA SMITH.

'12 Men

With an official registration of 224 and an attendance of 233, the Class of '12 made two new records at its Silver Jubilee Reunion. The official registration figure is one more than the highest figure previously made at Class reunions. Our registration of 192 men is far in excess of the record of 156 held jointly by the Classes of '09 and '12. The reunion was attended by 32 women members of the Class.

High spots of the reunion were the Class dinners held on Friday and Saturday evenings at the Bank Restaurant. Oscar Tschirky, the famous "Oscar of the Waldorf," was guest of honor at the Friday evening dinner. He came to Ithaca in the company of his son, Leopold Tschirky, one of the most active members of the Class.

Oscar, Professor Charles L. Durham, Professor Walter K. Stone, John F. Moakley, and Carl Snavelly were given honorary membership in the Class. "The Order of the Green

THEY NAMED THEIR BABY FUND AFTER HIM

Ross W. Kellogg, indefatigable Secretary of the Class of '12, who was largely responsible for the record-breaking Silver Anniversary Reunion attendance.

Hat" was conferred upon them by Walter R. Kuhn, reunion chairman.

The Class decided to establish a Silver Jubilee Memorial Fund of $25,000. A committee, with Tell S. Berna as chairman, has been appointed to make arrangements for raising the Fund.

It was also decided to create a scholarship fund for the education of the first grand-child of a male member of the Class. This fund will be known as the Kellogg Fund. The Fund was established at 8:00 o'clock Saturday evening, June 19, and at 3:30 the following day (Father's Day) Stephen Sloat Fassett was born in Boston. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sloat Fassett, 3d '36 and a grandson of Jacob Sloat Fassett, Jr.

Joseph Grossman contributed much to the activities of the reunion by the loan of a fire truck manufactured by the Ward LaFrance Truck Corporation of Elmira, of which he is treasurer. This truck was on duty Friday and Saturday, meeting all trains and giving transportation about the Campus.

The wives of Ithaca members of the Class entertained visiting wives and daughters Saturday evening at the Country Club of Ithaca.

Members of the Class joined with the Class of '07 in a memorial service held in Sage Chapel Friday morning.

The "Firemen's Ball" given by the Class in the Old Armory Friday night proved a successful addition to the reunion program.

The Class was housed for the most part in South Baker Hall. One of the most unexpected angles of the Silver Jubilee Reunion was the large number of men who arrived Thursday night. At midnight 52 men had been assigned rooms in South Baker. All the accommodations in South Baker were in use early Saturday and members were accommodated in other dormitory units. Many came back for their first reunion. The distinction of coming the greatest distance goes to Calvin L. Wilson of Fort Worth, Texas.—ROSS W. KELLOGG.

Class of '17

Our twentieth-year reunion has come and gone. It was the gayest, happiest, and yet most impressive gathering the Class has ever had.

It must be borne in mind that we never had any undergraduate organization like other Classes, no Senior Week festivities, no Commencement exercises, and no chance to celebrate a happy entrance into the world of business. The World War took care of that!

For twenty years we have been looking forward to a gathering just like the one we had in June. Many had not seen Ithaca in all those years, but vow they will be back for every future Class reunion.

From the Class of '17, 104 fellows returned, many for three happy days. A smoker Friday night at the Clinton House with Carl Snavelly, Nicky Bawlf and others present; the thrill of seeing the champion 1917 oarsmen again in a shell on the water; and the effervescent and bubbling banquet at the Johnny Parson Club on Saturday night—these were the highlights of a glorious good time. Professor Charles L. "Bull" Durham was our banquet guest and speaker, and at once became an honorary member of the Class. Bill Crim, our reunion chairman, presided, and letters from our president, John Collyer, Eddie Anderson, and Rog Munsick were read, regretting that they were unable to be present. Herb Ballantine led in story telling.

The most impressive ceremony, however, was held at the War Memorial on Saturday afternoon, when a wreath was placed appropriately in memory of Classmates who were gone but not forgotten. A few brief words by Bill Crim, the laying of the wreath by Bob Keefe, "Taps," and the Alma Mater by the R.O.T.C. band was enough for all of us. This ceremony will always be a highlight of future reunions, and we hope that in the years to come other Classes can join with us in this tribute.—HERBERT R. JOHNSTON.

'19 Women

Highlights of the reunion of '19 women were the banquet and stunt party in Risley, and the Sunday breakfast at Taughannock Farms, together with the Class of '18, '20, and '21. Harriet Hosmer '18 as toastmaster asked all kinds of questions about our professions, our children, and our operations. After Dean Fitch told us of the changes in Campus activities, Betty Reigart led the singing of "The Cornell Co-ed Ain't What She Used To Be." Mary Donlon, our heroine of the evening, gave a semi-serious talk on "The Admission of Women to the New York Bar (legal)."

Memories of former stunt nights were revived with the old songs when we listened to Clara Starrett's "Rosary" and Betty Reigart's "Working Girl," and all joined in the chorus of "Brighten the Corner" led by Harriet Hosmer a la Billy Sunday.

Of course we took part in the 1912 Fireman's Ball, and were thrilled to ride in their fire engine. We all felt little prickles run down our spines at the singing of the Alma Mater at the Rally on Saturday night. The tribute paid to President and Mrs. Farrand made the occasion a memorable one. Though we cannot always have a retiring President to honor, henceforth we must sing "Down by the Old Mill Stream" with gestures. Just picture 4,000 Cornellians stroking imaginary chin whiskers!

The suggestion has been made that a Department of Juniors be conducted by the Alumni Office to care for the children of the reuniting parents, thus giving more freedom to said parents to break all college rules. Seniors were allowed out until 4 a. m. Alumnae were supposed to be in the dormitory by midnight. But were they?

Breakfast at Taughannock was a perfect ending—the lake, the gorge, and a jolly crowd. The Class voted to make plans now for our twenty-year reunion.—ELIZABETH REIGART GILCHRIST.

'22 Women

'22er's began to arrive on Thursday and reached a total of fifty by Saturday afternoon.

THE MORNING AFTER

Tell Berna and Louis C. Boochever, of the Class of '12, caught by the camera as they talked over the reunion party.

Our first get-together by ourselves was Friday after Senior singing, in Risley Recreation Room. The main entertainment was an auction. There was a penalty for opening any package before all were auctioned off. When the signal was given and the packages were opened, what was our surprise to find we had purchased, in these containers of different shapes and sizes, the old red smocks left over from our ten-year reunion which the committee had been wondering what to do with for five years. This auction netted the handsome sum of $10 plus, which was presented to the fund for the Farrand garden at Brewster.

The Class dinner Saturday was in Sage Blue Room, Bertha (Puss) Funnell presiding. Things were progressing gaily when the Class of '27 from the main dining room came in and literally snatched our one guest of honor, Miss Seely, for the rest of the evening. (We had hoped to have Miss Nye with us also, but she was ill at that time and unable to be out.)

Next came the Class Rally in Bailey Hall—the best one in fifteen years—and Sunday morning we breakfasted at Buttermilk.

It was a grand reunion, with Imogene Guion Trau coming from Texas; Olive Temple Gulick from California; and Esther Platt Osborn from Nova Scotia. Ev Davis Fincher deserves most of the credit, too, for she had all the responsibility and most of the hard work; but she is passing on the honor of chairmanship to Lucile Knight Johnston.

We just want to mention in passing that we made a gift of fifty dollars to the Cornellian Council from hoarded Class funds.—RUTH VAN KIRK ROYCE.

'22 Men

Tradition has dictated that the fifteenth-year reunioning Class act as the host Class, and so this year it became the privilege of '22 to welcome the others to the reunion activities. The duty was not an arduous one because of the excellent preparations made by the Alumni Office personnel. 120 men of the Class attended, and their brilliant red sports shirts and white sailor hats made a colorful display.

We lived in Founders Hall, and outside a large tent was erected to serve as a gathering place during the lulls in the regular activities. Sports had to be given up on Friday, due to the inclement weather; but on Saturday there was a baseball game with '27, and the crew pageant. This led up to the reunion dinner which was held in Willard Straight Hall. High light of the reunion was of course the rally in Bailey Hall. This was opened by Dan Strickler, who introduced Professor Durham as master of ceremonies, who in his own inimitable way did so much to make it a success. Much credit is due to Bob Butler '05, also, for the masterful manner in which he led the singing and made the presentation to Dr. and Mrs. Farrand. Emmet Murphy '22, as president of the Association of Class Secretaries, announced the various cup awards for the reunioning Classes. George Coleman's band supplied music for the luncheons in the Drill Hall on Friday and Saturday and for the rally. The reunion brought back many who had not returned since graduation and these saw many changes on the Campus, especially in new buildings.

Carl John is preparing a more detailed story of the reunion which will be sent to each member of '22. All these who returned this year are looking forward to the twenty-year reunion five years hence.—WALKER L. CISLER.

'27 Women

Women of '27 returned to Ithaca 83 strong for their ten-year reunion. Their white dresses and hats, with royal blue sport jacket and feather, were noted wherever there was any activity. Much to their delight they were still greeted by the tune, "Oh, You Beautiful Dolls," so they decided the years had not treated them too badly. With Sage as reunion quarters, the old corridors resounded with activity. Many enjoyed the tour of the Campus and visited the more recent buildings.

Saturday night's banquet was held at Sage with Elizabeth Stow Norgore as toastmistress. Following a Class custom, each girl had to rise and speak for one minute, giving a short resumé of her activities and interests, then introducing her neighbor. Much news was gleaned, and the Class was glad to hear that authors, doctors, lecturers, guests of honor at Junior League balls, school teachers, and housewives were among their number. Corsages were presented to Elizabeth Norgore who came from Seattle, Wash., to Martha Dana Peckworth from Alabama; and to Esther Hunter Coleman from South Carolina. A high light of the banquet was the presentation of Cornell service plates to Grace Hanson Reeve, who had edited an eight-page newsletter and who as reunion chairman was responsible more than anyone else for the grand turnout.

Everyone agreed it had been a glorious reunion and promised that when '27 reuned once more they would be among those present "Far Above Cayuga's Waters."—CARMEN SCHNEIDER SAVAGE.

'27 Men

The Class of '27 held its best reunion to date. The registration of 199 men and women should serve notice to all Classes that for our fifteenth-year reunion the Class of '27 will have no trouble whatsoever in breaking the present record, held by the Class of '12.

The reunion was run by Ev Bradley, with the following as members of the committee: W. Ambler, H. S. Brown, R. B. Brown, E. Carey, Jr., W. M. Caro, W. H. Chandler, E. W. Collins, W. L. Cressman, C. Davidson, T. C. Deveau, S. S. Evans, R. C. Fingado, W. E. Foltz, L. S. Fuentes, E. W. Goodwillie, R. D. Hobbie, D. M. Hynes, G. Kirk, II, R. J. Koch, W. K. Niels, P. F. Rhines, G. N. Scott, F. D. Shaw, R. B. Stocking, and C. M. Werly.

Paced by a seven-piece band, the '27 boys marched through the three reunion days which opened with registration at the Baker Dorm headquarters and immediate adjournment to the canteen which served as a Class-get-together room and beer parlor. On Friday afternoon a cocktail party was held in the headquarters room and a buffet supper was served immediately following, from which we went to Senior singing and the Musical Clubs concert. Late that night the Class of '27 was well represented at the Firemen's Ball, a new feature this year sponsored by the Class of '12, which we hope will become an annual affair.

Saturday evening we all gathered at Glenwood on Cayuga, where over one hundred male members attended our Class banquet. The speaker of the evening was Romeyn Berry. The banquet was adjourned in time for the Class to assemble at the rally in Bailey Hall and after that—every man for himself!

The boys piled out Sunday morning on their way back to drudgery. They came from as far away as Seattle, Wash., and Florida.—R. J. KOCH.

'32 Women

Sixty women of the Class of '32 returned to the Campus for their five-year reunion, and enjoyed every minute of the time. The costume consisted of violets worn with white dresses and multi-colored parasols, which, while very much in evidence during the Drill Hall lunches, were not opened while walking the Campus very much, due to the fact that umbrellas were much more useful most of the time.

Renewing acquaintances and comparing notes kept us well occupied when we weren't participating in the regular reunion activities, including the very interesting women's breakfast Saturday morning.

The Class banquet was held in the Home Economics Dining Room, where we sat at three long tables—a great improvement over the small tables for six or eight. To add to the enjoyment of all present, no one was asked to prepare a speech. Instead, the chairman of the committee, Louise Rost Schonfeld, called on various members of the Class to tell of their activities and careers. This plan was a great success. We learned much and were greatly amused by stories from our two doctors, Phyllis Dooley Schaeffer, and Jane O'Neil, who had some exciting times while riding ambulances during internship. We also had some mighty interesting information from several social service workers, a secretary in a WP Administration office, a secretary in the office of the Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, the wife and first assistant to a young man running a school, and a housewife. Ruth Ellenwood arranged the banquet, and forgot no detail to make it very successful.

Alice Avery Guest was unanimously re-elected as Class secretary.—VIRGINIA BARTHEL SEIFR.

'32 Men

Were you to look in on the alumni luncheon at the Drill Hall Friday or Saturday of reunion week, the spectacle of fifty-odd convicts capering about with realistic automatic pistols, capable of accurate discharge at four or five paces, would doubtless cause you to speculate on the advisability of exposing yourself to such a mob of vicious gangsters. Perhaps the consignment number, 1932, on the back of each inmate would allay your fears and you would feel reasonably secure until some bolder bad man drew a bead on your left eye and let you have a stream of liquid fire.

Fifty-three '32 men invaded Ithaca for the five-year reunion of the Class. The cloaks of dignity and worldliness, acquired during the last five years, were replaced by the convict costume which had proved its excellency three years before.

From Friday morning when the first comers arrived until Sunday afternoon, the Cornell Convicts dominated the Campus as they had from 1928 to 1932. The headquarters in Baker Tower were filled to overflowing. Meeting old friends and swapping the experiences of the last five years were thrills to be treasured for years to come.

The highlight of the Class banquet at the Clinton House on Saturday evening was the election of Fred Biggs as chairman of the tenth-year reunion.—WILLIAM C. AGNEW.

'35 Women

Ever since the Class of '35 were Juniors, we think, they have been talking about their first Class reunion, which perhaps accounts for the large turnout over Alumni Weekend. The official report at the rally Saturday night was that 129 of the Class of '35 had returned, giving them fifth place as to numbers; and 81 of these were women!

Some arrived Friday in time to attend the Musical Clubs' "Rusticana," and to tell the rest of us what we had missed.

Saturday morning, hearing Dr. Farrand deliver his final yearly report to the alumni, we were sorry at his leaving, but happy that our first reunion came when we might hear his farewell to the Cornell that is not housed at Ithaca. The announcement of Mary Donlon's receiving the highest number of votes was a triumph for those of us who had trekked with our petitions through country snow and city slush late in the winter.

Peg Tobin did a commendable job as "chief gatherer of the crowd" for the Class picture, for which we finally acquired not only four rows of '35ers, but also the Class banner and our mascot, Minnie Mouse. After Mrs. Grace's chicken salad in the Drill Hall, "we fell all in line" to march to the tunes from the bands of some of our more affluent older brothers, which filled one of our Class with such longing that she, being a punster, suggested that we ought to have a "thirty-five and drum" corps.

At Saturday night's dinner at Forest Home Inn, arranged by Mary Rowe, the only way we knew we were not students was by our cars parked out in front. Midge McAdoo Rankin was again our song- and cheer-leader. We had a high time with our own songs and cheers and with those for and from the men of '99, who were also dining at the Inn; then when the Class of 1900 sent in a representative to call us "old men's darlings," we made bold to show our youthful spirit by singing to them too.

Then various members reported what they are doing. Kreuzer had literally crashed through from Earlville to tell us of the glories that are teaching; Butter went Longfellow in her description of the life of an extension worker; and Eleanor Middleton spread before us the secrets of secretarialing. Mrs. Bentley talked of the value of hobbies and other interests as a means of steering clear of the notorious rut. Two badges of gold and red were then awarded: one to Midge for presenting the Class with its official offspring, and one to your correspondent for having come all the way from the Great Middle West.

From all this it would seem that there was nothing left for Sunday, but our secretary, Loie Coffin, did not arrive until then, having directed the reunion from Princeton; telegrams, long-distance 'phone calls, and particularly air-mail specials had been her sceptres. So when Loie arrived, the reuning recommenced. By one o'clock Loie had collected sixteen '35ers (and we finally collected Loie), and all trailed over to Willard Straight for dinner, with Dean Fitch as our guest.

Having by now discovered that there was a graduating Class, we thought it would be nice to attend some of their functions: baccalaureate, the tea at Balch, and Senior singing. It was with pride that we watched our grandchildren, dignified in their caps and gowns.

And so we all agreed that reunions are a right worthy tradition, and that Cornell is not only an ideal place for four undergraduate years but also a magnificent place to which to return. Which makes us believe that in going home this time we should have bought a round-trip ticket, for we shall surely use the return ticket in 1940.—ELEANOR C. REICHLER.

BERRY GOES LITERARY

(R.B. in "State and Tioga," Ithaca Journal)

The very first day we were in New York, Messrs. Longmans, Green & Co., the publishers, invited us to tea in a vacant lot south of Rockefeller Center to meet one of their authors who has just spent the last 150,000 miles in a trailer.

One trailer was enough for the 150,000 miles, but the tea required two trailers, one in which to meet the author and the other for the refreshments.

The author was Mr. Blackburn Sims. He and Mrs. Sims have lived in a trailer for three years now, and they like it very much. One gets around so! One month they may be in Oregon for the salmon fishing and another down in the City of Mexico for the Fascist shooting. The longest time they ever spent in one place was last summer when they stopped four months in Estes Park, Colorado, while Mr. Sims wrote a book about trailers which Messrs. Longmans, Green & Co. are about to publish. Even in the very best and most expensive trailers, Mr. Sims says, it's best to stop a minute when you want to write a book, on account of the jiggle.

We would not want our neighbors in the Town of Ulysses to get the impression from the above that we had been rude enough to go to a tea and monopolize the guest of honor. As a matter of fact, the author seemed pretty glad to have us stick around and chat with him of this and that. We had the author-trailer mostly to ourselves because the other guests were largely newspaper men, who made a dash for the refreshment trailer when they arrived at the vacant lot and remained there the rest of the time. The refreshment trailer was the trailer where the bar was, and after a while the author suggested perhaps we'd better step over there too.

THE STATE PARK Commissioners are getting ready for trailers at Taughannock Point. So far, thirty-six trailer berths have been laid out, with fireplaces, drinking fountains, floodlights, electrical outlets, leaching pits, and laboratory facilities. Why ever go home any more?

OUR NEW FEATURE

Since Romeyn Berry rejoined the staff of the ALUMNI NEWS a year ago, his page "On the Campus and Down the Hill" has brought more letters and commendation from readers than any other single feature of the paper. Unfortunately from our standpoint his ALUMNI NEWS writings have also found favor in the eyes of others than Cornellians.

On August 2, largely because of his work with "On the Campus and Down the Hill," Rym was engaged by the publishers of The New Yorker to handle the "Notes and Comment" in that weekly's department, "The Talk of the Town." His new job takes Berry to New York, of course, for at least the greater part of every week, and makes it impossible for him to continue his former page in the ALUMNI NEWS.

"You can't," Rym points out, "write about the Campus and the phenomena of youth from Forty-third Street in New York, any more than you can write about Forty-third Street from the Library Slope. But it's time, after all these years, for somebody to interpret the alumni, which flourish as the typical species in New York, to the Campus and to other alumni."

Beginning in this issue, therefore, we present a new feature by Romeyn Berry. In his ALUMNI NEWS column, "Now, In My Time!" Rym will report and interpret the Cornell world as he sees it—or anything else that comes to his hand—from his new vantage point at the numerical center of Cornell alumni distribution. To temper his cityfication, he'll be frequently visiting the Campus and his home at Stoneposts, near Jacksonville. We look for his new column to be no less welcome to our readers than his recent page and his earlier "Sport Stuff," for eight years our most widely quoted column.

Time for August 16 prints Rym's photograph and notes his arrival to The New Yorker staff, to take over the work there of Elwyn B. White '21, former Sun editor, whose "curtain speech" as he left the paper for an extended vacation, the "maiden departure" of Mr. Eustace Tilley from the city, in last week's New Yorker, it reprints in full and calls the the "best & saddest" of . . . "the best of many columns in Manhattan . . ."

For the present at least, "On the Campus and Down the Hill" will be written by our regular staff.

CO-EDUCATION

Many heated arguments arise among Cornellians from co-education, although as an educational problem there seems to be little to be solved. The universities now making most rapid strides seem to have assimilated this relatively old innovation with little quibbling, and have gone along with their more important business of education.

Yet many alumni who hesitate to discuss any other phase of education, whatever, have firm convictions on this one "great problem." To them it is a thing to be apologized for in bar-room conversations with comrades from Dartmouth or Yale; or even Harvard, where arrangements always seem to be so much better, from an educational point of view.

Cornell officially has always been very canny in attacking the problems incidental to co-education. When a dean of women was being authorized by the Board of Trustees, the Board actually had to vote by ballot: an unusual proceeding in that body. At another time, on motion duly carried, it was agreed that if a woman were ever found who was a desirable addition to the (Arts) Faculty, she would not be eliminated as a candidate because of her sex. Quotas of admission, too, have been set in most guarded manner, although the great State Colleges have constituted one of those annoyances that educators occasionally experience, by bringing in women students to the limit of housing accommodations.

The problem is, of course, not really one of education, but social. A vociferous minority prefer a man's college, having failed to realize that Cornell was co-educational when they applied for admission years ago. At least as many, less vocal, are quite satisfied to have taken their educations in a place that is a representative cross-section of the business world, if not of society at large. The great majority, of course, do not realize that there is a problem, and think of those that keep it boiling as somewhat neolithic.

Much prejudice, ignorance, and intolerance are displayed in the discussion and handling of this Cornell wildcat. Co-education is, of course, here to stay: one of the fundamental aspects of Cornell, just as much as the gorges, or military drill, the State Colleges, or any of the other various characteristics of the place. On the whole, the woman's dollar is as usable as the man's, whether it be paid in tuition fees, board and room, Alumni Fund gifts, or buildings and endowment. Lack of skill in handling this subject has lost considerable for Cornell. At least one case is reported where funds under discussion for a Library building were diverted to something for the exclusive use of women students because misguided enthusiasm in describing the phenomenon and implications of co-education started a backfire. At another time, a valued Alumni Trustee failed of election as a coöptative Trustee almost certainly because she was a woman.

The problem of how to act toward those of our alumni who are women will be more happily solved by using tact, intelligence, breadth of view, and knowledge of the modern trend, than through bigotry, ignorance, and narrowness. Co-education at Cornell merits careful study and sympathetic treatment. Committed to the education of women from its beginning, the University should energetically set out to select women students from the best schools, on the basis of personality and all those qualities on which emphasis is placed in the mechanism for selecting men, however successfully. All the agencies engaged in the development of Cornell might well study this problem in an intelligent way, gently setting aside those who cling to their stone implements and impede the march of progress. An important, irrevocable, integral part of Cornell, the women students and the alumnae deserve a friendly, permanent, and constructive policy in all branches of the University: teaching, alumni, fund raising, and undergraduate.

Cornell now trips herself when she tries to run. This unrepresentative attitude on co-education is generally regarded as Cornell's official attitude. It thus becomes more than a mere internal social problem. A stranger might reasonably wonder how much more of Cornell's official point of view is a fake.

NORTH NEW JERSEY WOMEN

The Cornell Women's Club of Northern New Jersey held its last meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. David Green (Jeannette Katchen) '23, in West Orange. Officers for the coming year were elected: Mrs. Russell Kerby (Regina Brunner) '15, president; Marian B. West '36, vice-president; Mrs. Martin Georges (Frankie Culpepper) '30, recording secretary; Margaret Eberhardt '36, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Harold W. Frevert (Edith Conrad) '25, treasurer.

ON THE CAMPUS AND DOWN THE HILL

NEW CONSTRUCTION in the amount of $500,000 is under way on the Campus, or shortly to begin. The biggest item is the new laboratory for the College of Veterinary Medicine; the littlest, fixing up the President's House for the occupancy of the Days. In between in magnitude are (1) new greenhouses for potato research; (2) an insectary; (3) a soils research laboratory; (4) a new University warehouse over by the East Ithaca station; (5) a new floor in the Old Armory; (6) an arboretum; (7) the extension of the girls' hockey field and construction of a putting green north of Balch Hall; and (8) what not. With the passing of the depression the Campus seems likely to resume its normal state of being dug up all the time.

THEY ARE BUILDING a new aviary on top of Fernow Hall. Mr. Albert R. Brand, the bird song recorder, is going to find out how high birds can hear. Some birds now make sounds so high that they are inaudible to the human ear. Can birds hear them? That's the question. Also they mean to find out how long migratory birds in captivity retain the urge to go some place else when the season changes. Science does not respect anybody's privacy; a chippy sparrow has small chance to keep a secret once the ornithologists get interested.

THE FEDERAL CENSUS Bureau informs us that in the year 1935, 293 deaths occurred in Ithaca. 420 babies were born here in the same period. This section is a rural one, however, and there is still lots of room for expansion.

NEW RECORD of forty-four births in Ithaca's Memorial Hospital during July included three sets of twins

IMPORTANT ADJUNCTS to the Summer Session are the many special gatherings held for a few days each year which bring to the Campus many alumni and other visitors. Among those of this summer were the State 4-H Club Congress June 27-30, which brought 1500 farm and village boys and girls; an assembly of the 172d district of Rotary International which brought 100 officials and officers of thirty-six clubs to Willard Straight Hall July 19; simultaneously with a conference sponsored by the State Department of Education and the Graduate School of Education, on "Youth Problems, Industrial Arts, and Vocational Education;" a two-weeks' School for Town and Country Ministers the end of July which brought fifty-two, of five denominations, led by Professor Dwight Sanderson '98, Rural Social Organization; a two-day conference of State Extension workers, on CAMPUS POLICING caught the new President before he had been in Ithaca ten days, Dr. Day revealed in the course of his first address to students, during the Summer Session. He found a ticket on his car, parked behind Willard Straight, courteously reminding him that that was a "limited" area and advising that if he were an officer, employee, or student of the University he should apply for a sticker entitling him to park on the Campus. "I have done so," the President said.

"The Philosophy of Public Problems," with seventy-five visitors; and a second conference arranged by the State Education Department and the Graduate School of Education, for school administrators and personnel workers, on "Child Accounting and Guidance," August 2-6.

CORNELL BRANCH of the New York State Federation of Teachers' Unions opened a headquarters at 209 Dryden Road, to give "opportunity for social and intellectual exchange," and distributed 2,000 copies of a mimeographed organ, "Teacher News."

HOLLYHOCKS GROW TALL in Ithaca. A piece about one in East Pembroke 9 feet 6½ inches high brought the Ithaca Journal contemptuous statements from Professor Samuel L. Boothroyd, Astronomy, that he had one 10 feet 3 inches tall "and still growing," and Dean Dexter S. Kimball, Engineering Emeritus, claimed second place for his Central Avenue back yard with a specimen Althaea rosea 9 feet 9 inches, and also still growing. Few days later, following a storm of claims, the Journal published as the official record for Tompkins County the 11 foot-6-inch hollyhock of Mrs. S. R. Dean of Dryden R. D. 2, with Professor Laurence H. McDaniels, PhD '17, Pomology, in second place with a stalk 11 feet ½ inch high on his West Hill farm.

ROGER N. HALL, physical director of the Ithaca YMCA since 1928 and often referee of Varsity wrestling meets on the Hill, resigned August 1 to become a partner in a sporting goods business in Presque Isle, Me.

NOTE TO ADVERTISERS: The seventeen lines by Romeyn Berry about the new Ithaca and Finger Lakes illustrated folders, which appeared on this page June 17, brought requests for folders to the Ithaca Chamber of Commerce from ALUMNI NEWS readers in twelve States—from Colorado through Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, North Carolina, and the East, reports Secretary Ralph C. Smith '15.

INVITATIONS are out to the inauguration on October 8 of Edmund Ezra Day as the fifth President of Cornell University. It's a Tiffany job on heavy linen paper the size of an income tax return for persons of modest means. They are going to have the inauguration in Bailey Hall again. It was a little stuffy and crowded when they had it there before, and most folks couldn't get in at all, but it's a lot easier for the management.

JAMES E. MATTHEWS '17, since 1930 City Clerk of Ithaca, has resigned to become assistant to Charles D. Bostwick '92 Comptroller of the University. For the remainder of the calendar year Mr. Matthews, while performing his new duties in the Comptroller's Department, will also supervise the work of the City Clerk's office. The arrangement was fixed up that way for the joint convenience of the Mayor and the University Administration.

WELCOME VISITOR to Ithaca for three weeks last month was Gilmour Dobie, now football coach at Boston College. Characteristically, Mr. Dobie explained to friends that the three children wanted to visit Ithaca anyway; he wanted to look over the house he owns here; and Daughter Jane preferred to have her appendix out at Ithaca Hospital, which she did. The rest of the family stayed with the Frank Sheehans.

WILLARD STRAIGHT HALL board of managers for next year will be headed by Edmund F. Pfeifer '38 of Hackensack, N. J., elected president; with William C. Kruse '38 of St. Davids, Pa., secretary.

FOUR YEARS AGO, you may remember, the men tore down what had been the University Club on Central Avenue. Before that it had been Sage Cottage and still before that, Mrs. Prentiss's house. Now they are shifting over that New Road that curves up the Library slope by easy gradients so that it will run right over the former site of the defunct University Club and enter Central Avenue opposite the point where New Road up to Schoellkopf joins on.

IT ISN'T THE DAYS that have moved into the Professor Dennis place on University Avenue across from Boldt Hall, as reported on this page last issue; but the Farrands, while the President's House is being made ready for its new tenants and the new Farrand place at Brewster receives the finishing touches. Even so, perhaps Dr. Farrand, living across the street from the dormitories during the Summer Session and rushing season, may find out things about the University he didn't know before!

NECROLOGY

'74 BME—WILLIAM NACE SMITH, June 15, 1937, the result of a fall at his home, 69 Orsego Street, Canajoharie. For sixty years he had been with the firm of Arkell and Smith, bag manufacturers, much of the time as secretary, until he retired January 1, 1937. He attended the sixty-year reunion of his Class in 1934.

'85—CHARLES LEE HALL, June 3, 1937, in New York City. For fifty years an undertaker, he was for thirty-three years sexton and funeral director of the West End Collegiate Church in New York and for several years funeral director of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church. Entering the Optional Course in 1881 from Canisteo, he played on the Varsity football team two years, was secretary and a director of the Athletic Association, and was catcher on the baseball team four years. After leaving Cornell he played with Waverly and came back to play two games with Cornell against the Syracuse Stars in the fall of '85. He received a gold medal from the Athletic Association for general athletic ability.

'90 ME (EE)—PHILIP BELL WOODWORTH, June 7, 1937, at his home, 600 Hickory Road, Glen Ellyn, Ill. Receiving the BS at Michigan State College in '86, he entered Sibley College the next year, and spent 1890-91 at the University of Berlin, Germany. He was assistant professor of physics and engineering at Michigan State from '92 to '99; from '99 to 1917 was professor and dean of engineering at Lewis Institute, Chicago, Ill., and from 1921-23 was president of Rose Polytechnic Institute, Terre Haute, Ind. In 1920 he received the DSc degree at Michigan State. From 1917-21 he was regional director for the North Central States of the war plans division, general staff, U.S. Army, in charge of educational work in military camps; and for thirty years he was a member of the Chicago firm of Rummier, Rummier & Woodworth, consulting engineers and attorneys. He was a member of several Bar and engineering associations, of Tau Beta Pi, Phi Delta Theta, and the Cornell Club of Chicago.

'94 AB—EZRA PIERCE REYNOLDS, May 4, 1937. For many years he was a lawyer with the Weschester Title & Mortgage Co. in White Plains. Phi Beta Kappa, Quill and Dagger.

'96 ME (EE)—JOHN COOPER LYNCH, June 29, 1937, at Stockbridge, Mass. where he had retired six years ago to the farm deeded to his great-great-grandfather by the Stockbridge Indians in 1765. His entire business life had been with the Bell Telephone interests, first in New York, then in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, until he became assistant vice-president of A. T. & T. and one of the pioneers of radio broadcasting in the establishment of Station WEAJ. Upon his retirement to Stockbridge he became active in civic affairs, being chairman of the board of the Housatanic National Bank, vice-president of the Stockbridge Library Association and Stockbridge Water Company, treasurer of the Berkshire Symphonic Festival Association, and a director of the Berkshire Playhouse. He was president of the Class of '96 and arranged the successful Class reunion in 1927.

'97 PhB, '02 PhD—LEE BARKER WALTON, May 15, 1937, at Gambier, Ohio, where for thirty-five years he had been professor of biology at Kenyon College. He was a member of the '97 Cornellian and Class Book boards and of Alpha Tau Omega, and took second place in the University middleweight wrestling championships. Following graduation he studied two years at the University of Bonn, Germany, received the AM at Brown in 1901, and returned as Goldwin Smith fellow to take the Doctor's degree. Member of many professional societies, he was a former president and secretary of the Ohio Academy of Science and president of the Ohio Intercollegiate Athletic Association. Sigma Xi.

'03 ME—EDGAR GRIFFITH FRANCE, June 23, 1937, in South Bend, Ind. He entered Sibley College in 1899 from Lake Forest Academy, Lake Forest, Ill., and immediately after graduation entered the employ of the Singer Sewing Machine Co. as a draughtsman. For nineteen years he had been their general superintendent. Chi Psi, Mummy.

'11 AM, '15 PhD—MRS. WILBERT AMIE CLEMENS (Lucy Wright Smith), May 23, 1937, at Nanaimo, B. C., where she had been director of research at the Pacific Biological Station since 1925. She received the AB degree at Mt. Holyoke, spent the year 1910-11 in the Graduate School, and returned in 1913, teaching biology meanwhile at the University of Toronto, where she returned in 1915.

'17 AB—ALEXANDER HAMILTON GARNJOST, July 1, 1937, in Yonkers, his lifetime home. He entered the Law School, but transferred to Arts, and after graduation received the AM and LLB degrees at Columbia. As a Sophomore he was a member of the Varsity baseball squad, and last year was Cornell Day chairman for his fraternity, Pi Lambda Phi.

Concerning THE FACULTY

PRESIDENT EDMUND E. DAY and Mrs. Day are spending a holiday until after Labor Day in Hanover, N. H. Their eldest son, Emerson Day, married Ruth Fairchild of Hanover, in the Church of Christ at Dartmouth College, August 7, his father acting as best man. Mrs. Day was graduated at Connecticut College for Women and received the MA at Teachers' College, Columbia. The bridegroom was graduated at Dartmouth in '34, where he was a Senior Fellow and member of Phi Beta Kappa and Zeta Psi, and is entering his fourth year at Harvard Medical School.

DR. FARRAND, President Emeritus, left Ithaca August 1 for several weeks of fishing, to stay at the Salmon Fishing Club in Quebec. Mrs. Farrand was a guest on Harold S. Vanderbilt's yacht, "Vara," during the International Cup races off Newport, R. I.

PROFESSOR ARTHUR C. DAHLBERG of the Geneva Experiment Station is one of the delegates appointed by President Roosevelt to represent the United States at the eleventh World's Dairy Congress, in Berlin, Germany, August 22-28.

PROVOST ALBERT R. MANN '04, guest with Mrs. Mann at a tea and reception given in Willard Straight Hall July 12 by Epsilon Sigma Phi, honorary Extension fraternity, on the eve of his severing his connection with the University, was made an honorary member of the fraternity, for his services to agriculture and the Extension Service. Among the seventy-five guests were President Day and President-Emeritus Farrand and Mrs. Farrand.

PROFESSOR EDWARD LAWSON '13, Architecture, who was the first Cornellian to win the Rome Prize in landscape architecture, is spending the summer travelling in Egypt, Greece, Italy, France, and England. From Rome he writes to friends in Ithaca of meeting the King at the annual exhibit of the American Academy. He is taking movies and color pictures to be used in his teaching.

PROFESSOR RIVERDA H. JORDAN, Education, chairman of the Faculty committee on secondary schools and as such one of the most faithful of Cornell's "travelling professors," recommends the training he has had in visiting Cornell Clubs and schools over the country as excellent training for "iron men" and "preparation for the vicissitudes of foreign travel." Last March, he and Mrs. Jordan embarked for a Sabbatic leave in Europe. Following a prearranged schedule entirely "on their own" without benefit of travel bureau, they visited some 106 points of interest in ten countries and 99 days, without, the Professor proudly reports, deviation of more than one day from the schedule, or mishap or serious misadventure, and they returned in excellent health.

WRITING IN FORTUNE Magazine, Professors George F. Warren '03 and Frank A. Pearson '12, Agricultural Economics, predict a building boom in the United States that will continue until about 1943. "The Government can to some extent stir up or dampen building activity," they say, "but the cycle, for all practical purposes, is outside Government control."

DEAN GEORGE YOUNG, JR. '00, Architecture, reports royal entertainment by Cornellians working on the TVA project at Norris town, Tenn. Tracy B. Augur '17 is town planner of the new town of Norris town. Dean Young was entertained by the whole group of alumni there and members of the faculty of the University of Tennessee, with a boat ride on Norris Lake, above the great dam, and at dinner, where he spoke to forty.

PROFESSOR WALTER F. WILLCOX, Economics, Emeritus, sailed for Europe July 9 to attend a meeting of the International Statistical Institute at The Hague, and the International Population Congress in Paris.

PROFESSOR GLENN W. SALISBURY, PhD '34, Animal Husbandry, and Mrs. Salisbury are spending the summer bicycling over the British Isles and the Continent.

THIS SIDE OF REGRET, a new novel by Clarissa Cushman, who is the wife of Professor Robert E. Cushman, Government, was published by Little, Brown & Co., July 25.

PROFESSOR BRISTOW ADAMS, Agriculture Publications, returned July 14 from three weeks of teaching at University of Colorado, and on August 11 sailed from New York City aboard the "Chinese Prince" for a Sabbatic leave of six months to be spent travelling around the world by tramp steamers south of the equator. His itinerary includes ports in South America, South Africa, India, Malay Straits, Dutch East Indies, New Guinea, New Zealand, Hawaii, and the smaller islands of the South Seas. In the Journal of Forestry for July, 1937, Professor Adams writes "Cornell: An Appreciation," describing the work and history of the Forestry Department from the day, May 24, 1914, when as secretary of the Society of American Foresters he made his first visit to Ithaca for the dedication of the new Forestry Building (now Fernow Hall), the first building in any American university erected specifically for instruction in forestry.

BOOKS By Cornellians

AN AMERICAN EPIC

Northwest Passage. By Kenneth Roberts '08. New York. Doubleday, Doran & Co. 1937. 709 pages. $2.75.

This book is much more than the story, "Rogers' Rangers," which the Saturday Evening Post published serially last spring. "Rogers' Rangers" was an episode detached from the complete opus: the narrative of a military expedition and the portrait sketch of an admirable leader, Major Robert Rogers.

Northwest Passage, the whole book, is a vast historical novel in which a new continent becomes successively, and within the space of thirty years, Indian, French, British, and American. Against this background a character of heroic proportions (Rogers), admirable for his dynamic qualities, gradually melts away before your eyes for lack of any other qualities.

Kenneth Roberts keeps going up and up with each successive book. Northwest Passage retains the elements that made Arundel and Rabble in Arms successful—fast moving narrative, sound reporting, and conscientious scholarship—and adds to them an epic quality not so clearly discernible in the other books. The theme of Rogers, the crumbling hero, blessed and cursed at birth by the gods of Olympus, beats and throbs between the pages and pounds on the brain as you try to concentrate on a drama that appears to deal with the possession of a continent. It's a matter of overtones and underlying pulsations. The same material could have been woven into a rather tremendous epic done in hexameters, or into a cycle of operas. Having seized a pencil rather than a harp, Kenneth Roberts has made it into a novel!

Langdon Towne, dismissed student of Harvard College and painter, tells the story. Forced from his home at Portsmouth he joins Rogers' Rangers under Lord Amherst, takes part in the massacre at St. Francis and the terrible retreat through the wilderness, and thereafter becomes the fascinated companion and personal bard of Major Rogers. The two, now together, now apart, live through the next twenty years sometimes in the London of Edmund Burke, Hogarth, Benjamin Franklin, and Charles Fox, and sometimes among the Indians at Oswego or at Mackinac, the four corners of the Great Lakes, where Rogers as Royal Governor, hamstrung by traders and politicians, dreams of the Northwest Passage across the Indian country, robs the till, gets drunk, and goes to pieces.

Towne goes up in the world as a painter of Indians while Rogers goes down to become in the end a sponging sot and a turncoat in the Revolution. Always, however, you are made to feel the bigness of Rogers and that but for the turn of a card he might have been a Clive or a Cecil Rhodes in a vast empire covering the land from the Great Lakes to the Western ocean.

Mr. Roberts seems to have taken for his field the dry cleaning of bespotted historical reputations. In the other books he makes Benedict Arnold, traitor, a hero but for the perversity of fate. Here again he makes you feel—with all the damaging exhibits received in evidence and spread upon the record—that Major Rogers, tireless fighter and dreamer of empires, sot and moral weakling, might have ranked with Washington in history, had he not been the victim of petty jealousies among the gods who pulled and hauled for and against as the Hero, unknowing, followed a trail through life not always of his own selection.

Northwest Passage is a book to give to a thoughtful friend about to embark for Europe on a slow boat. If he is going on the Queen Mary he will have time only to skim through it, and it ought to be read and reread. Structurally, the book might be criticised as being two or three books. That fault is also the fault of the Iliad and the Aeneid. It's a fault that goes with having an epic theme.

SAVING THE SOIL

Conservation of the Soil. By Professor Axel F. Gustafson, PhD '20, Agronomy. New York City. McGraw-Hill Book Company, Inc. 1937. xvii + 312 pages. $3.00.

It's a mistake to believe that agricultural lands generally stay where they are put. They are always being moved around or taken away by water, wind, or waves unless somebody does something about it. The phenomenon is by no means limited to Dust Bowls, valleys susceptible to floods, and recently de-forested sections. The process of erosion may be going on in your own back yard through the washing away of organic matter essential to plant life.

The people of the United States are gradually waking up to the importance of soil conservation; and not a moment too soon. Professor Gustafson's book tells all about the subject—and what to do about it—in a manner equally clear and interesting to the practical farmer and to the enthusiast whose agricultural activities are limited to nursing a window box.

A FIRST NOVEL

Priscilla Devens. By Elisabeth Stoughton Griffiths '06. Springfield, Mass. King-Richardson Company. 1936. 213 pages. $1.75.

With a plot worthy of one of the young moderns and a style influenced by the St. Elmo school, this novel of a beautiful widow with a strict New England conscience "teems with emotion" to the very end. Mrs. Griffiths has a sense of the dramatic in incident which, coupled with the ability to omit extraneous details, sets a quick pace. The rapid sequence of unexpected turns and quick shifts in action keeps the reader interested.

In the loosely-knit subplot, there is good characterization of the poor working-girl, while the main characters are drawn with bold, conventional strokes. One can almost feel Mrs. Griffiths suffering with her heroine, despising her mean, weak villain, and rejoicing in the manly strength of her hero. The ending is logically satisfying.

ELEMENTS OF FINANCE

An Introduction to Money, Banking, and Corporations. By Professor Paul M. O'Leary, PhD '29, Economics, and John H. Patterson '25, visiting lecturer in economics, New York University, New York City. The Macmillan Company. 1937. ix + 175 pages. $1.75.

This work is primarily intended as a university textbook in economics; as a students' guide through the mysteries of money, credit, banking, international exchange, and corporate finance. It explains simply and with rare lucidity fundamental matters of finance which most men discuss glibly enough during a Presidential campaign, and in the smoking compartments of Pullman cars, with something less than complete understanding.

The functions of the Federal Reserve system, the role of holding companies, the significance of a monetary standard—these and kindred matters it discusses in a manner comprehensible to sophomores and college graduates whose knowledge of these subjects is vastly more superficial than they imagine, or than it ought to be.

Concerning THE ALUMNI

'72 MS, '86 LLD—Dr. David Starr Jordan, who with Dr. Andrew D. White received the only honorary degrees ever given by the University, was memorialized by the Alumni Association of Stanford University and the local Stanford Alumni Club as their first University president, when a framed portrait of Dr. Jordan was presented June 2 to the David Starr Jordan High School in Long Beach, Calif.

'94 AB; '30 AM—Mrs. Herbert D. Brown (Harriet C. Connor) and Mr. Brown have given up their home in Washington, D. C. and will live henceforth the year 'round at their home, Glenora-on-Lake Seneca, in Yates County. Their daughter, Constance C. Brown '30, spent the summer with them there, but will return to Washington this fall.

'95, '97 BL; '97 PhB—Robert H. Haskell is an assistant corporation counsel of the City of New York. He is a former member of the Era board, and was for a time on the staff of the New York Herald. Mrs. Haskell was Oreola Williams '97, a former editor of the Cornell Magazine. Their address is 90 Prospect Park, West, Brooklyn.

'98 LLB—Reuben L. Haskell is a member of the Transit Commission of the City of New York, engaged in formulating plans for transit unification. He lives at 1216 Herkimer Street, Brooklyn.

'99 MD; '06 MD—Dr. Guy S. Carpenter, of Waverly, was elected to the Council of the Medical Society of the State of New York, at its annual meeting in Rochester in May. Dr. Floyd S. Winslow, of Rochester, retired as president of the Society.

'01 AB—Emma Gertrude Kunze, of 6399 Woodbine Avenue, Overbrook, Philadelphia, Pa., has been appointed head of the department of foreign languages at Kensington High School, Philadelphia, Pa.

'03 AB—Edwin N. Ferdon is with The American Art Works, Inc., in Coshocton, Ohio, manufacturers of lithographed metal signs and displays, calendars, celluloid, metal, and leather specialties. September 1 he plans to move into a new home he is building at 711 Cambridge Street, Coshocton.

'05 AB, '07 LLB; '11 AB—James C. Argetsinger, whose rejoinder to Romeyn Berry on the subject of the tomcats of Hector our readers may recall in the ALUMNI NEWS March 25, has been the chief bargaining agent with the CIO and Federal Mediation Board in the labor troubles of the Youngstown Sheet & Tube Company, of which he is vice-president and general counsel. On a recent visit to Ithaca, while spending a holiday at the home farm at Burdett, Argetsinger was interviewed by a representative of the Ithaca Journal. "I'm not against collective bargaining," he said, "but all for it. Our company has had it since 1909, when Mackenzie King, now prime minister of Canada, drew up our 'representation plan,' under which employees are their own bargaining agency. What I am against is this 'remote control' system of labor control which outsiders try to run. They're not interested in the employees, but mainly in collecting dues. And the workers won't stand for it. They won't allow comparative foreigners to come in and beat up their fellow-workmen. No one likes to see his neighbor beaten up by an outsider, even though he might like to see another neighbor do it." Mrs. Argetsinger was Lulu Williams '11.

'06 AB, '08 LLB—George G. Bogert, James Parker Hall professor at Chicago University Law School and member of the Cornell Law School Faculty from 1911-25, was last year president of the Association of American Law Schools. He recently addressed alumni of the law school of Indiana University and the Iowa Bar Association.

'07 ME; '40—The son of Professor and Mrs. William B. Cornell '07 and great-grandson of the Founder, William Ezra Cornell '40, married Elsie Marian Bomhoff in Montclair, N. J., June 28. Mrs. Cornell was graduated June 12 at Centenary Collegiate Institute at Hacketts-town, Md. Young Cornell is a Sophomore next year in the pre-Law course in Arts and Sciences. Their wedding day was also the fifty-fifth wedding anniversary of Charles E. Cornell, primogeniture Trustee of the University, and Mrs. Cornell, of Ithaca, the bridegroom's grandparents. Professor Cornell is chairman of the department of business management at New York University; he lives at 197 Grove Street, Montclair, N. J.

'08 MD—Dr. Benjamin Jablons, 90 River Drive, New York City, described before the Medical Society of the State of New York, meeting in Rochester in May, a kidney extract which not only reduces the high blood pressure accompanying one kind of kidney disease, but has saved lives of dying patients and restored the eyesight of others threatened with blindness.

'09 BArch; '14 BArch—John W. Root, of Chicago, Ill., and Roland E. Coate, of Los Angeles, Calif., are among the twenty-three architects honored by election as fellows of the American Institute of Architects at its sixty-ninth meeting, in Boston, Mass., the end of May.

'09 MD—Rosa Lee, whose singing voice is broadcast twice weekly on National Broadcasting Company programs, is the wife of Dr. Charles Wolf '09, 161

THERE'S STILL TIME

There's still time for your son, or that neighbor's boy in whom you are interested, to get into Sheldon Court next year. Our Seniors this year left a few vacancies which are still unfilled, but you'll have to hurry!

Boys who have roomed with us tell their friends, and an increasing number of alumni each year send their Freshman sons to live at Sheldon Court.

They know the convenience of its location on College Avenue, just outside the Campus gates; the comfort of its warm, well-lighted rooms; and the friendly spirit that has made Sheldon Court a real college home to succeeding generations of Cornell students for thirty-four years.

Planned and built as a college dormitory by the father of three Cornell sons, Sheldon Court offers special advantages not to be found elsewhere in Ithaca.

Those who live in Sheldon Court find it a quiet, comfortable place to live and work. Their families know how little it costs—rates start at $120 a year, including light, heat, and room service.

If your boy is coming to Cornell next year, send NOW for our folder.

Through the winter and spring we have worked together, and in separate sub-committee groups, planning the details of the inauguration of Dr. Day which will take place October 8, 1937. This committee has been interesting and educative to its members, who have learned that planning an inauguration is a matter of considerable detail and thought. In this connection the services of Woodford Patterson, Secretary of the University, have been invaluable.

Early in April, 1937, a committee, consisting of Bancroft Gherardi, Chairman, Roger H. Williams, and myself, was appointed, at the request of the President, to consider a proposal that the first year of the Medical School, now maintained at Ithaca, be discontinued. This committee has not yet made its final report but it has been actively at work on the problem involved.

The rate of physical development of the University since 1932 has not kept pace with that of the preceding five years. However, we have seen several new buildings rise on the campus, and we have continued to plan for others which must materialize in the near future.

In 1933 one of the largest and finest of the State College buildings was completed and put in use. This is the new building for the College of Home Economics, properly named "Martha Van Rensselaer Hall" in honor of the famous woman who with her co-worker, Miss Flora Rose, now Director of the College, created the College of Home Economics. This College today ranks first among the institutions of its kind in the country; it has grown in importance on the campus and in the State and is the center of progressive education for women along its particular lines. The pressure for admission to it increases steadily, indicating that it fulfills at least partially the needs of the State of New York for such education. From it go well-trained young women who take up positions of importance in the business and educational world.

Our Veterinary College also stands in a position of preeminence in the field of its endeavors. In recognition of its increasing needs for new equipment the State has donated a new laboratory building, named "Moore Hall" in honor of Dr. Veranus Alva Moore, a great scientist and teacher and former Dean of the College. This building is in the process of construction and will be completed in the near future.

In the College of Agriculture the development of the Department of Agricultural Economics had gradually outgrown its old building. At the same time the important Department of Entomology was desirous of a building in which to center its work. The State of New York appropriated the money to erect a new building for Agricultural Economics and it was opened for work in March, 1933. After some changes had been effected the old building was turned over to the Entomology Department and renamed "Comstock Hall."

One of the outstanding contributions of the College of Agriculture has been to the Federal Government during the last five or ten years. By request of the Federal Administration we have loaned some of our ablest men for work in Washington. Some of them have returned to their teaching, much to our satisfaction, while others are still on leave of absence and serve the country as a whole from Washington.

For years the University has been hoping to devote a parcel of the land to an arboretum where an adequate study of plants and trees could be carried on. In 1934 this work began to move forward and comprehensive plans outlining the area and scope of the work were completed. We were enabled to begin the construction of this arboretum, with Federal funds made available for the reduction of unemployment and from this source we have paid the men who have been engaged in the road-making, grading, planting, etc., which enter into this development. When finished, the arboretum will be a source of endless satisfaction and education to the generations of students to come, besides adding beauty to the campus.

For years the University Library has been hampered by lack of space. Books have been accumulating faster than room could be found for them and some valuable collections have been unavailable for study due to this condition. During 1936 the Trustees decided to appropriate sufficient funds to add a wing to the present building, the entire wing to be devoted to stacks. This work is nearing completion. It relieves the situation somewhat but only for a time. One of the great needs of the University is a new Library building adequate in size and so designed that it may serve the needs of the faculties and students of the several colleges.

It is a matter of satisfaction to report that during the current year plans for a Pension System have been completed and adopted by the Board. This system, together with our group insurance, gives some measure of security to our faculties and administrative staff. The next important need of the University along these lines is to raise the general level of salaries in the University. The quality of our teaching is high and we owe it to our teachers to remunerate them adequately. Unless we can achieve this it is inevitable that we lose many promising men to other universities which can afford to pay more. The strength of an educational institution rests in its faculty. Buildings, beautiful sites, and athletic prowess never can compete with superior teaching.

Although I have not served on any committee entrusted with direct supervision of the affairs of the Medical College, I have followed closely its work and development. The association of the College with New York Hospital, in the new buildings on York Avenue, has resulted in an arrangement of curriculum and administration divergent from that prevailing heretofore. New problems inevitably have arisen, many of which have not been settled as yet. To my fellow alumni of the Medical College I venture to say the College needs their help and support in the solution of these problems.

During the last five years the Board of Trustees has lost six of its outstanding members. It is with a great deal of sadness that I report the deaths of these devoted servants of Cornell with whom I am proud to have served:

Edwin N. Sanderson, Roger B. Williams, H. H. Westinghouse, Cuthbert W. Pound, Mynderse Van Cleef, Robert H. Treman.

All served many years on the Board, and all are deeply lamented. The death of R. H. Treman in particular came as a blow to the entire University and the City of Ithaca. It is almost impossible to realize that he has gone. To those of us who must carry on, his example will ever stand as the ideal toward which we aim.

In looking back over the years since 1932, I am struck by one aspect of the general University situation, as worthy of comment. I refer to the manner in which the University has faced these years of depression. In common with other organizations in this country Cornell, its administration, faculties, and students have felt the heavy burden of reduced income and increased needs. The manner in which everyone on the campus met this situation has won the respect and admiration of all who understood it. Although our financial policy has been sound and our assets have been skillfully conserved, the inevitable reduction of the University's income, due to the general financial condition, made it necessary in 1933 to institute a 10 percent reduction in all salaries from the top to the bottom, including all branches of work and service in the University. To an institution like Cornell, where there are few, if any, large salaries, the effect of such a cut was very serious. The spirit of complete cooperation and cheerfulness under this deprivation, united with a loyal determination to endure anything necessary for the good of the University, was the unanimous reaction to the announcement of the reduction. I am glad to report that in the past year plans have been begun to restore the former status in as many cases as possible.

Among the students the financial problem has been even more acute. Increasing numbers of them have had to apply to the University for aid in whatever form it could be secured, including part-time employments of an amazing variety. The entire campus cooperated in an attempt to make it possible for the students who were in difficulties to stay at the University. Scholarship funds were spread as far as they could go, loan funds likewise, and great ingenuity was shown in the contriving of small positions which would carry either board or lodging or both. One great aid both to the students and to the faculties has been the funds of the National Youth Administration. These funds have made it possible to pay students varying amounts, not exceeding $20 per month, for work done in the various academic departments of Cornell. The advantage has been that in most cases the students have been working along lines actually related to their studies and the hard-pressed departments were likewise enabled to obtain the necessary clerical and other work for which their reduced budgets could not provide. The inadequate sums for aid to the women students were augmented by the use of the interest from the Dormitory Fund. It is an indication of improving conditions at Cornell that last year the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs recommended to the President and the Board of Trustees that the interest on this fund be now used to provide five Senior Alumnae Scholarships of $200 each. These Scholarships are awarded in the spring to Juniors, recognizing scholarship, character, contributions to the life of the campus, and financial need.

As we draw slowly out of the depression we may congratulate ourselves upon the wise and careful way in which Cornell University met its problems and managed to protect the interests of the students in its care. It could not have been done without the fullest cooperation and devotion from everyone in the University and Ithaca.

Another aspect of the last five years has been the feeling of the approaching close of a brilliant period of the University's development. In 1934 the Board asked President Farrand to stay in office until June, 1937, the latest date at which it was possible for him to be retired; and this event is now upon us. Inevitably we feel a sadness and a certain sense of regret. But in the affairs of a living and growing institution, such as Cornell, there is felt at the same time a lift of spirit produced by the thought that a new era, bringing its own peculiar contribution to the University, is about to begin. We are losing a leader who has devotedly served Cornell but we are gaining a new President who promises to lead us onward and upward in the coming years.

After ten years as a member of the Board of Trustees I am keenly aware of certain definite needs of the University which I would like to lay before the alumni of the University in the hope that through their aid at least some of these pressing needs may be secured:

1. A new Library building, as mentioned above, is urgently required. Plans have been prepared, a new site has been selected and the University community awaits with eagerness the gift from some wise person of the necessary funds to bring this building into being.

2. An increased endowment to improve the salaries of the teaching staff has also been mentioned. I cannot lay too great a stress

RETIRING ALUMNI TRUSTEES REPORT

We print below the reports made upon completion of their five-year terms of office by the two Alumni Trustees who retired in June. They were distributed at the annual meeting of the Cornell Alumni Corporation in Ithaca, June 19. Dr. Mary M. Crawford '04 was first elected to the Board of Trustees in 1927, and served two terms. Archie C. Burnett '90 was elected in 1932. They have been succeeded by Mary H. Donlon '20 and Alfred H. Hutchinson '09.

By Archie C. Burnett '90

My association in connection with the work as a member of the Board of Trustees during the past five years has been a source of pleasure and satisfaction. My decision not to become a candidate for re-election was due largely to the fact that most of my active work for Cornell has been done during the administration of Dr. Farrand, and for certain sentimental reasons I felt that I should like to retire as a Trustee at the same time that he was leaving the Presidency. Further, I believe that a younger and more active alumnus can be of greater service to the University than I.

During the past five years, many important events have transpired which have very directly concerned Cornell. The entire Athletic Association has been taken over by the University and I believe that was a very wise step for the University to take. Our Athletic Director is now a member of the Faculty and all the athletic activities in connection with the University are directly under its supervision.

One of the serious problems which confronts not only Cornell, but many other institutions of higher education, is the financial problem. This has been particularly emphasized during the recent severe financial depression. With income and inheritance taxes steadily rising, it is becoming increasingly difficult for a university to benefit by large gifts from individuals of wealth. In that connection, therefore, greater stress should be constantly laid upon more numerous small donations in an effort to raise funds. Unquestionably one of the most effective results attained along the line of providing funds for Cornell is the work of the Committee on Bequests of the Cornellian Council in its efforts to induce alumni and other individuals to insert clauses in their wills providing for certain gifts to the University upon their decease. I also believe that a very early effort should be made to repeat the drive for a large endowment similar to that which we had in 1919, at which time over $6,000,000 was raised.

I have always been a thorough believer in increasing the tuition fee to a point as nearly as possible where it would be sufficient to provide for the expense incurred by the University in the education of each individual student. I realize that cannot be done by Cornell, unless most other universities do likewise. The objection to taking steps toward that end would be that an increase in tuition would prevent many students from entering the University. That fact could be counterbalanced by providing a sufficient number of scholarships for worthy and desirable students who are unable to pay the full tuition fee. I have never been able to understand why a student's parents, who were able to pay the expenses incurred by the University for his education, should not do so.

In my travels through the South, it is pathetic to find many smaller colleges during the recent depression which have been compelled either to close their doors entirely, or are barely able to keep their heads above water—all due of course to a lack of sufficient income. With the income return on investments considerably less than in years past, and with the ever increasing difficulty of raising large amounts of money from single individuals by donation for specific or endowment purposes, educational institutions like Cornell are severely taxed, and some years find it impossible to balance their budgets. And a university president finds himself greatly handicapped in his efforts to have provisions made for the crying needs of his institution.

We are now confronted with a desire to institute pensions for professors who are retiring on account of the age limit, and we are severely taxed to make adequate provisions for that purpose, which is so sorely needed. Cornell is most fortunate in having a very able administration and a loyal and devoted faculty, by reason of which she has been able to make a very remarkable showing with the comparatively limited endowment at her command.

Cornell occupies a unique position in having funds provided by the State of New York for operation of the State Colleges, and also a private endowment fund, returns from which are applicable to its privately endowed colleges. Up to the present time, Cornell has had little difficulty in securing a sufficient number of students to fill her capacity in most of the colleges; but with most of the states supporting large state universities where tuition fees are nominal or students who are residents of the state may even secure their education without the payment of any tuition fee whatever, the problem becomes more difficult for private institutions like Cornell to meet a large portion of its expenses through tuition fees. The task of managing an institution whose annual expenses exceed $4,000,000 is in itself no small one, but where the income each year is barely enough to meet those expenses and the greatest economy in every department has to be practiced in order to keep within that income, the task becomes manifestly more difficult. I hope, therefore, that every alumnus will feel it his duty to contribute what he can reasonably afford to assist toward lightening the financial burden of Cornell.

Regarding the athletic situation, there is a great preponderance of feeling on the part of alumni against athletic scholarships, and as Dr. Farrand has so wisely stated, we would rather see no football at all at Cornell, than to have a professional team. It seems to me, however, that general athletics in the University should be encouraged still further, and I believe that every student who is physically able should be required to take some form of athletic exercise, and further, that every student should pay a larger fee for the purpose of supporting physical exercise and intramural sports in the University. I believe steps are now being taken toward that end. The physi-

Herewith I have the honor to submit a report of my second term as Alumni Trustee of Cornell University, in accordance with the By-Laws of the Cornell Alumni Corporation.

During the five years which have elapsed since June, 1932, I have been a member of the State College Council in charge of the affairs of the three State Colleges—Agriculture, Veterinary Medicine, and Home Economics. The affairs of the Agriculture Experiment Station at Geneva are also included, as a part of the College of Agriculture.

At the meeting of the Board of Trustees held in June, 1935, I was elected to its Committee on General Administration, which is in effect the executive committee of the Board. This committee meets monthly, with a few exceptions, and before it come all sorts of questions concerning the management of the University. The committee has power to settle many of these questions, referring to the full Board only those matters which the Board as a whole must settle. While the work of the Committee is somewhat exacting, it is, of course, the most interesting on which a Trustee may serve. I am glad to have been able to attend all but four of these meetings in the two years that I have been a member of the C. G. A.

During my first term I served on a special committee on Compulsory vs. Elective Military Drill. After two years of work this committee made its final report in June, 1933, and was discharged. Our unanimous recommendation "that the substitution of elective for compulsory military training should not, at the present time, be effected" was accepted by the faculty and students with calmness and, since then, the issue has not been raised as an acute problem. We may safely leave to the future any change in this decision which may come about with the years.

Following the election of Dr. Edmund Ezra Day to succeed Dr. Farrand as President of Cornell, the Chairman of the Board appointed the following committee to arrange for the inauguration ceremonies: Frank E. Gannett, Chairman, H. E. Babcock, Charles H. Blair, Mary M. Crawford, George R. Pfann, J. F. Schoellkopf, Jr. The committee had power to add to its numbers, and at the first meeting elected the following officials of the University:

TRUSTEE BURNETT'S REPORT

cal or health growth of the student body is quite as important as its mental development, and every graduate leaving Cornell should do so with the feeling that he or she is not only better equipped mentally, but also physically, for meeting the problems of life.

In the election of Alumni Trustees, I think the Alumni Corporation should endeavor to have at least seven candidates submit their names for nomination, out of which normally two are elected each year. I cannot too strongly emphasize the fact that the spending of money for campaign expenses for the election of an Alumni Trustee should be frowned upon by the University. It has reached the point where a thorough canvass for election may well involve the expenditure of at least $3,000, and many capable alumni who would be excellent material for the position of Alumni Trustee are thereby deterred from becoming candidates, feeling that it is hopeless to try for election without the expenditure of a comparatively large sum of money.

Cornell has been especially fortunate during the past sixteen years in having as its President a man who is not only an able administrator, but one who has secured the hearty cooperation of every member of the Faculty and of the Board of Trustees, as well as the devoted loyalty of alumni and undergraduates.

In selecting Dr. Farrand's successor, Dr. Edmund Ezra Day, the committee of the Board of Trustees chosen for the purpose of recommending a candidate spent much time and made exhaustive investigations of many possible candidates. The feeling was unanimous in the Board that Dr. Day would prove to be a worthy successor to Dr. Farrand. Dr. Day brings to Cornell a wide experience not only as a teacher, but also as an administrator.

In severing my official connection with Cornell as a Trustee, I wish to express my sincere and heartfelt appreciation of the support which has been given me by Cornell alumni while I was Regional Director of the Cornell Alumni Corporation and for three years its president, and for my election to the University Board of Trustees.

MAINE POTATOES

(R. B. in "State and Tioga," Ithaca Journal)

"Mrs. State and Tioga's parents have returned from a second term spent at Bowdoin College in the State of Maine. What seems to have impressed them most up there was the way the potato trains from Arostook County whiz right by the alma mater of Nathaniel Hawthorne and of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow. Every day, they said, two or three trains of more than a hundred cars each go through without stopping, and every car is bursting with potatoes as an increasing menace to the waist of America.

"When you stop to contemplate that even if our fondest dreams came true, Stone-posts could not hope to produce more than half a car this year, that Bowdoin College potato image grows on one's consciousness. And how can a Bowdoin boy of this day and generation ever hope to lay the ground work of another Hiawatha or a Scarlet Letter in the academic shades of Brunswick, Me., if his days and nights are filled with the rhythmic drumming of potato trains? Tom-tom music, perhaps, but not literature!"

CORNELL

What do I not owe to you,

Cornell? Cornell,

On the hills of dawn, serene,
Standing fair and firm between

Torrents rushing endlessly

From far hills to find the sea;

While your bells ring tunefully.

Cornell, my Cornell.

Untrained youths come here to you;

Cornell, Cornell.

You take them to your mother heart;

Trained and loyal they depart

To the world to act their part.

While from the tower your chiming bells

Ring farewells.

Cornell, my Cornell.

When in life the shadows fall,

Cornell, Cornell.

Darkening the cheering sun;

When a life work seems undone,

Tender thoughts of Cornell then

Lift sad hearts to light again;

Cornell bells, in memory,

Ring out clear and hopefully.

Cornell, my Cornell.

ALBERT W. SMITH '78.

DR. CRAWFORD'S REPORT

upon the need for this and I urge the alumni to consider this aspect of Cornell wants whenever it is possible to do so.

3. The buildings of the College of Engineering are out of date and inadequate, as is the equipment. A committee of engineers, some of them members of the Board, are at work upon this problem and we consider the need of a new Engineering College a vital one if Cornell's reputation as an engineering school is to continue at its present high plane.

4. A new gymnasium for men and one for women and a building for winter indoor sports are eagerly hoped for. The problem of keeping up the strength and health of the students is exceedingly difficult in the present scattered condition of our physical education work.

At the risk of unduly extending this report I would like to say a word about the student body. They are a hard-working, serious-minded and level-headed group of young people. The years of depression have been hard on them but from it they have gathered priceless lessons of economy and thrift and they have learned to value their opportunity for higher education which young people of the past accepted far more lightly. The University is run for these young people and their successors and I would urge my fellow alumni to keep as closely in touch as they can with the undergraduate body. There is much to be done for some of them, all the time, although usually no one student needs a great deal of help. It has been a source of considerable satisfaction in these years on the Board to have been able to reach and know so many young men and women and to have been able to help them in small ways whenever possible. The help does not have to be financial in many cases. It is more often a matter of friendship and counsel which these young people want. I have come to realize the value of keeping in touch with them, and I believe that it should be peculiarly the duty of the Alumni Trustees of the Board to know the student body and understand the undergraduate problems.

In leaving the Board of Trustees at the close of my second term in accordance with the accepted custom of Alumni Trustees, I wish to thank the graduates of the University who have given me this opportunity to serve the institution which we all love so well. It is with great regret that I leave this service, but I know that there are other ways of working for Cornell and that the training which I have received while on the Board will serve to guide me in whatever future work I may be able to do for the University.
