CORNELL'S SIXTY-NINTH COMMENCEMENT

President Farrand Gives Valedictory Address

President Livingston Farrand, characterizing his "privilege of speaking Cornell University's last word to you" as "the greatest privilege of my official life and also the greatest responsibility," urged the Class of 1937 to remember the ideals of education upon which Cornell was founded as comparable to the ideals of American government; and to become "centers of leadership and influence in your various communities" for the "difficult enterprise of self government and democracy."

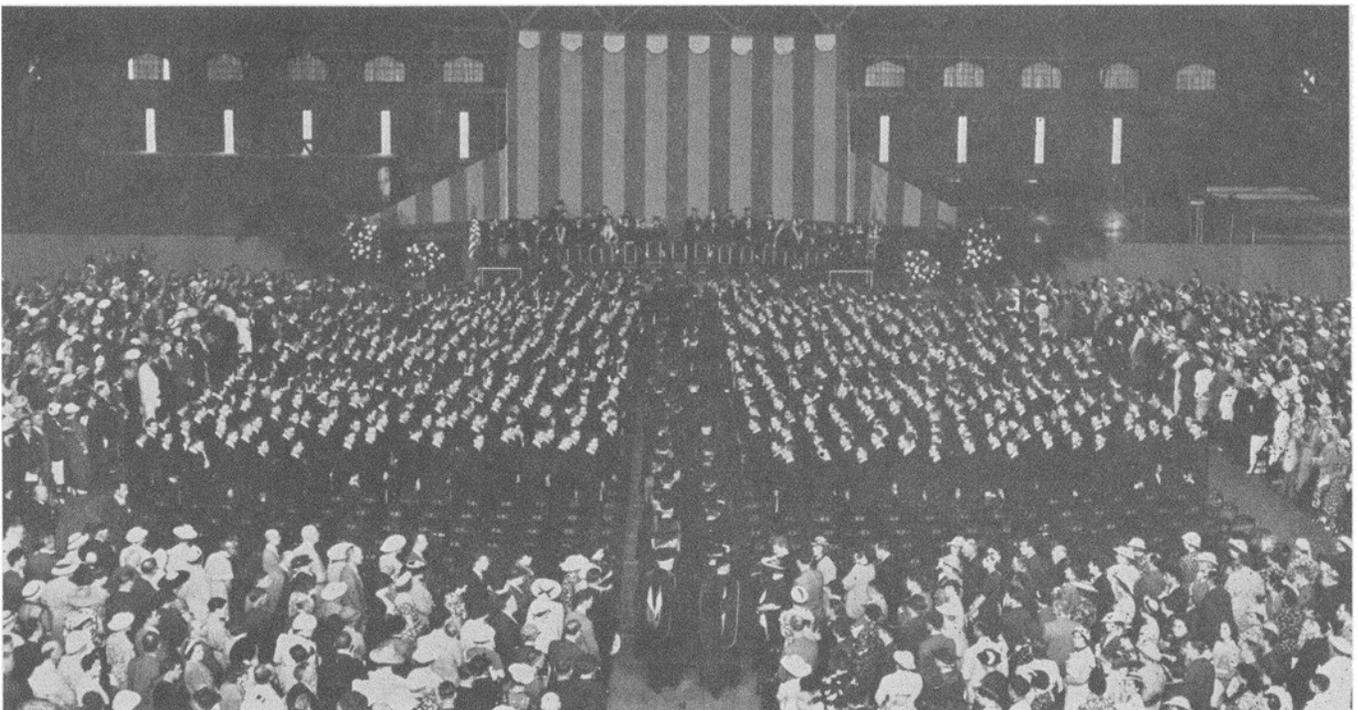

Lowering skies greeted Commencement Day in Ithaca Monday morning, but rain held off while the Chimes played and the graduates and their parents and friends assembled in the Drill Hall. Black-robed candidates for degrees assembled behind the huge stage, erected over Sunday, while the ranks of chairs either side of the center section and the balcony were filling with their guests and friends. To the left of the stage, which was banked with ferns, palms, and red and white peonies, George L. Coleman '95 led members of the Instrumental Club in Verdi's "Grand March" as the academic procession, led by the Class marshals, David D. Dugan and William W. Rossiter, both sons of Cornellians, paced slowly up the center aisle. First came the candidates for advanced degrees; then the Seniors, grouped by Colleges and distinguished by the vari-colored tassels of their caps. As these stood at their seats before the platform, facing the center aisle, members of the Faculty and Board of Trustees marched slowly to their seats on the stage. Then, led by Professor Paul J. Weaver, the entire assembly sang "America," and the invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Reginald E. Charles, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church in Ithaca.

Lieutenant-Colonel James I. Muir, chief marshal, called upon the Seniors whose work in the ROTC had qualified them for commissions as Second Lieutenants in the Officers' Reserve Corps, U. S. Army, and these were briefly congratulated by President Farrand. Successively, as each group was called upon by the chief marshal, the candidates for degrees rose in place, were presented by their respective Deans, and had the degrees conferred upon them by the President. Candidates for Bachelors of Arts and Bachelors of Chemistry were presented by Dean Robert M. Ogden '00;

Bachelors of Science by Dean Carl E. Ladd '12; Doctors of Veterinary Medicine by Dean William A. Hagan, MS '17; Bachelors of Architecture, Bachelors of Landscape Architecture, and Bachelors of Fine Arts by Dean George Young, Jr. '00; Civil Engineers, Mechanical Engineers, Electrical Engineers, Bachelors of Science in Administrative Engineering, and Chemical Engineers, by Associate Dean S. C. Hollister, acting for Dean Herman Diederichs '97, who was ill; and candidates for Masters' degrees and that of Doctor of Philosophy by Acting Dean Benton S. Monroe '96, in the absence of Dean Floyd K. Richtmyer '04. The degree of War Alumnus was awarded to Arthur B. deLaski '18.

Pointing out to the graduates that the world today is filled with social and economic unrest, with danger to democratic ideals, the President said: "The thought that follows you from Cornell is, 'What are you going to do with what is now yours?' This task of self-government and citizenship in a democracy is not easy. . . . Here in the United States the confusion is utter. . . . We see legislation on every hand determined not by principles but by votes; experiments illy thought out. The trouble is not with ideals, and certainly not with the ideals of American youth. . . .

"I am not concerned today with the technical information which you have derived here at Cornell, nor with the courses and curriculum of which you have been the beneficiaries. The great need of this American nation today is sturdy character; a sturdy maintenance of the ideals upon which this nation was founded, and for the preservation and stimulation and advancement of which this University was founded and maintained. . . . Democracy without an informed and sound thinking population is certain to fail. But in any population, the leadership must be furnished by you and your fellows who are the products of our colleges and universities, the beneficiaries of the privilege of learning.

"You must regard as your highest responsibility the privilege to exercise that judgment necessary for the preservation of our national and international integrity, based upon the ideals with which I trust you have been surrounded here. You and I are leaving Cornell, to play our several roles. I only hope that you and I may come back together at some future time. God bless you all."

The baccalaureate sermon was delivered Sunday afternoon in Bailey Hall by the Rev. Rockwell Harmon Potter, Dean of the Hartford Theological Seminary. Speaking on "This Religion—What About It?" he defined religion as "the sum total of all those ideas, ideals, feelings, aspirations, acts, and attitudes that bind us back to that from which we came. And since it is from God that we do come, it is to God that religion binds us back.

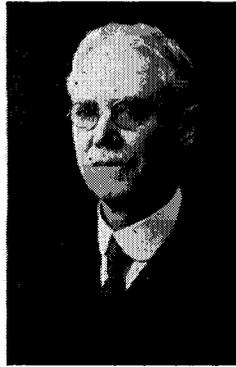

"When religion is good, healthful, clean, it is useful, inspiring, and a blessing to life. When religion is diseased, perverted, impure, it becomes a drag upon life; it becomes a curse to life."

Two other aspects of religion he designated as "ad-ligion, which binds us onward to that to which we go," and "con-ligion, which relates us to the God that is about us in nature and in human life." All these he said, must be good, to bring blessing, life, and heaven.

Sunday evening on the Goldwin Smith portico Class Day exercises were held, with the last Senior singing of the year. John M. Batten, president of the Class of '37, presided, and introduced Alan R. Willson, Class historian; Harvey R. Wellman, Class orator; and Joan L. Stutzker, Class poet. Raynor F. Sturgis presented the historic Class pipe to William C. Kruse, its Junior custodian.

Following the Class Day ceremonies many of the onlookers walked over Triphammer Bridge to the court of Balch Hall for the women's Senior singing in the gloaming. This ended with the traditional Senior Dirge, sung by the women as they marched slowly around the court.

DR. LYON '91 RETIRES

Professor T. Lytleton Lyon '91, for thirty-one years professor of Soil Technology and since 1911 head of the Department of Agronomy, becomes an emeritus professor June 30, having reached the age of sixty-eight.

He has achieved an international reputation for his work at Cornell. The lysimeters which he devised here in 1908 for the study of soil nutrients have been the model for similar structures at many other experiment stations; he is famous for other research in soil fertility, especially pertaining to nitrogen; and the text book on soils of which he is senior author, first published in 1908, is widely used in agricultural colleges and appeared in its third revised edition last April.

Professor Lyon entered the College of Agriculture from Pittsburgh, Pa. in 1887, and received the BS degree in '91. He went immediately to the University of Nebraska, where he taught chemistry and agriculture and in 1899 became associate director of the State Agricultural Experiment Station. He received the PhD degree at Cornell in 1904 and returned to Cornell as professor of Agronomy in 1906, having studied agricultural chemistry at the University of Göttingen. He is a former president of the American Society of Agronomy and a member of many other professional societies and of Sigma Xi and Phi Gamma Delta. His sons are John L. Lyon '22 and George C. Lyon '29.

KNOXVILLE CLUB ELECTS

The Cornell Club of Knoxville, Tenn. had its annual banquet May 19 at the University of Tennessee, with fifty-three members present. Ross M. Riegel '04, president of the Club, presided and introduced as toastmaster Elmer O. Fippin, formerly professor of Soils at Cornell. First were songs by a quartet consisting of Harry A. Hageman '99, James H. Cheston '21, Charles G. Northington '23, and Tracy B. Augur '17. A debate followed on the subject, "Resolved: That the biological sciences have been more useful than the physical sciences," with Paul W. Allen, Grad, and Walter H. MacIntire, PhD '16, making hilarious speeches. The decision, voted by the ladies, was quite in keeping with the remarks of the speakers. Jewel Watson, of the Tennessee Valley Authority, entertained with magic, followed by M. Gordon Northrop '22 who gave his farewell upon returning to the Cornell Faculty of Engineering.

Oliver W. Dynes '12 introduced as the speaker of the evening Professor D. B. Johnstone-Wallace, Agronomy, who was in Knoxville for the Farmers' Week of the University of Tennessee. He told the group that the history of Cornell was first written by Charles Dickens, in an article about the Royal Agricultural College in the old magazine, All the Year Round. The article was called "Farm and College" and related that a Colonel Johnson and Ezra Cornell came to visit the Royal Agricultural College and were so impressed that Cornell went back to America and instituted the legislative proceedings which led to the founding of Cornell. He said there is a picture of the original Cornell Campus at the Royal Agricultural College.

New officers were elected: president, George M. Cameron, PhD '33, succeeding Riegel; secretary, Mrs. Simon Marcovitch, succeeding Helen F. Northup '22; vice-president, Hageman; and treasurer, Augur. John A. Switzer '96 was chairman of the nominating committee.

CLASS REUNIONS BRING RECORD NUMBER

2,172 Alumni Come Back to Bid Farrands Good-By

Again reunion attendance records were broken, save only at the Semi-Centennial Celebration in 1919, as 2,172 Cornellians registered at the Drill Hall last Friday and Saturday. Last year's official reunion attendance was 2,102, and that was a record. This year's registration by Classes is tabulated herewith, showing 1,402 men and 770 women.

The Class of '12, true to prediction, established a new record, with 219 returning, and Secretaries Nina Smith and Ross W. Kellogg were roundly cheered as they received the cup awarded by the Association of Class Secretaries for the largest number returning, at the reunion rally Saturday night. The previous record, 200, had been set by the Class of '09 at its fifteen-year reunion in 1924. Second in number was the Class of '27, whose total of 199 set a new record for ten-year Classes.

The fifty-year Class, '87, won the cup for the largest proportion of living membership on hand. Their eleven members back constituted 28.9 percent of the Class membership; and the Class of '12 was second, with 27.3 percent. Next was the Class of '77, with 26.7 percent; followed by the War Class, '17, with 26.2 percent.

Reunion Costumes Everywhere

Colorful reunion costumes began to appear Friday morning, and were everywhere in evidence, in the Drill Hall, at the various dormitory Class headquarters, and at the Bailey Hall rally Saturday night. They ranged from the dignified armbands and hatbands of the older Classes to the striped convict suits of the men of '32, with smocks and shirts and jumpers of various colors for other Classes, the men of '17 in trim French uniforms and fatigue caps of red and blue and the '17 women in red and white trench caps and swagger sticks, and everywhere the Kelly-green sweaters and caps of the Class of '12. A fire engine, loaned by Joseph G. Grossman '12, secretary treasurer of Ward-LaFrance, served to transport the men of the twenty-five-year Class and their guests about the Campus and up and down the Hill, siren screaming and bell ringing.

Bailey Hall was crowded twice with alumni eager to hear President Farrand at his last official appearances. At the annual meeting of the Cornell Alumni Corporation Saturday morning, the President was introduced by Creed W. Fulton '09, vice-president, in the absence abroad of President C. Reeve Vanneman '03, from whom a brief message was read.

As has been his custom, President Farrand reported briefly on the events of the year at Cornell; he expressed his appreciation of the continued loyalty and friendship of alumni, Trustees, Faculty, and students, as "one of the deepest satisfactions of my life." "It has been an immense privilege to me to work with your Cornell these sixteen years," he said.

The President touched briefly upon the finances of the University, saying "they are still reasonably difficult, but also reasonably cheering," and paid tribute to the Board of Trustees for its financial management and to the alumni for their continued support. Concerning the social life of the Campus he said: "I am encouraged especially by the new realization on the part of students that certain conventions are worth preserving, and that they are upset and destroyed by overindulgence, not only in alcohol but in other matters. To great extent the result of work by the Student Council in the last two years, there is a steadily improving social sentiment upon this Campus." Dr. Farrand referred to the recent Spring Day parade, however, as "rotten, without humor, offensive, and should be stopped in future years unless it can be changed."

Must Improve Alumni Scholarships

He spoke of the continued improvement in the quality of entering students, pointing out that through the cooperation of alumni in Cornell Day and otherwise in selecting boys, the quality of those who enter steadily improves. This year's Senior Class, he pointed out, is the smallest in some years, because enrollment declined during the depression years, but total registration is large, and more applications for admission are in hand than ever before, with resulting opportunity to select students of the highest quality.

"Our regional alumni scholarships," the President continued, "were started to encourage the highest quality of students. A few alumni groups have interpreted this to mean the best quality of football players. But this is what we did not mean. Unless that idea can be corrected, I am very sure that such scholarships will be ended. If there is one thing Cornell will not do, it is to commercialize athletics. We are not going to buy football teams . . . I have not discussed this with my successor, but I have no doubt he will feel the same way."

Paying sincere tribute to Provost Albert R. Mann '04, who will leave Cornell with him, the President said: "No one could have had an abler, more loyal colleague than I have had in Dr. Mann. As an alumnus, member of the Faculty, Dean of the College of Agriculture, and Provost, he has given loyally of his great ability to the service of Cornell . . . I know you join me in my very deep appreciation of what he has done for your University."

Of Dr. Edmund E. Day, his successor, the President said, "I am extremely happy in the choice that has been made." He referred to Dr. Day's distinguished career, his grasp and knowledge of educational matters, his constructive mind and pleasing personality, and said, "I bespeak for him the same support you have given me."

Reunion Rally the Highlight

Bailey Hall was packed to the doors for the reunion rally Saturday night; members of the older Classes seated on the stage, others in costume grouped to fill the main auditorium, and the balcony overflowing with others. Professor Charles L. Durham '99 was introduced as master of ceremonies by Daniel B. Strickler '22, president of the sponsoring fifteen-year Class. Singing was led by Robert P. Butler '05; "Cornell" and the "Alumni Song" were sung by Thomas Tracy '31; and three alumni-for-the-notice, introduced as "Bill Goehagan '07, Harry Meehan '12, and Butch Litomy '22," delighted the audience with songs and music of an earlier day. Presentation of the reunion cups by Emmet J. Murphy '22, president of the Association of Class Secretaries, was followed with selections by the Savage Club Quartet, composed of Allan H. Treman '21, William B. Corcoran '23, C. Wesley Thomas '25, and Truman K. Powers '30.

President Farrand was greeted with a long yell as he rose to speak. "My dear friends," he said, "it would be quite impossible for me to make a speech to you tonight. My heart is too full. I have enjoyed, as words cannot express, the privilege of serving Cornell as best I could, for these best years of my life. And I find myself thinking tonight, that you, the sons and daughters of Cornell, have come back here, in a way, to renew your loyalty to a great ideal. I am thinking not at all of academic problems, but of the friendships that are made at a university like Cornell.

"All I can say to you is that I am grateful beyond words for the friendships that you have given to Mrs. Farrand and me during our years here on the Campus. I venture to think that the severing of official relations will not interrupt the permanence of the attachments and the friendships and the loyalties that have been built between you and us in these years. God bless you, every one."

As the President finished, Butler interrupted the ovation he received to call Mrs. Farrand to the stage. "President and Mrs. Farrand," he said, "you are about to become alumni of Cornell. It has come to the attention of a considerable number of the Cornell alumni who are here tonight that you have recently acquired, shall we say Fair Acres, in Putnam County, near Brewster. And it has come to our attention that the students of Cornell have presented to you two growing trees, of which, Dr. Farrand, you have spoken as symbolizing the youth of Cornell.

"We understand that this place, 'Fair Acres,' has a beautiful stream running through it; and beyond that stream there is to be a garden. We alumni want a place in that garden. And so, through a rather dark plot which I hope is not altogether reprehensible, these alumni have made certain that there shall be a bridge across that stream, and that that bridge shall be built of stone from the Campus of Cornell University. There shall be in that garden also a well head, and that is to be built of stone from the Campus of Cornell University. And there shall be in that garden a sun dial, the foundation of which shall be built of stone from the Campus of Cornell University. And on that sun dial shall be carved these words written for it by our own 'Uncle Pete': 'May Many Happy Shadowed Hours Bring Memories of Cornell.'

"I need hardly say to you that you carry away in your hearts the esteem and admiration of Cornell. Rupert Brooke once said, 'If I should die tonight, think only this of me: that there is some corner of a far strand that is forever England.' We alumni take pride and pleasure that in your hearts and in that garden there is going to be a spot that is forever Cornell."

Mrs. Farrand Replies

Visibly affected and completely taken by surprise, Dr. Farrand called on Mrs. Farrand to express the gratitude of "my family." Characteristically, Mrs. Farrand referred to this as "a great day for the Farrands to be collecting things. We collected this morning a fire engine from the Class of '12. This evening we collected honorary degrees from the Class of '92; and I collected the handsomest orchids I have ever had. . . . It is grand to see you all back, and I hope that moving nearer to New York will mean that we will see not less, but more of you. . . .

Graciously she thanked the alumni for "all your kindnesses and the delightful things you have done for us during these years; all the loyalty and affection you have given us;" and for "this charming gift this evening, which of course particularly touches my heart because the garden is my province, although the President likes to walk around with his hands behind his back and admire the garden from a distance." Then, because she had arrived late and the President had told her he had never heard the Alma Mater sung as it had been that evening, she asked as a last favor that it be sung again. As the audience rose, the Bailey Hall organ pealed out, and to the strains of Alma Mater, followed by the Evening Song, another reunion passed into history.

By Sunday, reunion costumes had been displaced on the Campus by the sombre gowns of the Seniors, as with their parents and friends they gathered for the baccalaureate sermon Sunday afternoon, their Class Day and Senior singing that evening, and the Commencement exercises on Monday.

As the ALUMNI NEWS goes to press, it is learned that Sunday afternoon delegates from the Class of '22 went to the Presidents' House and arranged in Dr. Farrand's library a set of the Encyclopedia Britannica; and the Class of '08, through their secretary, Seth W. Shoemaker, here for his son's Commencement, presented the President with a library of books on fishing.

FORMER OARSMEN ROW

Cars lined the west bank of the Inlet and alumni crowded the shore and around the Varsity boathouse Saturday afternoon as lowering skies cleared and the sun came out for the reunion rowing pageant. Five crews were boated with former Cornell oarsmen, under the general direction of William H. Forbes '06, alumnus rowing member of the intercollegiate athletics committee. Both oarsmen and crowd enjoyed the afternoon immensely as the successive shells were launched, to the stentorian announcements of Professor Charles L. Durham '99 over the loudspeaker. Two of Cornell's earliest oarsmen, John N. Ostrom '75 and Dean Albert W. Smith '78, were on the float, greeting old friends and new and introduced to the crowd over the microphone.

Most loudly acclaimed was a boat with six members of the famous Varsity crew which on June 25, 1897, defeated Yale and Harvard at Poughkeepsie, in a race described by the New York World the next day as "by far the most important race ever rowed in this country." It was this race, according to the World, which was to determine "whether Cornell was a mere fresh-water college or a great university" and its winning meant "a forced recognition by Yale and Harvard of Cornell's standing in college sports." Most of that day's newspaper was filled with news of the race, drawings of the Cornell crew and of its diminutive stroke, Frederick A. Briggs '98, and accounts of the Courtney stroke and the celebrations in Ithaca and Poughkeepsie.

Of that '97 crew, Captain Edward O. Spillman '97 and Mark Odell '97 rowed in their original positions last Saturday, at No. 6 and No. 5, respectively, and Frederick D. Colson '97 sat in the coxswain's seat, as he had forty years earlier. Other members of the original crew in Saturday's boat were Professor Asa C. King '99 and Wilton Bentley '98, and Emmett B. Carter '99, who stroked the shell last week, was a substitute in that Poughkeepsie crew. Their original manager, Charles T. Mordock '97, was on hand and before the reunion had corresponded with each of the twelve living members and substitutes in preparation for this feature of the Class reunion. The complete boating of Saturday's '97 crew is printed under their picture.

Four members of another famous crew, which set a two-mile Freshman record at Poughkeepsie in 1909 yet to be equalled, and was never defeated in its four years, were assembled for the Class of '12 boat by Manager Joseph P. Ripley. These men are designated by asterisks in the list which follows:

SPEAKS ON ALUMNI

During the Medical College of Virginia commencement-reunion week end in Richmond, R. W. Sailor '07 was guest and speaker at the annual luncheon meeting of the alumni association, May 31. As president of the American Alumni Council and editor of the ALUMNI NEWS, he was invited to speak on "The Ideal Relationship Between a College and Its Alumni." The luncheon was attended by 150 MCV alumni from all parts of the country.

FARRAND NOW EMERITUS
Trustees Create New Post

Livingston Farrand is the first President Emeritus of Cornell University. At its Commencement meeting June 21, sixteen years exactly from the day it had elected him President of the University, the Board of Trustees unanimously memorialized the fact that he is the first President "who has not resigned the office but has continued in service until and beyond the statutory age limit," and elected him President Emeritus.

Citing the fact that at the time of his election, June 21, 1921, agreement had been made that Dr. Farrand might retire at any Commencement following his sixty-fifth birthday, and that he had been unanimously invited to continue in office until the Commencement following his seventieth birthday, the Board's resolution thanks the President "for the tireless devotion he has shown to the interests of the University during all the past years."

"His administration has been distinguished by the expansion of the resources and the physical plant of the University, by the noteworthy development of the Medical College and the housing of that activity in a group of monumental buildings in association with the second oldest hospital in this country, by the advancement of the position and the increasing influence of the University in the academic world and in many fields of education and research both here and abroad, and by the quality of its Faculties and the work which they perform. That administration will long be remembered as marking a notable era in the history of Cornell.

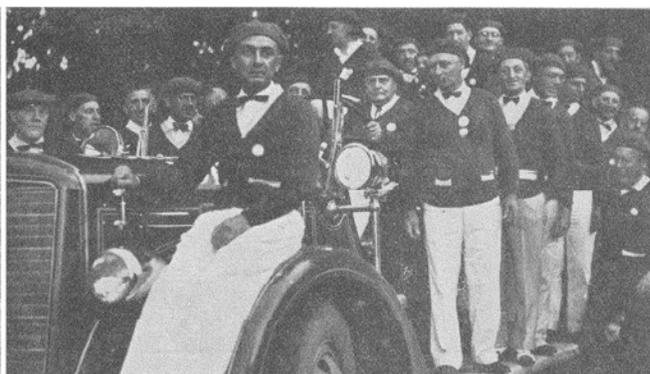

"In saying an official goodbye to the President who is now retiring, this Board records its high appreciation of his administration and the contribution he has made to this institution. In recognition of that appreciation it is

"RESOLVED, that Livingston Farrand

be and he hereby is elected as President Emeritus of Cornell University."

At its meeting the Board also adopted a retirement-income plan for members of the Faculties of the endowed Colleges and specified officers of administration, a project which Dr. Farrand had supported for many years and which had been reported upon by a Faculty committee headed by Professor Charles L. Durham '99. The Board also re-elected as Trustees for five-year terms Bancroft Gherardi '93, Roger H. Williams '95, and Neal Dow Becker '05. It provided also that no more students will be admitted to the first year of Medicine at Ithaca after June 30, 1938. Students in the Medical College now have the option of taking their first year in Ithaca and the remainder of their course in New York City. The Ithaca division of the Medical College will continue as a center of research and service to the several Colleges of the University.

The Trustees also filled the Goldwin Smith Professorship in English Literature, vacant for six years since the death of Martin Sampson, by appointing to it Professor William C. DeVane, head of the Department of English; and restored the Department to its full strength with two other major appointments. Dr. Robert Cecil Bald, a graduate of Cambridge, former head of the department of English at Stellenboech University, South Africa, and senior fellow at the Folger Library in Washington, D. C., was called to a professorship. He is a distinguished scholar of the late Renaissance. Professor Herbert Davis, a graduate of Oxford, now at the University of Toronto where he has taught for sixteen years, is the second appointee, assuming his duties in the fall of 1938. He is a leading authority on the literature of the early eighteenth century; has written many articles, and last year published a widely-acclaimed book on Jonathan Swift. Dr. John C. Department staff since 1930, has been appointed assistant professor and granted leave of absence for next year to become a fellow at the Folger Library.

Appointment was also announced of Dr. Richard Bradfield of Ohio State University to become professor of Soil Technology, soil technologist in the Experiment Station, and head of the Department of Agronomy, succeeding Professor T. Lyttleton Lyon '91, who becomes an emeritus professor June 30.

Dr. Bradfield has been professor of soils at Ohio State since 1930. He is a graduate of Otterbein College in Ohio in 1917, and received the PhD at Ohio State in 1922. He has also studied at the Universities of Missouri, Wisconsin, and Minnesota, and in European laboratories, and for ten years directed soils research at the Missouri Agricultural Experiment Station and taught at the University of Missouri. He is chairman of the committee on agronomy of the National Research Council, chairman of the colloid division of the American Chemical Society, president and chairman of the editorial board of Soil Science of America, consulting editor of Soil Science, and a member of the editorial committee of the Journal of the American Society of Agronomy.

ENGINEERS' SOCIETY ELECTS

The annual meeting of the Cornell Society of Engineers, at the Cornell Club of New York May 6 elected Gustav J. Requardt '09 president, succeeding Jesse D. Tuller '09. Walker L. Cisler '22 is executive vice-president; Elwyn E. Seelye '04, secretary-treasurer; and David Harmon '31, recording secretary.

R. H. Shreve '02 of the 1939 Worlds Fair committee, gave an illustrated talk on the conception, philosophy, and design of the Fair.

About ATHLETICS

POLO TEAM RUNNERS-UP

The ROTC polo team won its first game of the outdoor intercollegiate tournament, defeating Princeton 9-7 at Governor's Island June 16; but lost the final to Army Saturday, 6-10. Harvard, the defending champion, was defeated by Army, 9-10, and Princeton beat Yale to play Cornell.

Against Princeton, Combs made 4 goals, Captain Roberts 3, and Naquin 2. Cornell led through the last three chukkers. Combs and Roberts each made 3 goals against Army, and the Varsity fought evenly for four chukkers, but was left behind in the last two.

TWO IN PRINCETON MEET

Howard W. Welch '38 took a good second place in the two-mile race and Captain-elect J. Hamilton Hucker '38 of the track team placed fourth in the 220-yard low hurdles at the Princeton invitation meet Saturday afternoon.

Welch fought at the stretch with Louis Zamperini, Southern California freshman, who finished three yards ahead of him, in 9:28.2, and beat Ray Sears, formerly of Butler, by two yards.

Hucker had bad luck, falling back to fourth place after kicking over the eighth hurdle. John Donovan retiring Dartmouth captain, won the event in 23.6 seconds, followed by Reavis of Duke and Lattimer, NYAC.

POUGHKEEPSIE RESULTS

The Varsity crew finished a good third, in 18:48.4, just 1.2 seconds behind Navy, in the four-mile race at Poughkeepsie

June 22. They staged a finish fight in the last mile that made the result between the two indistinguishable from the observation train. Washington won the race four lengths ahead of Navy in 18:33.6, a new course record.

Washington swept the river that day for the second successive time, a feat accomplished only once before, by Cornell in 1915.

The Cornell Junior Varsity finished the three miles last, in 14:35.4. Washington's time was 13:44; Navy's, 13:55.6; both new records. The Freshmen finished the two-mile course in fourth place; time, 9:26.8. Washington's time was 9:15.4, and they were followed by California and Syracuse.

Rowing conditions were ideal, the first race having been postponed an hour because of rain. The crews rowed on a strong ebb tide, with a following wind.

BOSTON WOMEN OFFICERS

The Cornell Women's Club of Boston met for its annual luncheon at the Boston YWCA May 22 with Mrs. William G. Mollenberg (Ruth Hunter) '26, presiding. In the election of officers, Mrs. Samuel S. Evans (Ella Behrer) '27 was elected president to succeed Mrs. Mollenberg, who was made second vice-president. Mrs. Victor Ruggles (Cora Whitman) '15 is first vice-president, Mrs. Clarence S. Luitwieler (Sarah Holcomb) '27, secretary-treasurer. Mrs. Thomas Dransfield (Mary Caldwell) '08 is the fifth member of the executive board.

INSPECT RESETTLEMENT

Officials from Washington, from State and divisional offices of the Rural Resettlement Administration, and from the College of Agriculture spent two days recently visiting "resettled" and "rehabilitated" farmers and conservation work. Travelling in four station wagons they made seventeen stops in Tompkins, Seneca, and Schuyler Counties; the trip arranged by Willard E. Georgia '25, State director of rural rehabilitation.

Dr. Raymond A. Pearson '94, special assistant to the Rural Resettlement Administrator in Washington, said that much needed work is being done in New York, and expressed himself as pleased with the progress made. Other alumni who made the trip were James L. Strahan '12 of the district office in New Haven, Conn.; Dean Carl E. Ladd '12, Extension Director Lloyd R. Simons '11, and Professor Earl A. Flansburgh '15 of the College of Agriculture; Lewis H. Schwartz '11 of the State rural rehabilitation division; Lyman O. Bond '20 of the land utilization division; Oscar H. Chapin '18 and Howard L. Howell '22 of the rural resettlement division; Frank C. Edminster '26 of the State Conservation Department; and Hugh L. Cosline '18 of American Agriculturist.

THEY DID THE HARD WORK FOR CLASS REUNIONS

COUNCIL ELECTS BUTLER '05

The Cornellian Council, meeting in Bailey Hall Saturday morning, elected Robert P. Butler '05 of Hartford, Conn., president to succeed Neal Dow Becker '05 of New York City, who had headed the Council during the last three years. Butler, who is Federal attorney for the State of Connecticut, is secretary of his Class, was president of the Association of Class Secretaries from 1932-34, and has been a vice-president of the Council for the past year.

J. DuPratt White '90 was re-elected first vice-president. Vice-Presidents Allen C. Balch '89 and Edwin E. Sheridan '11 were also re-elected, and Walter C. Teagle '00 was chosen to succeed Butler. New members of the executive committee, to serve for three years, are Becker, Tell Berna '12 of Cleveland, Ohio, and Allan H. Treman '21 of Ithaca. They succeed Robert E. Treman '09, Waldemar H. Fries '10, and Harold E. Irish '16.

Archie M. Palmer '18, executive secretary, reported a total for the Alumni Fund through June 18 of $132,209.74, of which $81,121.49 is unrestricted as to use. Gifts were reported from 6,028 persons, many of whom sent contributions in addition to their regular subscriptions as marks of esteem for President Farrand.

"Through these gifts," said the report, "they have indicated that they are deeply concerned with the safeguarding of Cornell as one of America's great centers of sound scholarship. The Alumni Fund is designed to provide a convenient and practical medium through which Cornell alumni may give tangible expression of their appreciation of what Cornell has done for them, and, by their gifts, place the University in a position to afford present and future generations the opportunity to share some of the privileges which they themselves enjoyed."

Butler, following his election, praised the administration of Becker, and added, "There is no more precious attribute and no more vital attribute to the work of this University than the alumni body. In a large sense, the life blood of the University must flow into productive channels from that alumni body; and the one alumni organization which is charged with seeing that the task is performed is the Cornellian Council. Its horizon is endless. We are in a great measure responsible for seeing that this University comes as closely as possible to meeting and discharging its budget That is a man's and a woman's job."

The following alumni were elected members-at-large of the board of directors of the Council for four-year terms: William C. Agnew '32, Tristan Antell '13, Tell Berna '12, Katherine R. Buckley '01, Willis H. Carrier '01, Charles C. Colman '12, Adolph Coors, Jr. '07, George D. Crofts '01, Harold T. Edwards '10, Charles B. Goodspeed '08, William P. Gruner '07, Elon H. Hooker '94, Mary K. Hoyt '21, Aertson P. Keasbey '13, Paul E. Lesh '06, Harrison D. McFaddin '94, Laurence G. Meads '14, R. Verne Mitchell '07, Henry M. Robinson '90, James P. Quigley '01, Edward S. Sanderson '94, G. Norman Scott '27, Frank J. Tone '91, John W. Towle '94, and Allan H. Treman '21.

FIVE IN 441ST REGIMENT

Five Cornellians are officers of the 441st Field Artillery, one of New York's crack Reserve regiments. They are First Lieutenant Robert W. Purcell '32 and Second Lieutenants John B. Jenkins '34, Eugene C. Newman '35, Edward P. Smith '36, and Henry Untermeyer '36. Untermeyer is with the New York Evening Journal.

ELMIRA ELECTS OFFICERS

Provost Albert R. Mann '04 was the principal speaker at the annual dinner meeting of the Cornell Club of Elmira May 24. Louis C. Boochever '12, director of public information of the University, was the other guest speaker. Leigh R. Evans '07 was elected president, succeeding Harold L. Treu '25, and Dr. R. Scott Howland '30 takes the place of Harry Y. Iszard '13 as secretary. The new vice-president is Jerome Wolcott '30. Other new members of the board of directors elected are J. Lawrence Kolb '25, Treu, William J. Swan '31, and Frank Conace '35.

THE NEW ALUMNI TRUSTEES

At the annual meeting of the Cornell Alumni Corporation June 19 it was announced that Mary H. Donlon '20 of New York City and Alfred H. Hutchinson '09 of Chicago, Ill. had been elected Alumni Trustees for five-year terms. Professor A. Wright Gibson '17, chairman of the committee to canvass the ballots, reported that 14,185 valid ballots had been received from degree holders; that Miss Donlon had 10,481 votes, and Hutchinson, 8,756.

Reports of the retiring Alumni Trustees, Archie C. Burnett '90 and Dr. Mary M. Crawford '04 were distributed at the meeting, and will be printed shortly in the ALUMNI NEWS.

MID-HUDSON WOMEN MEET

Mrs. L. G. Nightingale (Mildred Clark) '14 entertained the members of the Mid-Hudson Cornell Women's Club June 8 at a buffet supper at her home. Mrs. Henry C. Strahan (Martha Wool) '24 presided at a short business meeting.

WOMEN'S FEDERATION MEETS

Delegates from more than twenty Clubs and many other alumnae here for reunions attended the annual meeting of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs in Willard Straight Hall Friday afternoon. Discussion and suggestions for development next year followed reports made by the chairmen of various Federation projects: Cornell Day for Women, relations with secondary schools, conference of fields of work for women, and scholarships.

Two new vice-presidents of the Federation were elected, to take the places of those whose terms expired: Mrs. P. Paul Miller (Sara Speer) '21 of Schenectady, first vice-president; and Mrs. Edwin S. Knauss (Dorothy Pond) '18 of Poughkeepsie, third vice-president.

At a reception following the meeting, the guests of honor were those alumnae whose daughters were in this year's Senior Class. They were Mrs. T. Roland Briggs (Frances Ingalls) '12, and daughter Adelaide; Mrs. Harry G. Bull (Helen Dudley) '11 and daughter Mary; Mrs. Thomas Dransfield (Mary Caldwell) '10 and daughter Elizabeth; Mrs. Richard Mordorff (Laura Fish) '14 and daughter Helen; Mrs. John H. Reisner (Bertha Betts) '14 and daughter Jessie; Mrs. Joseph Slutzker (Pauline Hirsh) '09 and daughter Joan; Dr. Mary M. Crawford '04 and daughter Helen Schuster; Mrs. Melancthon Hamilton (Katherine Mills) '14 and daughter Katherine.

The five members of the class of '37 who were awarded the Senior Alumnae Scholarships were also specially invited guests: Flora W. Daniel of Whitehall, Beth W. Dawson of Ithaca, Esther M. Dillenbeck of Buffalo, Grace H. Jones of Topeka, Kans., and Doris E. Smallridge of Rochester.

NEXT ISSUE JULY 15

This issue completes weekly publication of the ALUMNI NEWS for the academic year. The next, mailed July 15, will contain a resumé of the year composed of articles written by various members of the University, a brief chronology of the Cornell year, and most of our regular features. In our August issue we hope to print Class pictures and accounts of the various reunions written by Class secretaries and chairmen. Weekly publication will be resumed September 23.

Our cover picture this time was posed and photographed by Norman Herr '37, photographic manager of this year's Cornellian. It was used by the Cornellian to introduce its Senior photographs, and seems to us especially appropriate for the ALUMNI NEWS which welcomes the Class of '37 as Cornell alumni.

"RUSTICANA" ENJOYED

The Musical Clubs went decidedly rural in their annual Senior Week Show, "Rusticana," presented in Bailey Hall Friday evening. In the first act, dressed in overalls and straw hats, members of the Glee Club and Instrumental Club sat about a farm yard, with an "old gray mare" and other farm appurtenances, and sang and played familiar tunes. Soloists were Edward H. Sargent, Jr. '39 of Albany and Donald H. Perkins '38 of Rochester, and several rustic ditties, including the perennial "Horses," were agreeably rendered by the Savage Club Quartet.

The second act opened with a darkened stage upon which, spotlighted in a Chinese pagoda, Louise Kwan, the wife of a graduate student from Hankow, China, sang two numbers. She was accompanied by Allan H. Treman '21 on the guitar. This was the annual summer show of Olianti Grange No. 6, whose members, now dressed in their best go-to-meetin' clothes, rendered successively groups of "Mexicana," "Norwegiana," and "Cornelliana," greatly to the enjoyment of the audience. Thomas Tracy '31, Gerritt C. Conger '37 of Wellesley Hills, Mass., and Robert H. Bodholt '38 of Evanston, Ill. were the soloists.

An unbilled number was that of the three ubiquitous "alumni," Bill Goehagan '07, Harry Meehan '12, and Butch Litomy '22, who brought down the house with their songs and patter.

Leader of the Glee Club was Paul M. Mattice '36 of Ithaca, now in the Law School; of the Instrumental Club, Edward W. Shineman, Jr. '37 of Canajoharie.

ON JOBS FOR SENIORS

Just before it suspended publication for the year, June 2, the Cornell Daily Sun published a series of interviews with alumni, giving advice to Seniors on the qualifications and requirements of various professions. The series was the work of two former managing editors of the Sun now in New York City, Robert S. Hutchings '35 and George A. Lawrence '36. These two, with the help of Paul O. Reyneau '13, placement director at the Cornell Club of New York, interviewed six alumni prominent in as many lines of endeavor and wrote the Sun articles for the information and guidance of students who should be looking for jobs.

The series was introduced by Herbert H. Williams '25, director of the University Placement Bureau, who discussed employment generally and the choice of a vocation. Hon. George R. Van Namee '02, of the State Public Service Commission, discussed the law profession; Willis H. Carrier '01, president and chairman of the board of the Carrier Engineering Corporation, engineering; Sidney W. Edlund '11, president of Life Savers, Inc., salesmanship; Edward L. Bernays '12, public relations; Andrew E. Tuck '98, vice-president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, life insurance; and Mary H. Donlon '20, of the firm of Burke and Burke, described vocational opportunities for women, summarizing the conferences on fields of work which she instituted as president of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs.

THE 1937 CORNELLIAN

The 1937 Cornellian appeared recently; an impressive volume of 492 pages bound in blue leather, stamped with gold. It contains the usual photographs of members of the University Administration and Faculty, Senior pictures and records, and those of athletics, fraternities, sororities, and all other student organizations; with several candid camera pages of "Cornell Life."

Distinctive features this year are the many beautiful and unusual Campus views and the original and expressive photographic section headings, all the work of Norman Herr '37, whose pictures have appeared frequently in the ALUMNI NEWS.

The book is dedicated to President Farrand, and contains a word of greeting from him to the Class of '37 and an illustrated resumé of his administration. The editor of the Cornellian, John W. Clarke, of Kingston, contributes "Reminiscences"; The Men's Class History is written by Alan R. Willson of Canandaigua, Senior editor of The Sun; and the Women's Class History, by Flora W. Daniel, past women's editor of The Sun and now of the ALUMNI NEWS staff.

ON THE CAMPUS AND DOWN THE HILL

By Romeyn Berry

A MEMBER of the Class of 1907 who desires to remain anonymous, but whose name is Taylor, thoroughly hoaxed the community by introducing into the reunions, as old grads, three members of the cast of "Naughty Naught" now playing in New York. For two days these talented Thespians became respectively Bill Goehegan '07, Harry Meehan '12, and Butch Litomy '22. A few classmates were honest enough to admit they could not remember "good old Butch," or Goehegan either, but by the vast majority they were vividly recalled. One of the best jobs of remembrance was performed by Professor Bull Durham, who recalled teaching the Odes of Horace to Mr. Goehegan in the spring of 1903. Mr. George Coleman remembered clearly giving Butch Litomy mandolin lessons. After the denouement both Messrs. Durham and Coleman claimed that they were at no time deceived, but were themselves acting in aid of the deception. Number of persons who credited these disclaimers—0.

THE WEATHER was mostly humid and disagreeable. Academic robes and reunion blazers became equally sticky and clinging. One Trustee described himself as sweating in his silk gown at the Baccalaureate sermon "like a bank director under oath."

THE BOATING of old crews was again a pleasant feature of the reunions. The only unfortunate incident occurred when the 1897 crew was thoughtlessly insulted, and got mad about it. Some well meaning fathead at the boathouse asked the '97 crew if they wouldn't like the undergraduate attendants to take their shell off the racks and put it in the water for them. They said they wouldn't like it at all; and they said it a number of times with increasing emphasis.

A COLLEGE CREW reboated forty years after graduation is more apt to be slender and lissome than one which has been out no longer than a quarter of a century. That fact was made manifest at the rowing pageant, as was the item that designers of racing shells do not provide adequate space for expanding waistlines. Many a proud old oarsman carried a well skinned stomach around the Campus on Sunday morning.

ABOUT ALL the Tompkins County Fish and Game Club did last week was to distribute a few fish. Six thousand brown trout ranging in size from 9 to 11 inches were liberated in Six Mile Creek (the city's water supply) between Ithaca and Slaterville; 3,000 in upper Fall Creek (Forest Home and Varna); 500 in Cascadilla; 400 in the Inlet valley; and 1,500 in Carter Creek over back of Connecticut Hill. Cayuga Lake received 25,000 legal OBSERVATIONS of this and many other reunions indicates that a returning alumnus is just as sentimental as his feet. As long as the dogs hold up, he will clasp total strangers as well-remembered classmates, parade endlessly, and weep copiously with each rendition of the Evening Song. But when the feet go, the reunion is practically over. When the shooting pains become unbearable he is again the resourceful business man, faces the facts, and resumes logical reasoning. It's nice while it lasts, though.

sized black-bass, and a few calico bass were scattered around experimentally among various ponds. A professor of sporting proclivities called to Cornell ought to waive the salary and pay for the privilege, after all that fish planting in his behalf.

MR. FREDERIC HILLEGAS, editor of the Cornell Daily Sun and winner of the "Cornell's Healthiest Boy" trophy at the recent Spring Day circus, requests that we correct a statement with regard to himself that appeared on this page last week. Mr. Hillegas claims that the adjective "buxom," as applied to himself, is not apt; "dimpled", he thinks, would have been better. Also, there was nothing facetious about the advertisement which we quoted. He put it in himself in all seriousness. He's lost his trophy, and he wants it back.

LAST WEEK the ALUMNI NEWS had a party at the lakeside cottage of Editor Howard Stevenson on Bergen Beach. Bergen Beach is on the west side of Cayuga Lake half way, perhaps, between Sheldrake and Taughannock. The entertainment consisted of conversation, scenery, steamed clams, and beer. Present: Messrs. Ashbery '25, Baker '19, Berry '04, Boochever '12, Buck '21, Coffin '12, Howes '24, Lynah '05, Palmer '18, Sailor '07, Stevenson '19, and Waters '27—all engaged in publishing news or making it.

TRAILER TRAVELERS to their Class reunions were Frank D. Boynton, Jr. '17 and Mrs. Boynton (M. Helen Palmer) '19, of Detroit, Mich. Leaving their home Wednesday, they parked their Vagabond Coach south of the Drill Hall for the two days of reunions, where it was visited by many of their friends. From Ithaca they planned to go on to the Poughkeepsie regatta, then to visit several other colleges and universities with their son, Frank D. Boynton, 3d (Mrs. Boynton hopes he'll choose Cornell), and return home through Quebec.

THE LAMPKIN FARM of 100 acres near Varna has been purchased and dedicated by the University to further medical experimentation with Achilles, the jumpy pig, and Homer, the neurotic goat. The present experimental laboratory at Hanshaw Corners has become much too small. To locate the Lampkin farm, turn left in the business center of Varna, cross the iron bridge, and it's the first place you come to on your left. One passed it in the old days on those occasions when the cross country squad ran the eight-mile course. The new farm-laboratory will be fitted out and operated with funds from the Rockefeller and the Josiah Macy Foundations, and the first order of business will be to study the relation of heredity to nervous disorders. The Lampkin farm is even quieter and more secluded than it used to be as it gets harder and harder every year to argue a college student into running eight miles when not badly frightened.

THE CLASS OF 1937, graduated on Monday, contained forty-five residents of Ithaca.

GLENWOOD HOTEL, which has been out of commission since the big flood of 1935, resumed operations last week. The Class of 1927 held its reunion dinner there. The hotel itself was unaffected by the flood, but the bridges and approaches were washed away and Glenwood Point was covered by tons and tons of stones and gravel borne down by the waters. Everything is now cleaned up and going again, and the place possesses a singing waiter named Mike who does sentimental Irish ballads in the manner of Chauncy Olcott and Andrew Mack.

TWENTY-FIVE STUDENTS in Hotel Administration went down to the Greenbrier at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., over the week end of June 12. They stayed three days, the guests of the Greenbrier's management. Prominent hotel executives were invited there to meet them. These attractive young men are starting in at the foot of the ladder, which now seems a lofty spot in the hotel business. We started by lugging trunks.

CHESTER G. STARR, JR., a graduate student, won this year's Messenger Prize for the essay "giving evidence of the best research and the most fruitful thought in the field of human progress." Starr's opus dealt with "The Sailors in the Roman Imperial Navy." That sounds like an unusually interesting topic for scholarly investigation if you ask us, and one calculated to make the Graduate School a more human place. Sailors of any age are always so romantic.

WHAT THE CLASS OF 1937 ARE DOING

This Commencement issue of the ALUMNI NEWS devotes its usual section, "Concerning the Alumni," entirely to the newest Class of alumni, as a brief directory of their after-graduation activities and addresses. Cornell Today

This June marks the closing of a period in Cornell's history. Dr. Farrand is leaving the University. The 1937 Cornellian is dedicated to him and gives a brief resumé of his administration. A reproduction of one of his recent photographs accompanies each book.

The Cornellian also has several very fine campus views in sepia duotone. It contains the usual faculty, senior and athletic records. It is beautifully printed and bound.

It is one of the finest class books we have ever produced.

It is the Cornellian of today.

We have a few of these books for sale at purchasable direct from us, or thru the Co-op or Triangle Book Shop.

$9.00
