CAMP OTTER

A Summer Camp for Boys 7 to 17

Most informed parents wish to send their sons to a good summer camp for at least one summer. The question simmers down in most families to ways and means and

Which Camp?

This advertisement, being directed particularly to Cornell parents, submits that Camp Otter may be the answer to both questions,
(1) because it is an established institution of 36 years, of demonstrated integrity, safety, and efficiency; (2) because the charges are geared to modest incomes; (3) because the Camp is closely related to Cornell University both in personnel and background.

After the parent is satisfied on the important questions of character, cost, and personnel, the big question then becomes what the boy himself will like.

Boys Like Camp Otter:

(1) because of its splendid location on its own lake in the Canadian North-woods where fishing, tripping, and other camping activities are unspoiled by summer people; (2) because they don't have every minute of the day mapped out for them; (3) because they react to the life and feel so well due to plenty of good wholesome food, relaxation and rest; and (4) a thrilling program in the great out-of-doors.

University Board of Trustees: Organization and Personnel

ROSTER and summary of the organization of the University Board of Trustees is published, as has been our annual custom, before the election of Alumni Trustees by the degree-holders of the University. Biographies and photographs of all candidates nominated for Alumni Trustee this year will appear in our next issue, and ballots will be mailed to all degree holders early in April. Nominations close April 1.

Charter of the University provides for a Board of Trustees of forty-five members. Ten are ex-officio Trustees; eighteen are elected by the Board, fifteen for five-year terms and three "from the field of labor in New York State" for one-year terms; ten are elected by alumni for five-year terms; five are appointed by the Governor for five-year terms; one is elected annually by the New York State Grange; and the eldest lineal male descendant of Ezra Cornell is a Trustee for life.

No Trustee is required by the Charter to be an alumnus of the University. Of the present Board of forty-four Trustees, however (a vacancy created by Edward R. Eastman's election to the State Board of Regents has yet to be filled by Governor's appointment), thirty-one are Cornellians.

Four representatives to the Board are elected by and from the University Faculty, who meet with the Board but have no vote. They are now Professors R. Clifton Gibbs '06, Physics; Richard Bradfield, Agronomy; Frederick G. Marcham, PhD '26, History; and Dean Joseph C. Hinsey of the Medical College.

Conducts University Business

University By-Laws state: "the Board of Trustees shall have supreme control over the University, every college, school, and department thereof, its property, conduct, and the employment of the persons engaged in its service." The Board holds four regular meetings a year; carries on its work through five standing committees and three special committees. In addition, Trustees serve with members of the Faculty and students on various administrative boards, and with Faculty and professional members on advisory councils for eight Colleges. The Board elects its chairman "for a term of three years, or for the remainder of his term as Trustee, whichever is the shorter," or until he reaches seventy years of age.

Standing committees of the Board are the executive, investment, buildings and grounds, planning and development, and law committees; each has the chairman of the Board and the President of the University as ex-officio members. Other members, and the chairmen and vice-chairmen of the standing committees, are elected annually by the Board for one-year terms. "The chairmen shall not be over seventy years of age."

Five Standing Committees

Executive committee, consisting of the chairman of the Board, President of the University, chairmen of all other standing committees, and seven other members elected by the Board, acts for the Board between meetings.

Investment committee, consisting of the chairman of the Board, President of the University, and nine other members elected by the Board, administers all funds of the University.

Buildings and grounds committee, consisting of the chairman of the Board, President of the University, and seven other members elected by the Board, "shall make recommendations for the location and design of new buildings and have general charge and oversight of the buildings and grounds of the University and of . . . new construction, improvements, alterations, and repairs. . . ."

Planning and development committee, consisting of the chairman of the Board, President of the University, and seven other members elected by the Board, is "to review and appraise from time to time the University's over-all program; to identify areas in which the University should initiate new activities or expand and strengthen existing programs; to plan concrete measures for the successful accomplishment of such extensions of the University's work; to devise and employ means for increasing the University's financial resources; to work upon those external relationships of the University which materially affect its welfare."

Law committee, consisting of the chairman of the Board, President of the University, and three other members elected by the Board, "shall have general supervision and direction over all legal matters in connection with the University."

Special Committees

A special audit committee of three Trustees not members of the investment committee, elected annually, recommends to the Board the selection of independent auditors to examine the accounts of the University, receives and studies the reports of such auditors, and makes recommendations thereon to the Board.

A special annuity committee, composed of the chairman of the Board, President of the University, and three members appointed by the chairman of the Board, directs and coordinates the gift annuity program of the University.

A special Board membership committee, its five members appointed by the chairman of the Board, is charged with the duty of investigating and recommending candidates for election to fill vacancies among the cooptative Board members.

Board Roster

In the following list, Trustees elected by the Board are designated (B), Alumni Trustees (A), and those appointed by the Governor (G). Committee assignments of each are followed by number of years served as Trustee.

Post-war United States

The United States After the War: The Cornell University Summer Session Lectures. Introduction by Dean Cornelis W. DeKiewiet, Arts and Sciences. Cornell University Press, Ithaca. 1945. 180 pages, $2.50.

Six lectures, delivered on the Campus last July and August, and as Dean DeKiewiet points out, "most opportunely ended in the week of peace itself," are here published. Alvin H. Hansen, professor of political economy at Harvard, discusses "Social Planning for Tomorrow;" Professor Forrest F. Hill, PhD '30, Land Economics, "Agriculture in the Postwar Economy;" University Trustee Louis Hollander, president of the New York State CIO Council, "The Role of Organized Labor in the United States Economy;" Walter D. Fuller, president of Curtis Publishing Co., "American Business After the War;" Professor Herbert W. Briggs, Government, "Power Politics and International Organization;" and University Trustee George D. Stoddard, State Commissioner of Education and president-elect of the University of Illinois, "Educating American Citizens."

What Happened Here

While You Were Gone: A Report on Wartime Life in the United States. With chapters by Allan Nevins, former professor of American History at Cornell, Russell Lord '18, and Henry F. Pringle '19. Simon & Schuster, New York City. 1946. viii+625 pages, $3.50.

Twenty-six persons were invited by the editor, Jack Goodman, to write on various phases of what happened at home during the war, so that men and women who were in the armed forces might bring themselves up to date, upon their return to civilian life. The twenty-four resulting chapters (two are collaborative) are classified into five sections: "How We Thought and Behaved," "How We Were Governed," "Our Jobs and How We Did Them," "What We Saw, Read, and Heard," and "How We Prepared for Tomorrow." Inevitably, there is as much variety of treatment and opinion in the separate chapters as there is difference among their writers.

Opening chapter, and one which sets a high standard for the rest of the book, is "How We Felt About the War," by Professor Allan Nevins of Columbia, who taught American History at Cornell in 1927-28. His analysis of American public opinion before and after Pearl Harbor and its effect on our conduct of the war is a masterpiece. Henry F. Pringle '19, writing on "The War Agencies," describes the growth of Federal bureaucracy which spread from Washington all over the country and tells what the alphabetical agencies did and do. On a Guggenheim Fellowship, he is preparing a popular history of the war. Russell Lord '18, from his background as one of our most articulate agricultural writers and preachers of conservation, tells "What Happened in Agriculture."

Most Americans, no matter where they "fought the war," have their own pet theories of its causes and effects. In this they are like the persons who write this book. Almost everybody will find cause for agreement and disagreement, and much of interest in the reports and theories it brings together.

Hotelmen in Service

CORNELL Society of Hotelmen has record of 753 Hotel alumni who have been in the armed forces. Of these, 224 have been discharged with many more soon to be out. Fifteen were killed in action; eight are still listed as missing in action and will probably be declared lost.

University Aims at 9,000 Students May Join in Junior College

PROVISION of facilities for a "target" enrollment of 9,000 students and additional instructing staff of 150-200 at the University in Ithaca next fall is being undertaken by a committee appointed by President Edmund E. Day. With Provost Arthur S. Adams as chairman, the committee is asked to "survey the situation, consider possible measures of relief, and recommend a program for securing such additional facilities as may satisfactorily be employed" to care for the greatly increased number of students who wish to attend the University.

Besides Provost Adams, the committee consists of Vice-president George H. Sabine '03, Treasurer George F. Rogalsky '07; Secretary Edward K. Graham, PhD '38; George S. Frank '11, Manager of Purchases; Milton R. Shaw '34, Manager of Residential Halls; Hugh E. Weatherlow '06, Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds; Dean of Students Harold E. B. Speight; Professor Cedric H. Guise '14, Forestry, chairman of the Faculty committee on allocation of class rooms; Professor Thomas W. Mackesey, Architecture; Benjamin K. Hough, Jr., assistant to the Dean of Engineering; and Thomas Hammonds, acting Director of Public Information.

President Day and Provost Adams represented Cornell at a conference of officials of all colleges and universities in the State, called by Governor Thomas E. Dewey in Albany, March 7 and 8. The Governor cited estimates that educational facilities would be required for 100,000 students in addition to the 105,000 who are now in the State's institutions of higher education, including provision for war veterans and their families and graduates of secondary schools. He said that some $15,000,000 is already earmarked by the State for temporary housing. President Day raised the question as to whether low-cost housing of permanent materials could be erected with State aid at less cost than moving or constructing strictly temporary buildings.

The conference unanimously adopted the following resolutions, drawn by representatives of Cornell, Colgate, Hobart and William Smith, Rochester, and Syracuse, in reply to the Governor's suggestion of possible use of the Naval Training Center at Sampson on Seneca Lake, soon to be abandoned by the Navy. It was estimated that 12,000 students might be accommodated in a junior college at Sampson. The resolutions follow.

WHEREAS, Governor Dewey has strongly urged that the colleges and universities of the State of New York make provision for 100,000 more students than they accommodated in 1941, in order that all returning veterans of the State may have full educational opportunity; and

WHEREAS, the institutions of higher learning of the State are eager to take every possible measure to meet this unprecedented challenge; and

WHEREAS, the employment of every facility that can be made available upon existing campuses may prove inadequate to satisfy this need; and

WHEREAS, the Governor has pledged

ADMISSIONS OFFICE BUSY IN NEW MCGRAW HALL QUARTERS

Left: Director Herbert H. Williams '25 and his assistant, Margaret C. Hassan '32, work on student applications for admission to the University next fall. Right: Opened for business March 4 in former classrooms in the basement of McGraw Hall, the Admissions Office, its staff augmented with after-hours assistance recruited from other University offices, went to work among painters, steamfitters, electricians, and other artisans to keep ahead of an unprecedented rush of business.

every possible assistance by the State to colleges and universities to meet this emergency; and

WHEREAS, the Governor has pointed out and the colleges and universities recognize the temporary nature of this need for expanded facilities; and

WHEREAS, the Governor has called attention to the possible temporary utilization of the NTC Sampson for educational purposes;

Now, therefore, be it RESOLVED by the representatives of the 87 colleges and universities here assembled by the Governor that:

1. If further study discloses that the overall requirements cannot otherwise be met, Colgate University, Cornell University, Hobart and William Smith Colleges, the University of Rochester, and Syracuse University be encouraged to undertake the joint operation on a non-profit basis of an institution to offer the first two years of college at the Naval Training Center, Sampson, N. Y.

2. Appropriate steps be taken to secure the earliest possible release by the Navy of the facilities at the Naval Training Center, Sampson, N. Y., for use by the five associated institutions.

3. The State, through emergency legislation or otherwise, make such arrangements as are necessary to provide for effective operation and to protect the five associated institutions from financial loss.

Westinghouse Award

GRANT to the University by the Westinghouse Educational Foundation establishes the Westinghouse Fellowship for graduate work in Mechanical Engineering, with an award of $1,000 a year for up to five years. The recipient must complete requirements for the MME degree; will be selected by the University from among applicants who are graduates of accredited institutions throughout the country.

Give Farm Advice

FARM Location Service, operated from the College of Agriculture through county agents in the fifty-six agricultural counties of New York State, reports that assistance was given during 1945 to some 1500 war veterans who were considering settling in the country. Local committees report that demands are increasing, not only from returning veterans but from former workers in war industries.

Department of Agricultural Economics at the College has classified lands in twenty counties of the State as to suitability for farming, and its land classification maps and detailed soil maps are on file in county agricultural agents' offices for the assistance of inquirers.

Since its publication in August, 1944, more than 40,000 copies of Extension Bulletin 652, "Suggestions to Persons Who Plan to Farm or to Live in the Country," by Professor Van B. Hart '16, Agricultural Economics, have been distributed by the College.

For Navy Prize

OFFICERS' Prize Fund of approximately $1,000 has been given to the University by the Officers' Mess, Inc., formerly operated in the old Town and Gown Club building on Stewart Avenue by Army and Navy staff officers stationed here. The money represents unused funds remaining to the organization after it ceased operation last fall.

Terms of the gift give to the commanding officer of the Naval Training School the responsibility of selecting annually the student or students who show the most promise as future Naval officers. If all Naval units are withdrawn from the University, the principal and income from the fund will be made available to the University for cancer research or other medical work.

DuPont Report

UNIVERSITY Trustee Walter S. Carpenter, Jr. '10, president of E. I. duPont de Nemours & Co., has issued a special report to stockholders describing the five-year record of Du Pont's contribution to the war effort. The report details the company's increased production of chemical materials in each of the last three war years to more than double that of 1939, including nylon, plastics, rayon yarn, dyestuffs, industrial chemicals, finishes, insecticides, fertilizers, pigments, photographic film, and many other products. It designed and built for the Government fifty-four plants at thirty-two locations, valued at $1,034,000,000. DuPont-operated, Government-owned plants produced military explosives, ammonia, methanol, neoprene synthetic rubber, and other chemical specialties to the value of $895,000,000. The company designed and built a small-scale "pilot" plant for atomic energy at Clinton Engineer Works in Tennessee and designed, built, and operated the $350,000,000 Hanford Engineer Works near Pasco, Wash., for manufacture of plutonium, each at a fee of $1, and with express stipulation that no patent rights from this work should accrue to Du Pont.

Military explosives accounted for less than 25 per cent of the company's total production in World War II, and earnings per share of common stock during the war years declined 21 per cent below the 1939-41 average and 5 per cent under the 1936-38 level.

"It should be plain," Carpenter says, "that the business interests of the Company lie, primarily and overwhelmingly, with peace. However essential to modern warfare the chemical industry may be, its prosperity and its prospects can be realized only in a peaceful, orderly society. Every practical consideration, therefore, in addition to the obvious personal and humanitarian aspects, prompts the prayer that means will be found to build and insure world peace forever."

Pittsburgh Entertains

CORNELL Club of Pittsburgh, Pa., was host to the executive committee of the Federation of Cornell Men's Clubs, February 8. Meeting at the University Club in Pittsburgh, the Federation committee heard a general report on program and activities by President William F. Stuckle '17, who presided. John Pennington '24 of Buffalo reported as chairman of the committee on redistricting for recommendation to the district directors of the Alumni Association, and Linton Hart '14 of Detroit, Mich., reported for the committee on geographical representation of Alumni Trustees. Emmet J. Murphy '22, secretary of the Federation, told of Cornell Clubs that are being organized and reactivated. Other members of the executive committee present were L. W. Voigt '22 of Pittsburgh and Herman Bergholtz, Jr. '25 of the Western Massachusetts Club.

Annual banquet of the Cornell Club of Pittsburgh that evening brought about 100 Cornellians to the University Club. Voigt presided, and Fred W. Waterman, Jr. '24 reported as secretary-treasurer of the Club. Stuckle and Murphy were the banquet speakers.

The Club meets regularly for luncheon on Thursdays at 12:15 at the Hotel Henry in Pittsburgh.

'95 Fifty-Year Book

GOLDEN Anniversary Class Book of the Class of '95 has been distributed to the 200-odd living members of the Class as the gift of the Class secretary, William E. Schenck. Both in time and money, this is a memorable "labor of love" by the indefatigable Class secretary who compiled and edited it; Schenck in his Foreword describes it as "a composite letter—a sort of round-robin from everyone to everyone about yesterday, today and tomorrow . . ." As such, it will be greatly prized by every member of the Class.

Handsomely bound in red fabrikoid with gold stamping, and profusely illustrated with group pictures of the Class from its Freshman days to its most recent Reunion and with scenes of the Campus both today and yesterday, the book was designed and produced by the W. F. Humphrey Press in Geneva.

The editor writes a sprightly and informative "Epistle to '95 Cornellians" which is full of humor, sage advice to Classmates, and much about the physical aspect and the underlying philosophy of Cornell today. A section headed "The Family News," is a skillful composite of the many letters which '95 men and women wrote to the Class secretary, and to each other, while he was collecting the more formal biographical facts for this book. The latter half of the book is occupied with thumbnail biographies, alphabetically arranged, of all who answered the Class questionnaire, about half accompanied by photographs of the subjects, taken both recently and as they looked when they were students.

In value to his Classmates and to the University, Class Secretary Schenck has set a high standard in this fifty-year record, for other Classes to aim at.

Stevens in Rochester

DEAN Robert S. Stevens of the Law School was guest of honor at a special luncheon of the Cornell Club of Rochester, March 13 at the Powers Hotel. J. Arthur Jennings '18 was chairman of the reception committee for Dean Stevens.

Represents Cornell

OFFICIAL delegate of Cornell University at the inauguration of Dr. Arthur H. Compton as chancellor of Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., February 22, was Dr. Robert J. Terry '94, long-time professor of anatomy at Washington. A native of St. Louis, Dr. Terry entered the Medical Preparatory Course in 1890, stayed for two years, and went to the Missouri Medical College, where he received the MD in 1895.

"Outward Bound"

LABORATORY Theatre, composed of graduate students in Drama and a few Dramatic Club veterans back from the war, staged an excellent production of Sutton Vane's "Outward Bound," March 15, 16, and 23 in the Willard Straight Theater.

A good cast made the most of a good play, to the delight and satisfaction of a rather skimpy first audience. Seven passengers on a mystery liner, you remember, make the startling discovery that they are actually dead, that the ship is bearing them to heaven and to hell (both the same place), and that the terms of their after-life are to be determined at the end of the voyage by the Great Examiner.

George E. Joseph '44 scored first honors as the elbow-bending Mr. Prior, giving the part a wry humor, admirable pace, and a climactic, shocking intensity. Richard K. Redfern, Grad, as the hard-headed tycoon, Francis R. Hodge, AM '40, a sincere

Now, in My Time!

By Romeyn Perry

AFTER years of disuse, the machinery which once ran so smoothly in the management of Class Reunions is now found to clash and clang a little when you start the engine.

We suspected something of the sort the other day when Mr. Murphy, General Alumni Secretary, inquired of us the names of rural churches whose Ladies' Aid Societies might be interested in putting on Class dinners for one or more Reunion groups. We were gratified to be able to give him some likely telephone numbers.

Life is not so easy and pleasant for alumni secretaries hereabouts as it once was. Experienced experts who once handled the lodging of returned alumni in the one case, their food and drink in another, are now discovered to be still in Washington or Tokyo. Specialists in brass bands, Reunion costumes, baseball tickets, and after-dinner speakers are now scattered and can be located, if at all, only in Germany or Guam. Ithaca and Cornell University are just as short of furnished rooms, butter, waitresses, sugar, cooking utensils, and pillow cases as any other part of the country.

But there is nothing in the situation to cause anxiety to Reunion committees and Class secretaries. Mr. Murphy will get the bearings oiled and the kinks straightened out well before June 21. We report the matter only to bring it home to the older subscribers how, with the years, Class Reunions have become respectable and officially recognized; how responsibility for the comfort and convenience of returning alumni has shifted to resident University officers, and off the shoulders of harassed Classmates in distant places.

It wasn't so very long ago—forty years perhaps—that the chief concern of Morrill Hall with alumni Reunions was to keep their more violent manifestations west of Stewart Avenue. One registered on arrival, you recall, in Louis Bement's store on State Street. He received his costume in the sample room of the Ithaca Hotel. The Class dinner was pretty apt to be held in some downtown pub and the line of march to the baseball games at Percy Field involved only Tioga Street and never got within a mile of the Quadrangle.

Sometimes, the older Classes rented entire houses to lodge the aged and infirm, but commonly the matter of finding himself a place to sleep was left to the individual. The Class secretary assumed no responsibility for beds. Nor was he expected to. It would never have occurred to anyone in that rugged era that a grown man who, as a boy of seventeen, had been able to break into Cornell by his own unaided efforts, wasn't entirely capable of finding himself some place to sleep in Ithaca when he came back for his Reunion. It was the common practice to seek out one's undergraduate lodgings and go to bed there without formality or preliminary negotiations.

We don't know when or why the change occurred whereby the University started being nice to alumni. Perhaps it was a natural outgrowth of being nice to Freshmen, taking their temperatures and blood counts, counting their calories and checking their vitamins. That began after the turn of the century. And once you start mothering Freshmen, you doubtless have to keep on mothering them, first as students and later as alumni. That theory is as plausible and creditable as any we can think up at the moment.

It's easier and pleasanter for everybody to have Mr. Murphy and his acolytes smooth the way for all the Class Reunions, make all the arrangements for Class dinners with the rural churches and the Ladies' Aid Societies. But the implications are a matter of concern to all old timers who had their fibers toughened in the age of iron and oak. How long has it been, we rise to inquire, since a graduate of Cornell University couldn't take care of himself and his Classmates in Ithaca; couldn't carve his own course through, over, or around every obstacle?

Reverend Duke, Leah E. Day, Grad, as Mrs. Midget the charwoman, and Vera E. Malton, Grad, as the acid-tongued Mrs. Cliveden-Banks all gave sterling performances, and the rest of the cast was not far behind.

Professor Alex M. Drummond designed and directed the production.

Spring Practices Begin

MILD, dry weather in mid-March called Campus athletes outdoors at an unusually early date this year. Baseball practice started in the Bacon Cage March 11, and a week later the candidates were cavorting on Hoy Field, with Mose P. Quinn back in his old role of head coach after a tour of duty with the Navy.

Oarsmen, directed by Harrison Sanford, were on the water March 14 after a winter's work on the rowing machines in the Old Armory. Lacrosse practice started March 12 on lower Alumni Field. Track candidates have started drills for the outdoor schedule, and tennis and golf sessions will be started soon.

Approximately seventy candidates reported for crew and promptly elected Charles P. E. von Wrangell '47 of Buffalo, captain. Von Wrangell rowed No. 7 on the 1944 Varsity crew when he was a Naval Reserve trainee. He is back in the University now as a civilian.

Lightweight rowing will be resumed this year. The 150-pound oarsmen are directed by Robert B. Tallman '41, of Ithaca, who rowed with the lightweights before the war and has returned from the Navy to finish his course in Architecture. Two races are tentatively scheduled, one out of town, the other with Princeton at Ithaca, June 1. The varsity crews of Princeton, Pennsylvania, and Wisconsin will also row on Cayuga Lake that day.

Richard L. Randolph '48 of New York City, who stroked the Junior Varsity boat in 1944, is the tentative choice for Varsity stroke.

Baseball schedule has been extended to fifteen games with the addition of a home-and-home series with Syracuse. The first game will be at Hoy Field, May 22, with the return contest at Syracuse, June 12.

A number of veterans have reported for baseball, but the squad is expected to lack pitching strength. Among the hurlers back in action are Pearne W. Billings '44 of Oneida Castle and Wendell E. Blanchard '48 of Hamilton.

Lacrosse squad, under Dr. Ray Van Orman '08, lists eight veterans in the squad of thirty. The team will be the first to go into competition, meeting Syracuse April 20, at Syracuse.

Spring football squad registered March 22 and will start practice April 15. The five-week session under Coach Edward C. McKeever will close with an intra-squad game, May 18.

Military Wins Polo

VARSITY indoor polo team lost, 13-11, to a Military Department team, March 16 in the Riding Hall. High scorers were Dr. Stephen J. Roberts '37, Veterinary Medicine, for the Department trio, and Hugh G. Dean '49 of Larchmont, for the Varsity. Each scored 5 goals.

"C" Awards

LETTERS in football, soccer, and cross country have been awarded for the 1945 season, and managers have been selected in two sports.

Robert Standard, USNR, will manage football, and James C. Huntington '49, soccer.

The letter winners:

CROSS COUNTRY

David R. Bulk, George H. Ebel, Willard L. Hedden, Daniel M. Kelly, Albert L. Koup, Harold McQuade, Raymond N. Shupe, Watson B. Smith.

For the Record

FOR its all-star up-State New York basketball team, the United Press recently placed Irwin W. Alterson, USNR, at forward. Eugene D. Berce, USNR, was named on the second team, and Edward W. Peterson '48 was given honorable mention. Others on the first team were Vanderweghe and Braun of Colgate, Gabor of Syracuse, and Niland of Canisius.

John H. Rowland, former head basketball and assistant football coach here, has been appointed football coach at Oklahoma City University.

Richard P. LaFrance of Ithaca, Army lieutenant blinded in action in Germany just before V-E Day, has been appointed assistant trainer in the Department of Physical Education and Athletics. LaFrance, for whom Ithacans recently raised more than $12,000 for the construction or purchase of a house, will specialize in physiotherapy.

Fete Football

FOUR Cornellians graced the speakers' table at the annual football banquet in Morristown, N. J., March 13, at which gold footballs and sweaters were awarded to the seniors on last season's high-school team. Head Coach Edward C. McKeever spoke, introduced by Raymond P. Heath '11, member of the board of education, as toastmaster. Also at the head table were Mayor Clyde Potts '01 and George Munsick '21, president of the Lackawanna Cornell Club.

Women Hear Kavanagh

NINETEEN members of the Cornell Women's Club of Cayuga County, meeting March 11 at the home of Josephine Meaker '23 in Auburn, heard Trainer Frank J. Kavanagh explain football plays illustrated by movies of the Cornell team in action. Mrs. Paul E. Newman '38 (Julia Robb) '38, president of the Club, welcomed ten guests at the meeting.

Cornell's Legal Basis

LAWS Relating to Cornell University have been collected in a booklet of 100 pages by Robert B. Meigs '26, secretary of the Board of Trustees, and published by the University. This is a revision of a similar booklet published in 1929, and brings up to date all the New York State and Federal statutes which relate to the University, both specifically and generally.

President Edmund E. Day contributes a Foreword in which he traces the background of the University as outlined in these laws, from the Morrill Land Grant College Act of 1862 and including the Charter of Cornell University which was signed by Governor Robert E. Fenton, April 27, 1865. The President points out that the laws included in this booklet "are essentially an expression of the unique partnerships into which the University, as a land grant institution, has entered with the People of the State of New York and the People of the United States." He notes that the New York State legislation deals almost entirely with the State Colleges and Schools and does not mention by name those divisions of the University which are privately endowed. "The corporation known as Cornell University," he says, "has, on the other hand, made such changes in the number and administration of its endowed colleges as seemed desirable to the Board of Trustees. . . . and some of the most far-reaching decisions bearing on the University's planning and development never make their appearance in public statute."

"There are overtones, however," the President continues, "which are highly significant as reflections of the sort of thinking which was brought to bear in the founding of Cornell, and which has guided the institution's policies for more than three-quarters of a century. He cites "the objective of combining liberal and practical education, stated in the Morrill Act and reaffirmed in Ezra Cornell's address at the opening of the University in 1868," and says: "The provisions of the charter which assure that the Board of Trustees shall not be dominated by members 'of any one religious sect or of no religious sect,' and that 'persons of every religious denomination, or of no religious denomination, shall be equally eligible to all offices and appointments' in all divisions of the University, are cornerstones of our tradition of tolerance."

Cornell Plantations

WINTER number of The Cornell Plantations contains three interesting articles dealing with the background and philosophy of the great University plantations which this quarterly publication advances. Editor Bristow Adams traces the history and significance of the Bailey Hortorium on Sage Place, a gift to the University by Professor L. H. Bailey and Mrs. Bailey. Professor Albert H. Wright '04, Zoology, writes on "Pre-Plantation Planners," Professors Bailey, Willard W. Rowlee '88, Karl M. Wiegand '94, Albert D. Taylor, MSA '06, and Ralph W. Curtis '01. Professor Oscar D. von Engeln '08, Geology, writing on "Natural History Resources of Cornell," makes a plea for preservation of the many sites for study of natural history which still exist on and within easy reach of the Campus.

Other informative articles include "Relationships Between Forest Trees and Soils," by Professor Robert F. Chandler, Jr., Forestry; and "Dwarf Apple Trees" and discussion of a new native root stock for apples by Professor Robert M. Smock, Pomology.

Subscription to The Cornell Plantations is $1 for two years, from the office in Roberts Hall.

George Coleman Dies

GEORGE L. COLEMAN '95, assistant professor of Music, emeritus, and leader of Cornell musical clubs for half a century, died March 21 at his home in Johnson City, Tenn.

As an undergraduate in Architecture, Coleman helped to finance his college expenses by leading the Wilgus Opera House orchestra in Ithaca, and for twenty years after the Lyceum Theater opened he directed its orchestra. After receiving the BS in Architecture in 1895, he formed a partnership with the late Joseph B. Hickey in a music store downtown, meanwhile giving lessons to many undergraduates and designing and building houses on the side. He joined the old Mandolin Club as director for its Christmas trip in 1901, and from then until his retirement in June, 1941, he directed student instrumental clubs continuously, becoming known and loved by thousands of Cornellians.

In 1907, Coleman reorganized the University Orchestra, which had been inactive for four years, and was appointed its conductor. With the formation of the ROTC in 1917, he became director of the band, developing it into the famed "Ten-Square" organization known throughout the East. After serving with the AEF in France, he returned to the University in 1919 as instructor in Music. He was retired as assistant professor, emeritus, the only person ever to be so honored.

Alumni, undergraduates, and colleagues gathered on the Campus May 23 and 24, 1941, for a gala farewell concert in Bailey Hall, and "The George L. Coleman Testimonial Dinner" in Willard Straight Hall. From all over the country his former students, many of them now prominent in business, music, and education, returned to play for the last time under Coleman's baton. The Savage Club, of which he was long a member, entertained him in their rooms, and he received a radio, victrola, and traveling bag from the Orchestra and the Alumni Association.

Since 1942 he and Mrs. Coleman had lived in Johnson City, where he organized and directed a band and orchestra at Eastern Tennessee State College, and in the Boone's Creek School, and conducted the Methodist Church choir.

Another Mayor

ADD Cornell mayors: Carl M. Jackson '12 of Sackets Harbor, who writes: "Am on the last year of my third term, which the little woman says is the last and she is usually correct."

Travellers See Boys

ASSISTANT Alumni Secretary Emerson Hinchliff '14 visited four secondary schools in the Milwaukee, Wis., area March 4, accompanied by Charles N. Mellowes '33; lunched at Milwaukee Country Day School with the president of its alumni association, C. Brooks Stevens '34; and dined that evening at the University Club with Robert T. Foote '39, president of the Cornell Club of Milwaukee, and several Club members interested in secondary schools.

Hinchliff called on six schools in the vicinity of Evanston, Ill., March 5-8, and discussed University admissions before an overflow crowd, March 7 at a luncheon of the Cornell Club of Chicago arranged by F. A. Cushing Smith '12, chairman of the Club's secondary schools committee.

March 14, in Morristown, N. J., Hinchliff and Director William L. Malcolm, PhD '37, Civil Engineering, spoke to some eighty boys entertained by the Lackawanna Cornell Club. Several Club members and school principals were also present and movies of the Campus were shown. Master of Ceremonies George Munsick '21, president of the Club, introduced Hermann W. Hagemann '13, who told stories about Coach John F. Moakley. During the day, Director Malcolm visited Lawrenceville School with William H. Hill '21, and Hinchliff talked with sixty-five boys at Columbia High School in Morristown.

Next day, with Director of Admissions Herbert H. Williams '25 and Professor Blanchard L. Rideout, PhD '36, Malcolm and Hinchliff spoke to ninety-eight boys, thirty-five parents, fifteen headmasters, and thirty-nine alumni assembled by the Cornell Club of Essex County, N. J., at the Rock Spring Club in West Orange. Other speakers included William F. Stuckle '17, president of the Club and of the Federation of Cornell Men's Clubs, and J. Paul Leinroth '12, chairman of the Club's secondary schools committee. Campus movies were shown.

Cleveland Orchestra

UNIVERSITY concert by the Cleveland Orchestra packed Bailey Hall to the doors, March 11. Under the lively baton of Erich Leinsdorf, the performance of the eighty-five-piece orchestra brought enthusiastic applause which called the conductor back to the stage again and again.

The program opened with two choral preludes by Brahms, "There is a Rose in Flower" and "O, God, Thou Holiest," transcribed from the organ score by Leinsdorf and retaining much of the organ quality in the orchestral presentation. Schubert's "Symphony in C Major" was rendered with notable power and majesty. In the suite from the ballet, "Appalachian Spring," written originally for Martha Graham, one missed the dancer's interpretation of the music. Introduction and the wedding march from the Rimsky-Korsakov opera, "The Golden Cockerel," was rendered with a rousing joyousness that brought two appreciated encores, Brahms's "Hungarian Dance" and "Perpetual Motion" by Johann Strauss.

Faculty Appointments

TRUSTEES have approved the appointments of ten new members of the Faculty and the promotions of two others.

Royce P. Murphy, formerly associate professor of agronomy at Montana State College and until recently a lieutenant, USNR, becomes acting associate professor of Plant Breeding. Otis F. Curtis, Jr., PhD '40, son of Professor Otis F. Curtis, PhD '16, Botany, is appointed assistant professor of Pomology; a graduate of Oberlin College, he returns to Cornell from Indio, Cal., where he was associate physiologist at the US Department of Agriculture date laboratory. Also named assistant professor of Pomology, Louis J. Edgerton, PhD '41, was an assistant and instructor in that Department from 1937-41.

Robert W. Bratton, PhD '42, returns as assistant professor of Animal Husbandry; he was a graduate assistant in the Department from 1939 until 1942, when he entered military service. Martha E. Leighton, a graduate and former staff member of the University of Vermont, becomes assistant professor in Extension Service in Agriculture and assistant State 4-H Club leader, a position she held at Pennsylvania State College before coming to Cornell.

Five new assistant professors in the Medical College in New York are Drs. Cranston W. Holman, Frederick L. Liebolt, Samuel W. Moore, Russel H. Patterson, Clinical Surgery; and

Dr. Frank R. Smith, Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Robert F. Brooks '37 is promoted from instructor to assistant professor of Food Science and Technology. Jeremiah J. Wanderstock '41 is promoted from instructor to assistant professor of Animal Husbandry.

Buffalo Officers

DIRECTORS of the Cornell Club of Buffalo elected the following Club officers, March 5: president, Harold J. Tillou '13; vice-presidents, Harold H. Williams '09, Alfred M. Saperston '19, and Richard T. Carpenter '34; secretary-treasurer, Herbert R. Johnston '17; assistant secretary-treasurer, Walter S. Merwin '35; athletic director, Jerome Brock '34. Directors elected for three-year terms at the annual dinner of the Club are Williams, Irving D. Shire '31, and Ralph E. Henrich '36.

Intelligence

By Emerson Hunchliff '14

What the Dutch Treat table at the Cornell Club of New York is to the main dining room, so in the Faculty Forum Willard Straight Hall is the long, most westerly table to the rest of the cafeteria. Get there from 12:30 on, and you are almost sure to find a choice and variegated assortment of kindred spirits from the Faculty assimilating food for both body and soul. Usually the students get there first, but by 12:30 the first sitting has vacated and the professors infiltrate and then take over.

Professor Petry is almost always there, primed for a discussion on any subject. Librarian Kinkeldey, who doubles in Musicology, has been another regular, as is Professor von Engeln '08. Professors Adelman '20 and Gilbert, Zoology, are likely to be in the thick of some discussion. Professors Detweiler and Mackesey frequently represent Architecture. Some days there is high banter, with men from one Department riding those from another; all taking cracks at Harry Caplan '16 and the Classics, and Harry giving back as good as he gets.

My Classmate, Cedric Guise of Forestry, is overheard saying, "I was on that committee," as he clears up a point. Another '14er, Morris Bishop, back from the wars, may bring up a tray, as may Professor Waagé, looking artistic. Dean Hollister may be there, possibly introducing a man from the Aeronautical Laboratory with a wind tunnel up his sleeve. Vice-president Sabine '03, looking as if perpetually wrestling with a problem, is a regular. I get there every week or two, and especially enjoy taking Phi Beta Kappa alumni in as guests when they are in town; e.g., the president of the Cornell Club of St. Louis.

For my sins—I mean as a reward for a good clean life—I sat one day next to that tub-thumping for the Law School, Excels Professor Arthur J. Keffe '24. I must confess that I don't know too much about the Lawyers. In my day, the Law School was an undergraduate course. Gradually it has been pushed up to become a graduate school, though Cornell Arts men can get in at the end of their Junior year and, by double registration, take the AB with their regular Class and the LLB two years later. I knew one recent graduate, who seemed to enjoy the School very much, and I know several of the Faculty. I have met two of the four new professors announced in the ALUMNI NEWS story of last November 15, and they seem up to standard.

Of course, everybody knows that the Law School is perfectly beautifully housed in Myron Taylor Hall. Built at the depth of the depression, in 1930-32, I hesitate to say how many millions it would now take to duplicate it. It is a luxurious setting for a theoretical maximum of 250 students.

But to get back to Professor Keffe: He admits that the Cornell Law School, while not the biggest, is just about the best in the country, although he does recognize four competitors. Perhaps his most appealing statement is that, even in the depths of the depression, graduating classes were 100 per cent placed. It is well known that graduates have a uniformly excellent record in the State Bar examinations.

Quality is kept up by holding numbers down. Even in the darkest war days, when registration dwindled to thirty-five, we refused men not of Cornell calibre. Similarly, we always have tuition-paying students who have turned down scholarships elsewhere. The ratio of students to Faculty he says is the lowest in the country; right now, it is about seven to each professor. The whole Myron Taylor plant is built to accommodate not more than 250. With small numbers, the professors know the students as individuals and continue to remember and keep up with them after graduation. Because of small classes, a student gets called on frequently.

Another argument for attendance at Cornell is that New York State is the biggest field for lawyers and New York law has had more influence on the laws of other States than has that of any other.

* * *

It hasn't taken definite shape yet, but our Blackstonians are considering what they call a four-three Preview program; that is to say, it would be a four-year course, but one of the years would be spent in the School of Business and Public Administration or in Industrial and Labor Relations, for instance. Now, most of their students come from Arts colleges throughout the country, chiefly economics majors. They would like to have graduates in engineering or hotel or architecture or what-have-you come to them for law. This is an age of specialization, and a lawyer who knows profoundly some field of earning a living might nicely establish a lucrative practice in that field.

Back in the spring of 1914, as The Cornell Daily Sun board was about to change and I was about Confession to vacate the sanctum sanctorum to make way for Cornell Alumni Association President Bill Kleitz '15, I, with the brashness of youth, devoted a column to each College on the Hill in turn, giving my considered opinion of each. I would tremble to go back and read them now, just as some of the personal remarks hazarded in "Intelligence" columns may rise to plague me in a later incarnation.

About the Law School, I think I harked back to the golden days when it boasted such men as Huffcut, Pound, and Charles Evans Hughes on its Faculty. I was at the moment taking Contracts under E. H. Woodruff, and he devoted the first quarter-hour of his next lecture to putting me nicely in my place. He called the Sun editorial temperate and praised the idea of the series, but said that in his judgment the then Law School Faculty was as good a teaching team as any that had gone before it. Now we look back on "Woody" himself as one of the "greats!"

I daresay the present Faculty, in breadth of knowledge and experience and in coverage of new things such as administrative, labor, and tax law, is superior to its predecessors; certainly their equals. All the Law professors I know are strictly first-class, and the phrase "insurance academy" becomes "fighting words."

"Woody" was a wonder. I used to stop in at his side porch and chew the fat with him after I came back to Ithaca in 1940. I remember—but I've written enough about the Law School for one sitting!

April 1, 1946

Time Was . . .

Twenty-five Years Ago

April, 1921—"Dr. Frank Sheehan" advertises Spring Day for the Athletic Association:

"Along about April a lot of Old Grads claim they can't get away for Spring Day this year. You don't want to let that talk fool you. I notice when the special trains roll in the same ones always get off. Then they come to me and say 'Frank, how about a coupla seats back of the plate?' 'Back of the plate, hell!' I sez. 'If you'd a spoke up two weeks ago I could a fixed you up nice but now what you draw to sit on is a nice sharp stone on Dead Head Hill.' If they run their business that way they'd all be broke. If I've told one guy that I've told a million. Well, a hundred anyway."

Rosa Ponselle, on March 31, gave the most enjoyable of the regular series of University concerts, the final one of the season. She has a rich soprano voice, a rare dramatic quality in her expression, and a well developed personality.

For refusing to wear a Frosh cap, a Freshman has been thrown into Beebe Lake by other members of his Class. In response, the Faculty has resolved "that physical force shall not be used by any student or group of students in compelling anyone to observe rules formulated by students."

Twenty Years Ago

April, 1926—Notice to move on has been given to the squatters living in the "Hog Hole" on the west shore of Cayuga Lake. A sun compet went down to interview the residents and wrote a tale that brought tears to the eyes of the statues in the Museum of Casts. But the Board of Public Works is more hard-boiled about it, and insists that the settlement must go, being a menace to community health. The good old days of Tess of the Storm Country will soon be no more.

The ingrained belief that Cornell will not support a literary magazine collapsed when the first issue of The Columns, published April 1, was sold out on the first day. Business board members had to call in copies from the newsstands to supply regular subscribers. The contents, a tasty assortment of stories, essays, and verse by undergraduates and several members of the Faculty, with the attractive appearance of the magazine, explain its success. John B. Emperor '26 of Auburn is the editor.

Mexico's Secretary of the Treasury, Eduardo Suarez, visited Ithaca briefly last month to see his sons, Alfonso and Miguel Suarez, both Sophomores.

VETSBURG'S FIFTY TWO-FAMILY COTTAGES DOMINATE EAST ITHACA

Sixth Trustee Candidate

NOMINATION of Edward E. Goodwillie '10 as a candidate for Alumni Trustee was received by the University Treasurer, March 19. Goodwillie is assistant to the vice-president of Bethlehem Steel Co., Bethlehem, Pa.

This is the sixth nomination to be received of candidates for the two Alumni Trustees to be elected for five-year terms beginning next July 1, in place of Robert E. Treman '09 and Tell Berna '12, whose terms expire. Nominations close at midnight, April 1, and as soon as possible thereafter official ballots will be mailed by the Treasurer to all degree holders of record. Any ten degree holders may nominate a candidate by filing nomination with the University Treasurer. Pictures and biographies of all candidates nominated will appear in the April 15 ALUMNI NEWS.

Clubs President Speaks

GUEST of honor at an evening meeting of the Cornell Women's Club of Schenectady, March 8 at the home of Mrs. P. Paul Miller (Sara Speer) '21, was Ruth F. Irish '22, president of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs. Twenty members attended, with Mrs. Arthur E. Newkirk (Katherine Doring) '35, president of the Club, presiding.

Miss Irish also addressed twenty-seven members of the Cornell Club of Bergen County, N. J., March 11, introduced by F. Gertrude Eaton '20, Club president.

Letters

Subject to the usual restrictions of space and good taste, we shall print letters from subscribers on any side of any subject of interest to Cornellians. The ALUMNI NEWS often may not agree with the sentiments expressed and disclaims any responsibility beyond that of fostering interest in the University.

TO THE EDITOR:

I was very much interested in the letter appearing in the March 15 ALUMNI NEWS signed by Harold C. Halsted '14. As chairman of the recently-appointed Alumni Committee on Admissions, I well realize that the question of the treatment of legacies is one that will have to be discussed by my committee, along with a number of other problems. The committee will probably meet several times this spring and its conclusions will undoubtedly be announced in a later issue of the NEWS.

I will keep for reference the copy of the letter written by Harold Halsted and would be glad to hear from any other alumni on this and related subjects.—GEORGE MUNSICK '21

30 Park Place,

Morristown, N. J.

In accordance with its policy, the ALUMNI NEWS will be glad to publish any letters which readers feel moved to write to us on the subject of priority in admissions for Cornellians' children, which was raised by Halsted's letter in our last issue.—Ed.

Cortland Birthday

TENTH anniversary of the Cornell Women's Club of Cortland County was celebrated March 12 at the Winter Green in Cortland by thirty-six Club members, Mrs. Albert J. Durkee (Florence Foster) '23, president, presiding.

Thirteen of the fifteen charter members were present. Toastmistress was Mrs. Harry A. Mullen (Fannie Wheeler) '30, now of Amsterdam. Letters from former members, no longer residing in Cortland, were read, together with a congratulatory message from Ruth F. Irish '22, president of the Federation of Cornell Women's Clubs. Assistant Alumni Secretary Pauline J. Schmid '25 and Mrs. Robert C. Osborn (Agda Swenson) '20, guests from Ithaca, spoke briefly. Mrs. Harold Stevens (Grace Vroman) '31 gave a resumé of the Club's history in novel form, complete with jacket-blurb.

Connecticut Women

TWENTY-TWO members of the Cornell Women's Club of Western Connecticut, from Norwalk, Darien, Old Greenwich, New Canaan, and Westport, met March 14 at the Norwalk home of Mrs. Douglas Smith (Margaret Hoyt) '27. Proceeds of the Club's "White Elephant Sale" were added to the Federation Scholarship Fund.

Cleveland Women

SECONDARY schools tea of the Cornell Women's Club of Cleveland, Ohio, March 2 at the home of Mrs. Loyal G. Tinkler (Marjorie Cole) '21 was addressed by Assistant Alumni Secretary Pauline J. Schmid '25, who illustrated her talk with colored slides of the Campus. Forty-three attended, including Club members, high school seniors, and several undergraduate women home for between-terms recess.

Mrs. Charles S. Mills (Evelyn Ross) '25, Club president, presided, and introduced the chairman of the committee on secondary schools, Mrs. J. William Conner (Margaret Sturm) '35.

On The Campus and Down the Hill

Hotel Ezra Cornell, annual "hotel-for-a-day" organized and operated by students in Hotel Administration, will celebrate its coming of age this year with its twenty-first opening, May 4. Plans include a golf match on the University course, an alumni picnic and tour of the Campus, and a banquet prepared and served by students, followed by a formal ball. Managing director this year is Richard J. Selby '46 of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Joy M. Wahl '46 of Ashland, Ohio, is maitre d'hotel, with Donald B. Grady '47 of Hendersonville, N. C., as head chef.

Interfraternity Council was reactivated March 16 at a meeting in Willard Straight Hall, with the following officers elected: president, E. John Egan '43 of Syracuse, Chi Psi; vice-president, William S. Wheeler '44 of Evanston, Ill., Psi Upsilon; secretary-treasurer, Halbert E. Payne '49 of Greenwich, Conn., Sigma Phi. Inactive since October, 1943, when it voted to disband, the Council has been represented since then by an interim committee headed by Former President Edward D. Eddy '44 and Walter C. Heasley, Jr. '30.

Fraternity rushing for the spring term began March 7, lasting two weeks, with a third week of informal pledging, after which rushing rules were suspended. Bids were returned March 23 in the Willard Straight Memorial Room; this ceremony being immediately followed by a meeting of the Interfraternity Council at which each chapter's pledge-list was posted. The Bulletin pointed out, ruefully, that "because of the housing situation, many rushees are living in fraternity houses. It is expected that those fraternities will exercise discretion and abide by rushing rules as far as possible."

Sororities have been rushing, too, under the deferred second-term plan for new students. The 291 girls who registered as prospective pledges were divided into groups by the Pan-Hellenic Council, to make the rounds of all houses. These tea-and-cookie open houses are followed by invitation parties, after which each house will compile a list of twenty-one women they wish to bid, along with a few alternates. Every woman so named by any sorority (many are bid by several houses) receives a "preferential card" on which she may list her first, second, and perhaps third choice of sororities. Preferential cards and house lists have been for many years "matched up" by University Attorney Allan H. Treman '21 as the basis for pledging.

Robinson Airlines has begun construction of a 2,700-foot runway and operational buildings on the new airport site, about four miles northeast of the Campus. Cecil S. Robinson '21, president of the company, expects to be using the new field by late summer. The University and the City of Ithaca are co-operating in the development of the new airport, which will accommodate large commercial planes of all types. Robinson has announced three round-trip flights daily, at reduced fares, to New York City and Buffalo. The company's new hangar and combined operations building and passenger lounge are now in use at Ithaca Airport.

Bronze Star Medal "for meritorious achievement in connection with operations on Okinawa" was awarded last month to Thomas E. Doak, graduate assistant in Agricultural Economics, recently separated from the Marine Corps as captain; Captain B. W. Chippendale, USN, professor of Naval Science and Tactics and commanding officer of the Naval Training School, made the presentation. A graduate of the University of Missouri in 1941, Doak entered the Graduate School in September of that year; left to enter the Marine Corps in 1942.

Mrs. Charles Ezra Cornell, wife of the eldest surviving grandson of the Founder, died March 17 at the home of their son, William B. Cornell '07, in Montclair, N. J. Services were held March 20 in Sage Chapel, with burial in the crypt under the Memorial Antechapel, where lie the bodies of Ezra Cornell, John McGraw, Andrew D. White, and members of their families.

SPRING DAY plans for May 25 include the traditional carnival (theme not yet announced), a Bailey Hall production by the Octagon Club titled "Rogues in Togas," and a dance in Barton Hall. These events will supplement the afternoon's scheduled tennis matches with Rochester, golf match with Colgate, double-header baseball games with Dartmouth, and lacrosse game with Penn State.

Sigma Delta Tau advertises in The Bulletin for student waiters: "GIRL SHY? Overcome it by waiting table or washing dishes at our sorority. Call 2389."

Discussion of "The Way Out of Labor-Management Conflicts," sponsored by CURW, brought a near-capacity audience of students and Faculty to Barnes Hall, March 19. Management point of view was upheld by C. J. Kenerson, former vice-president and works manager of Morse Chain Co. in Ithaca. Tucker Smith of Detroit, Mich., recently counsel for the CIO Auto Workers and Retail Workers unions, represented labor. Professor Jean T. McKelvey, Industrial and Labor Relations, spoke for the public. Moderator was Professor Maurice S. Newfeld, Industrial and Labor Relations.

Lillian Moller Gilbreth, chairman of personnel relations at Newark (N.J.) College of Engineering and a consulting engineer, visited the Campus March 16 to speak to the University's thirty-six women students in Engineering at a luncheon in Willard Straight Hall. Author, lecturer, and mother of twelve children, Dr. Gilbreth discussed her own career and the place of women in engineering. In charge of arrangements for the luncheon were Billie Carter of Honolulu, Hawaii, and Nina Sandberg of Appleton, both Sophomores in Chemical Engineering. Also present were Counselor for Women Lucile Allen and Director Fred H. Rhodes, PhD '14, Chemical Engineering, who arranged Dr. Gilbreth's visit; President Day, Deans Blanding and Hollister, and several other members of the Engineering Faculty.

Cornell Bulletin of March 22 announced the organization of a model United Nations Organization on the Campus, "to stimulate thought and action concerning the UNO, integrate foreign students into Campus activities, and bring the Campus closer together by virtue of common interest." Sponsors are the American Veterans Committee, American Youth for Democracy, The Bulletin, Cosmopolitan Club, CURW, Foreign Students' Association, Interfraternity Council, Pan-Hellenic Council, Student Council, Women's Self-government Association, and Willard Straight Hall. Jean D. Horowitz '47 of New Haven, Conn., is chairman of the steering committee.

The Faculty

President Edmund E. Day has been appointed to an advisory committee to consider revision of the charter and by-laws of the American Red Cross. The committee is composed of twenty-seven members, including business, industrial, and labor leaders, educators, and publishers.

University Trustee George D. Stoddard, New York State Commissioner of Education and president-elect of the University of Illinois, was chosen chairman of the US Education Mission to Japan, March 6.

Professor Paul J. Weaver, Music, attended the meeting of the Music Teachers' National Association held in Detroit, in February. For the last two years he has served as vice-president and as chairman of three special committees which have worked out plans for the future of the organization. Professor Weaver was re-elected to the executive committee of the Association, and will continue to serve on the special standing committee on college and university music.

Lieutenant Edgar A. Whiting '29, ★ USNR, who has been released to inactive duty and is on terminal leave until April 12, has resumed his duties as assistant director of Willard Straight Hall. Entering the Navy in April, 1944, he was officer-in-charge of the commissioned officers' mess at the Brooklyn Navy Yard for fifteen months. Since July, he has been ward-room officer on the USS Kearsarge, an Essex class carrier. He and Mrs.

Whiting (Evelyn Carter) '37 and their two children live at 115 Northway Road, Ithaca.

Professor Rolland M. Stewart, head of the Department of Rural Education, has been named acting Director of the School of Education, succeeding Professor Howard R. Anderson, who resigned from the post when he went on leave of absence in February. Professor Stewart will serve as Director until his retirement in June.

Director Leonard A. Maynard, PhD '15, of the School of Nutrition, spoke at a symposium of the American Institute of Nutrition, which was part of the program of the national meetings of the Federated Societies of Biology in Atlantic City, N. J., March 12-15.

"Strength of Thin Steel Compression Flanges," a paper by Professor George Winter, PhD '40, Civil Engineering, appears in the current issue of the official publication of the American Society of Civil Engineers. Professor Winter also presented a paper entitled "Hipped Plate Construction" at a recent convention of the American Concrete Institute in Buffalo.

New York Times March 10 contained two letters from members of the University Faculty concerning the feeding of the world's needy. One, written by Professor Frank A. Pearson '12, Prices and Statistics, and Donald Paarlberg, graduate assistant in Agricultural Economics, characterized the Government's price policy and subsidies as bars to the decision of emphasizing wheat as a means of feeding starving Europe. "If the price of wheat were permitted to rise substantially, it would no longer be profitable to feed it to livestock. If prices of feed grains were allowed to rise, thereby reducing the profit in the production of meat, still more livestock would be liquidated, and an increased supply of meat would be available immediately. The obstacles to these changes are our devotion to the idea of maintaining high livestock numbers and our devotion to the idea of maintaining a fixed-price system," they wrote. The other letter, signed by all resident members of the Department of Economics and three members of the Department of Agricultural Economics, endorsed the proposed $3,750,000,000 loan to Great Britain, now before Congress.

The Rev. Donald M. Cleary, Grad '38, discharged from the Army Air Forces, has returned to the University as Catholic chaplain. He served with the US Ninth Air Force in England and on the continent, and in Nuremberg, Germany, before he came back to the United States in November. The Rev. Joseph M. McNamara, who has been University Catholic chaplain for the last three years, has gone to the Pro-Cathedral of the Sacred Heart, Rochester, as assistant pastor.

Professor Lillian Shaben, extension nutritionist in Home Economics, discussed "How professional judging of foods is done" at a home-kitchen-career clinic sponsored by the New York Women's Council in New York City, February 20.

Francis E. Dart, Physics, will go to Italy this spring to do relief work with the American Friends Service Committee, following completion of his work for the PhD. He will be there two years, working on the transport of building materials for the reconstruction of homes in the villages of Chieti province in the Aventino River Valley. Mrs. Dart and their nine-month-old daughter will stay with relatives in South Bend, Ind.

A daughter, Mary Theresa McKeegan, was born March 1 in Ithaca to Paul L. McKeegan, assistant auditor of the University, and Mrs. McKeegan.

Paintings by Ithaca's amateur artists were exhibited in the studio of University Station WHCU, and a watercolor by Esther V. Whiteside, wife of Professor Horace E. PRINCE HENRY AND ENGLISH LITERATURE

BY ELKIN CALHOUN WILSON

PRINCE HENRY FREDERICK, first-born child of James I, kindled popular love and admiration in England unequaled by any royal predecessor except his great godmother, Queen Elizabeth. Poets and learned men celebrated his virtues, and profited by his stimulus and patronage. When he died in 1612, writers voiced the grief of the land in many elegies.

Based on a thorough study of relevant materials, this volume reveals the full impress which Henry left upon the intellectual life of his age, and especially upon its literature. $3.00

"... It has always been the fate of our University to be Perhaps Cornell! A part neither of the aristocratic tradition of the original colonies nor the educational democracy of the great West, half State college, half endowed institution, stoutly liberal and strangely conservative, its activity ranges from research in the noblest mysteries to broadcasting messages on disinfecting brooder houses. . . ."

Thus speaks Morris Bishop '14 in his piece, "—And Perhaps Cornell," contained in the book OUR CORNELL, which is now again offered to alumni. The book is a remarkable collection of Cornelliana, compiled from the writings also of Hendrik W. van Loon '05, E. B. White '21, Kenneth Roberts '08, Thomas S. Jones, Jr. '04, Raymond F. Howes '24, Romeyn Berry '04, and Dana Burnet '11, with pictures by Margaret Bourke-White '27 and Barrett Gallagher '35.

☞ Every Cornellian will treasure this book in his own library; will enjoy reading and re-reading it; take pride in lending it to his friends. ☞ And you won't find a more attractive—and effective—gift for that youngster who may be heading for Cornell, or for the library of your favorite prep school. ☞ Present edition is small, so it would be well to order yours now. ☞ Ninety pages, attractively bound in red cloth with gold stamped cover, Our Cornell is one dollar a copy, postpaid. '45 BS—Seymour Pomper, APO ★ 827, Box 1000, Care Postmaster, New Orleans, La., writes: "This is a small island outpost in the Pacific, in sharp contrast to the laboratories of Camp Detrick, Md., where I was working on biological warfare research. The island is set up to run war gas tests, a project that was considered 'top secret' during the war. At present, however, we are not doing very much except to wait for the ship that brings in our mail daily, and to think on the 'good old days,' which for me means Cornell."

'45 AB; '14 BS—Jeanne Treman, daughter of Leonard C. Treman '14, was married to Ensign William Shempp, USNR, at San Pedro (Cal.) Naval Base, March 4. Her address is 46 Erion Crescent, Rochester.
