Vol. XXII, No. 33

Ithaca, N. Y., May 20, 1920

Price 12 Cents

SPRING Day preparations, as we go to press, are well advanced. The sale of all the 3,500 seats on the observation train more than a week in advance may give some notion of the attendance. The heavy demand for tickets to the Navy Ball has led the management to fix a limit at eight hundred. A huge crowd is assured to welcome Yale on Percy Field. Dispatches from Cleveland attest the readiness and the enthusiasm of the actors in "When Rome Went Dry." Vantage points from which to view the parade are in frequent request. There is abundant promise of a great day. The round of events really begins on Thursday night, when the Savage Club will present a musical extravaganza advertised under the anagrammatic title "Arahansisegavas."

ELWYN BROOKS WHITE '21, editor-in-chief of The Cornell Sun, on May 7, won the first prize for editorials submitted to the Convention of Eastern College Newspapers held in New York. Twenty-three college editors competed. White's editorial was entitled "The King's English." The award was made by Arthur Brisbane, of the New York Evening Journal, who announced his intention of publishing the winning editorial in each of his newspapers. Other Cornellians attending the convention were Peter Vischer '20 and D. W. Jewett '21 of the Sun staff and Professor Bristow Adams.

A NEW golf course on the grounds of the Ithaca Country Club, Cornell Heights, was formally opened on May 8. The course, designed by Tillinghast, of New York, is somewhat more difficult than the old one, being longer by about six hundred yards; the total length is 3,062 yards; par is now 38 instead of 34; and bogey 40 instead of 38. The president of the club is Emmons L. Williams, former comptroller of the University; and the chairman of the greens committee, Professor William A. Hammond. The newly elected captain of the varsity golf team is John P. MacBean, jr., '20, of Philadelphia; the manager, Michael G. Sullivan '21, of Rochester, N. Y. The number of students making use of the Country Club links is steadily increasing.

MEMBERS of the Festival Chorus, in appreciation of the services of the conductor and trainer, have presented to Professor Hollis E. Dunn a handsomely engraved book-plate. The design is the work of Louis A. Fuertes '97.

THE SECOND number of The Critic appeared last week, continuing its mainly sarcastic criticism of various matters of current interest about the campus. There are several musical criticisms. This time it carries only one column of advertisements; nor are its gratuitous comments distributed gratis; it now offers itself at five cents a copy.

WOMEN'S representatives on the staff of the Sun have been selected for 1920-21: women's editor, Gertrude M. Lynahan '22, Corning, N. Y.; associates, Helen N. Leary '22, Auburn, N. Y., and Evelyn G. Richmond '22, Rochester, N. Y. The Widow announces the election to its staff of B. D. Adams '23, of Omaha, Neb. Other elections will be made in the autumn from students now competing.

NEW OFFICERS have taken charge of the Ithaca Section of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers: president, Clyde M. Bigelow '21, Penn Yan, N. Y.; secretary, Charles C. Torrance '22, Yonkers, N. Y. Professor W. M. Sawdon is honorary chairman and Instructor E. F. Garner, Faculty member of the executive committee. The Ithaca section has now an enrollment of eighty-five, the membership having doubled during the past year.

THE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY has received the collection of mathematical books owned by the late Rollin A. Harris '85. A life-long specialist in mathematics, both pure and applied, and the author of a number of treatises, notably a "Manual of Tides," Mr. Harris had gathered a library of considerable extent and great value. This now comes to the University as a gift of a brother, Professor Gilbert D. Harris '86, of the Department of Geology.

THE INTERFRATERNITY Association has adopted some new rules for future guidance in rushing and initiation. Initiation in the second term is made legal, with the provision that no student who has been pledged but who has been dropped from the University shall be initiated. Each fraternity will be required at the beginning of the year to execute a bond for $500 as a guarantee against violations of the rules for rushing. A committee will be appointed to decide cases of alleged violation; and it is proposed that on this committee there shall be both members of the Faculty and residents of Ithaca. A revision of the regulations governing rushing will be presented for ratification before the opening of the college year. The association has discussed the advisability of a penalty for breaking pledges but has reached no decision.

PROFESSOR W. W. ROWLEE '88, of the Department of Botany, has been engaged to make a further investigation of balsa wood in Central America. Sailing to Costa Rica immediately after Commencement, he will resume the work which he began on his first trip in 1918-19. This study of the distribution and of the methods of planting and propagating the trees, besides being of scientific interest, has led to an increased supply and a better quality of balsa for commercial purposes. Professor Rowlee will be accompanied by Instructor Harvey E. Stork.

GENERAL WALTER S. SCHUYLER, formerly of Ithaca, now a resident of Berkeley, California, has come to town for a visit of two or three months. General Schuyler was twice commandant of the Corps of Cadets, from 1883 to 1886 and from 1896 to 1898.

TWO MARSHALS, Peter Paul Miller of Buffalo and John M. Watt of Honolulu, have been appointed by the senior class. These officials have duties on Baccalaureate Sunday and on Commencement Day. Colonel Barton of the Faculty committee is chief marshal.

THE MUSICAL Clubs have elected as manager for 1920-21 Willard I. Emerson '21, of New York City, and as assistant manager Edward T. Rathbun '22, of Toledo, Ohio.

The Twelfth Music Festival A Great Triumph for All Concerned— Distinguished Artists Appear

The Twelfth Music Festival (the first since 1916) goes down into history as a great undertaking carried through with distinguished success. At every concert Bailey Hall was crowded, and the enthusiasm of the audiences was unbounded.

The orchestral part was furnished by the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, sixty-nine pieces, conducted by Frederick Stock. The finished work of this organization merits the highest praise. To quote Pierre V. R. Key in the Journal-News, "Stock is, above all things, a classicist. His forte is reverence for the master composers and a unique capacity to interpret them, through the medium of his distinguished orchestra, with mobility of style and purity of tone."

The Festival Chorus this year consisted of 61 sopranos, 46 altos, 45 tenors, and 57 basses, a total of 209 voices. As trained by Professor Dann the chorus did most excellent work. In precision of attack, in sympathetic modulation, in the maintenance of a right balance of tones it maintained throughout the series a very high standard, reflecting the greatest credit on all concerned.

At the Thursday evening concert, "Aida," an old favorite here, was once more rendered, the parts taken as follows: Aida, Grace Bonner Williams; Amneris, Louise Homer; High Priestess, Ruth Blackman-Rogers; Radames, Paul Althouse; Amonasro, Thomas Chalmers; Ramphis-The King, Major Charles T. Tittman; Messenger, Robert Steel. One criticism occasionally voiced was that the always charming voice of the singer of the title-role was sometimes not sufficiently loud for the orchestra, which is obviously used to a larger hall.

The second program gave predominance to the work of the orchestra, with E. Tramonti as harp soloist. It follows:

Overture, "Leonore," No. 3, Beethoven
Largo, "From the New World"

Symphony ----- Dvorak
Chorale and Variations for Harp and Orchestra ----- Widor

Invitation to the Dance ----- Weber
Soldiers' Chorus, from "Faust"

----- Gounod
Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2 ----- Liszt
a. Listen to the Lambs ----- Dett

b. Brothers Alert, Epilogue from
"Caractacus" ----- Elgar
Siegfried's Death Music, from
"The Twilight of the Gods," Wagner
A Song of Victory ----- Fletcher

At the third concert, Saturday afternoon, Reinald Werrenrath was soloist; he rendered the Aria, Vision Fugitive, from Massenet's "Hérodiade," with fine expression and feeling; and as an encore number, the "Pagliacci" prologue. The other numbers on the program were:

Overture to "Russlan and Ludmilla" ----- Glinka
Symphony No. 4, F minor, Tchaikovsky
a. Minuet, G major ----- Beethoven
b. Moment Musical ----- Schubert
Concert Waltz No. 2, F major, Glazounov
Symphonic Poem, "Finlandia," Sibelius

At the final concert Part 1 of "The Dream of Gerontius," the music by Elgar, and Cesar Franck's music for Lady Colomb's "The Beatitudes" were rendered. In the first the part of Gerontius was sung by Edward Johnson and that of the Priest by Mr. Werrenrath. Of Mr. Johnson Pierre Key says: "For me, the individual success of the night fell into the lap of Edward Johnson. Here is an American tenor who stands in the forefront of great singing artists. I like him best in opera, where his dramatic art is so convincing a thing; but his Gerontius left me fired with his insight into the mood of the part, with respect to both text and music. Such intelligence—musically and otherwise—and such admirably controlled temperament are not often encountered. For Johnson is a tenor who combines with rare judgment those qualities of head and heart. He was no less impressive in moments of repose than in others wherein he gave forth all emotionally of which he is capable." Werrenrath fully sustained his reputation for intelligence, smoothness, and finish. In "The Beatitudes" the parts were taken as follows: Grace Bonner Williams, soprano, Gertrude Quarles, contralto, Edward Johnson, Ernest D. Button, and Anson Clark, tenors, Reinald Werrenrath, barytone, and Major Tittman, bass. All the performers showed quick intelligence and interpreted their parts with competence. The piece itself, perhaps because of a certain monotony, does not arouse universal enthusiasm; but the rendering formed a pleasing climax to the festival as an artistic whole—an event which is bound to increase Ithaca's prestige as a musical center.

PERCY FIELD STANDS BURN

The covered stand back of the home plate, the back fence, part of the freshman bleachers, and a section of the north stand at Percy Field were completely destroyed by fire at midnight on Monday. The old stands, composed entirely of dry wood, burned with great fury, sending flames over fifty feet into the air, and the fire raged until the covered stand containing the press box collapsed. The loss is several thousand dollars, partly covered by insurance. These stands, seating over six hundred, had been sold out at $2 a seat for Saturday's game. Fortunately there was time to make provision for temporary stands before that time. The fire is thought to have caught from a lounge's cigarette stub.

SCHURMAN AT OSAKA

According to a despatch to The New York Times, an extraordinary scene was witnessed in Osaka, Japan, on May 10, when Frank A. Vanderlip, Darwin P. Kingsley, and Jacob Gould Schurman spoke for the first time at a public meeting held in the public hall under the auspices of the Osaka Mainichi. The hall was packed with six thousand people, while outside the building thousands clamored to catch a glimpse of the speakers, the most outspoken of whom, Mr. Vanderlip, said that Japan should be kept unmilitaristic and democratic, and thus join hands with the American democracy. His remarks were received with ringing ovation. Dr. Schurman's inspiring speech for peace and justice created a deep impression, and he could not leave the platform owing to repeated applause. All the speakers were deeply moved by the enthusiasm of the audience.

THE MANAGING BOARD of the Cornell Annuals has been selected for the coming year. The editor-in-chief is Elliott B. Mason, Milwaukee, Wis.; the managing editor, F. P. Hodgkinson, Pittsburgh, Pa.; the business manager, W. H. Rometsch, jr., Germantown, Pa.; art editor, R. D. McPherson, Palmyra, N. Y.; women's editor, Anna M. Cooney; all members of the class of 1921. Some associates and assistants are elected from the present sophomore and freshman classes.

CHICAGO ON A FROLIC

The Chicago Cornell Club announces that on May 25 “the big Cornell Fun-fest will be pulled off at the University Club—the best event the Ezralites ever put across.” Swim at 5.30, dinner at 7.15, ringside seat at 8.30, to observe real boxing and wrestling, campus movies, five reels, at 10.15. Everybody is urged to be in costume—Spring Day or Reunion suit. One hundred tickets only will be sold at $4. The chairman is L. G. Hallberg, 116 S. Michigan Avenue.

The Endowment Campaign

Now Totals $4,715,634.84—Class Campaigns Begun

The amount of the Endowment Fund to date is almost four and three-quarters millions—to be exact, $4,715,634.84.

In an effort to emulate the example of the undergraduate classes, both in amount subscribed and in percentage of class subscribing, a class chairman from each of Cornell's alumni classes will undertake a letter campaign among his classmates this week. It is a distinct point of pride with the present sophomore class that it is leading all Cornell classes in amount of subscriptions to the Endowment Fund, and every effort by any other class, undergraduate or graduate, will be matched by a like effort within the University to maintain the lead. Of all of Cornell's classes, '22 is first, '23 is second, '20 third, and '08 fourth, followed by '97 and then by '21.

Recognizing the fact that their presence at the University, the value of mass psychology, and the value of a collective effort made the undergraduates readily approachable the class leaders are nevertheless looking for equally high returns owing to the fact that the men who have graduated are in a much better position to give to Cornell than are members of the present student body. In order that every member of every class who has not subscribed may have an opportunity to do so, the class chairmen will write personal letters to their classmates this week. In an effort to increase the undergraduate total from $894,754.84 to $1,000,000 by Commencement time, the chairman of the undergraduate committee has similarly written a letter to every undergraduate who has not been approached. The following table shows the highest ten graduate classes with amounts through May 14:

'08	-----	$196,560
'97	-----	193,091
'96	-----	185,894
'84	-----	165,900
'00	-----	155,447
'01	-----	114,544
'06	-----	113,136
'88	-----	112,345
'05	-----	91,960
'94	-----	87,270

A letter received from Charles M. Russell, class leader of '95, just as this is being written, says that his records show a total subscription from his classmates of $94,397, but unfortunately, the headquarters records show only $86,809 for '95 to date, so they are placed eleventh on the list instead of ninth, as they would be if the signed blanks were in the central office. Mr. Russell's letter shows, however, that the twenty-five year men are hard at it, and next week we shall expect them to make their mark on the honor roll of the highest ten classes in amount subscribed as they have this week in the honor roll of those having the largest number of new subscribers. It will be seen from the table below that '95 holds the record for the week in new subscribers, with twenty-five added to their roll.

The following table shows the highest ten classes in point of new subscriptions since the last report:

'95	-----	25
'11	-----	18
'12	-----	18
'13	-----	16
'05	-----	15
'06	-----	14
'08	-----	13
'01	-----	13
'00	-----	12
'98	-----	12

The leader of the list did not come into the highest ten last week, but now leads them all by a good margin, all of which shows what hard work and enthusiasm will do. Other new arrivals on the honor roll for the week are '05, '01, and '98; '11 has come up from a tie for ninth place at the last report to a tie for second, and '12 and '13 have advanced from their positions together at eighth place last week to their present places well in the lead. The competition is getting keener as more class leaders are getting to work, and it is becoming more and more apparent that

The District Campaigns

The list of cities over $20,000 contains another new arrival this week. San Francisco is on the map with $32,765 from fifty-nine subscribers. This is the twenty-second district to go over the $20,000 mark thus far. The New York women's committee is rapidly approaching this sum with $19,052 at the last report, and Colorado is well on its way with $16,272.

The line-up of the highest ten in amount subscribed has changed little since last week, except that Ithaca with $108,495, has taken ninth place from Syracuse, leaving the latter city tenth. The New York district still leads with $1,166,706, and Chicago is second with $393,421, an increase of $9,210 for the week. The totals in all ten are considerably higher. Philadelphia has displaced Buffalo from its place as tenth on the honor roll by percentage of Cornellians subscribing. All percentages are increasing from week to week.

The Chicago committee has started an extra-intensive campaign and has set $2,000,000 as its goal. Two news-sheets of the local campaign have come to headquarters during the week, giving the details of the campaign and instructions and ideas for canvassers. One contains advice to married men, single men, and all others, pointing to the possibility of subscribing to Cornell's Endowment.

Professor Durham writes from San Francisco that Denver had collected $16,272 from twenty-eight subscribers when he left, Salt Lake and Ogden had $13,500 from nine subscribers, and San Francisco had gone to $32,765. He is now in Los Angeles, but expects to return to the Golden Gate City May 21 for a large Cornell dinner and to help the local committee in their campaign.

Even yet there are many Cornellians, old and young, who have not been reached by Endowment canvassers. The other day a freshman came into headquarters to say that he had been overlooked in the undergraduate canvass and wished to do his share with a small subscription to the Endowment Fund. He turned in his pledge blank filled out for $300 on the usual condition made to undergraduates of two per cent interest while in college and left with the question "To whom shall I make the interest payable?"

An alumnus wrote from Georgia when he sent in his pledge to the Cornellian Council asking for an Endowment subscription blank, saying that he had been missed and didn't want to be left out. Another, saying he was out of work and funds but didn't want to be left behind on that account, enclosed a check and asked that it be considered as interest on what he wanted to do for Cornell when he got on his feet again. Still another, evidently an ex-service man, wrote as follows:

"I am enclosing a small pledge to the Endowment Fund. I am setting a figure that I am sure of being able to meet. If Dame Fortune smiles on me or Uncle Sam sees fit to give ex-service men their back pay, a good share of it will go to Cornell in addition to my pledge. Here's to the success of the campaign."

NEW YORK CORNELLIAN

The Cornell Yell, in its issue of May 10 (volume 4, no. 7), solves the problem of why New York has so much "pep," by modestly attributing it to the presence in the old town of so many Cornell men. It appends a calendar of coming Cornell athletic events in or near New York, and further announces that an interesting series of oil and water color paintings by Professor William C. Baker '98 will be on exhibition at the club for the next two weeks. Obeying the injunction to "look under the stamp," one finds there the legend, "Ten Million Bucks."

THE MASONS of Ithaca are rejoicing in the prospect of a new and adequate home. An effort to raise a building fund of $100,000 has met with generous initial response; of this sum $54,100 was pledged at a largely attended dinner on May 12. Among the speakers were Lieutenant Governor Harry C. Walker, Mayor Edwin C. Stewart, Jacob Rothchild, and several visiting Masonic dignitaries. Plans for the temple and the selection of a site are deferred until the necessary fund is secured.

SIGMA XI ELECTIONS

The Sigma Xi Society at its meeting on May 11 elected the following forty-four persons to membership:

Faculty

Walter Warner Fisk, B.S.A. '10, M.S.A. '12, assistant professor of dairy industry.

Thomas Joseph McInerney, B.S.A. '10, M.S.A. '12, assistant professor of dairy industry.

Harry Schults Vandiver, instructor in mathematics.

Walter Denslow Way, D.V.M. '17, assistant professor of veterinary science.

Graduate Students

Roy David Anthony, B.S., Rochester '08, B.S.A. '10, M.S.A. '13, professor of horticulture, Pennsylvania State College, plant breeding.

James William Benner, D.V.M., Kansas State Agricultural '11, pathology.

Hazel Elizabeth Branch, A.B., Kansas '08, A.M., Kansas '12, entomology.

Claire Comstock, A.B., Smith '12, A.M., Columbia '16, psychology.

Leon Francis Curtiss, A.B. '17, physics.

John D. Detwiler, B.A., Queen's '12, M.A., Queen's '13, entomology.

Dean LeFever Gamble, B.S. '16, zoology.

Louis Benjamin Hoisington, A.B., Oregon '15, Ph.D. '20, psychology.

John Stephens Latta, A.B., Miami '16, histology and embryology.

Gordau Peter McRostie, B.S.A., Ontario Agr. '12, M.S.A. '18, plant breeding.

Giovanni Martinaglia, D.V.M., Toronto Vet. '19, pathology and bacteriology.

William Marion Pierce, A.B. '18, physics.

Robert Rentoul Reed, B.S., Washington and Jefferson, Cornell '91-2 Grad., physics.

Maoey Alves de Souza, Medico Veterinaire, Supervisor School of Agriculture and Veterinary Medicine, Brazil, '17, comparative pathology.

Alice Helen Sullivan, A.B., Colorado '16, A.M., Colorado '17, psychology.

Kuo-Feng Sun, B.S., Peking '16, M.S. '19, applied electricity.

Marcus A. Tubangui, D.V.M., University of the Philippines, veterinary science.

Laurence Paul Wehrle, B.S., Kansas State Agricultural '14, M.S., same '16, economic entomology.

Thomas Kennerly Wolfe, B.S. in Agriculture, Virginia Polytechnic Inst. '14, M.S. in Agriculture, same '15, plant breeding.

Ruth Agnes Yeaton, A.B., Mt. Holyoke '13, physics.

Michael Jacob Zigler, A.B., Bridge-water '16, A.M., Clark '17, Ph.D. '20, psychology.

Class of 1920

Howard B. Adelman, Buffalo, histology and embryology.

Howard George Allen, Albion, mechanical engineering.

John Willard Bartlett, Galetou, Pa., chemistry.

James Wellington Bassett, Coopers Plains, chemistry.

Raymond Owen Hitchcock, Lyons, histology and embryology.

Julius Livant, New York, chemistry.

Roy Oliver McDuffie, Cincinnati, chemistry.

Frederick Arthur May, Brooklyn, physics.

Donald Everett Richmond, Great Barrington, Mass., physics.

Merit Scott, Glens Falls, physics.

Charles Kerr Sibley, Kingston, entomology.

Louis Alexander Turner, Akron, Ohio, physics.

Robert Morris Volkert, New York, forestry.

Morton Powell Woodward, Norwood, Ohio, chemistry.

Alumni

Christopher Henry Bierbaum, M.E. '91, consulting engineer, Buffalo.

William Hutchins Boynton, D.V.M. '08, chief of Research Laboratory, Bureau of Agriculture, Manila, P. I.

Daniel Scott Fox, B.S.A. '13, Ph.D. '19, assistant professor of agronomy, Pennsylvania State College.

Thomas Midgley, jr., M.E. '11, assistant research director, General Motors Corporation, Dayton, O.

George Cornell Supplee, B.S. '13, Ph.D. '19, in charge, Research Laboratory, Dry Milk Co.

THE AGRICULTURAL Association has elected new officers for the coming year: president, John L. Dickinson, jr., Hudson Falls, N. Y.; vice-president, Anna M. Cooney, Malone, N. Y.; athletic director, H. B. Gifford, Gloversville, N. Y.; all of next year's senior class. This association has general direction of all student activities and enterprises in the College of Agriculture.

AWARDS OF PRIZES

Announcement is made by the Faculties or their committees of the awarding of several prizes open annually to competition among students at the University. We noted last week the award of the Woodford Prize in oratory, the Morrison Prize for original poetry, and the Corson Browning Prize. To these are now added the following awards for the current year:

The Barnes Shakespeare Prize, fifty dollars, to Rose S. Malmud '20, Brooklyn, N. Y., for an essay on "The Last of the Ptolemies."

The Luana L. Messinger Prize, the income of five thousand dollars, for the essay "giving evidence of the best research and most fruitful thought in the field of human progress or the evolution of civilization," to Hugh MacKenzie, A. B. '16, now a graduate student, Millbrook, N. Y.; topic, "The Rise of the Protestants of France to Civil and Religious Liberty."

The Sherman Bennett Prize, the income of four hundred dollars, "for the best essay discussing the principles of free government," to Lawrence B. June '20, Addison, N. Y.; topic, "Municipal Government in the Hands of the People."

The Goethe Prize, fifty dollars, for the best essay on Goethe, to Muriel E. Farr '20, Cranberry Creek, N. Y.; topic, "Goethe's Rule of Life as It Appears in his Poems."

The Guilford Prize, one hundred and fifty dollars, "to promote a high standard of excellence in English prose composition," to Barnet Nover, A.B. '16, now in the Graduate School, New York City; topic, "The History of an Idea."

The Sampson Fine Arts Prize, thirty dollars in books or reproductions, "to the student who shows the most intelligent appreciation of the graphic and plastic arts and architecture," to Dorothy F. Levy '20, Philadelphia, Pa.

The Early English Text Society Prize, volumes of its publications given by the Society to students showing proficiency in Early English, to Alice M. Hopkins '21, New Hartford, N. Y., and Christina Hazen '20, Ithaca.

The Graduate Prize in Philosophy, twenty-five dollars, for the best paper embodying the results of research in philosophy, to Glen Raymond Morrow, Crane, Mo.; topic, "Comte and Spencer: a Study of the Social Organism."

Published for the Associate Alumni of Cornell University by the Cornell Alumni News Publishing Company, Incorporated.

Published weekly during the college year and monthly during the summer; forty issues annually. Issue No. 1 is published the last Thursday of September. Weekly publication (numbered consecutively) continues through Commencement Week. Issue No. 40 is published in August and is followed by an index of the entire volume, which will be mailed on request.

Subscription price $3.60 a year, payable in advance. Foreign postage 40 cents a year extra. Single copies twelve cents each.

Should a subscriber desire to discontinue his subscription, notice to that effect should be sent in before its expiration. Otherwise it is assumed that a continuance of the subscription is desired.

Checks, drafts, and orders should be made payable to Cornell Alumni News.

SHALL CORNELL GROW?

The Sun has lately uttered some wise words about the future growth of the University. It is a vital subject; the question of how far Cornell shall be allowed to grow cannot be settled with too great care and deliberation.

Since it costs money to pay salaries and buy coal, there is obviously a limit to the number of students the University can handle; and there are those who believe that so far as the present endowment and student body are concerned Cornell has already passed that point. To continue to receive additional students after the proper limit has been reached is to cause the work to suffer either for lack of adequate facilities or because of at least relatively inferior teaching—that is, putting in instructors and assistants to do the work that should be done by teachers of professorial rank; or holding up salary increases and thus rendering it impossible for even the professors to give their students the best of which they are capable.

Possibly the University is suffering to some extent from this sort of thing. The additional endowment which now becomes available will make possible many changes and improvements and should make it impossible for anyone to charge Cornell with being "student-poor."

We have no fears of numbers in themselves. A big university, with means, can also be a great university and can imprint its stamp on all whom it sends forth. Numbers, in fact, in themselves have very little to do with efficiency, one way or the other. The great thing is the quality of the teaching. If a professor has too many students, he cannot do them justice, and they do not get from him what their tuition fees entitle them to expect.

In this connection we do not hesitate to express the hope that more and more freshman classes will come to be taught, at least in part, by professors. It is no reproach to the younger members of the staff that they do not fill the freshmen with such enthusiasm as do the older men, whose reputations as teachers and scholars count for much and whose experience gives them a different attitude from that of the more youthful, sometimes more stern and energetic, but often less inspiring assistants and instructors. The freshmen are strategically the most important persons in the undergraduate body. Many a freshman has given up his work in despair or disgust because of wrong handling by an inexperienced instructor too near his own age. If a student gets the right start, he will pull through, with greatly increased chances of success.

If it becomes necessary to restrict the numbers of students, graduate or undergraduate, how shall this be done? If tuition rates are again raised, we believe there should be generous provision for tuition scholarships, in order that the good students of moderate means may not be deprived of the opportunity of a Cornell education. There is also the possibility of raising the entrance requirements in some of the colleges by one or more years, for example making the College of Law a graduate college.

It is fortunate indeed that we all agree to-day that efficiency, not size, is the test which determines the success of an educational institution. If we can have a big Cornell, well and good; but at all costs it must not cease to be a great Cornell.

DR. BAILEY FOR PRESIDENT

To the Editor of the ALUMNI NEWS:

I write to urge the appointment of Dr. Bailey to the Presidency of the University, if he will accept. I do not feel there is any objection on account of his age. He is only sixty-two. If his health permits, there is no good reason why he might not hold the post for twenty years to come. Clemenceau won the war when he was nearly eighty and Gladstone was Prime Minister long after that age.

But one of the strongest arguments in favor of Bailey is that he can stand Ithaca. This is no slight consideration. One of the weaknesses of Andrew D. White's administration was that, in those days, he was never so happy as when he got away from Ithaca! Bailey has a house there and lives there. You may possibly find some man as good as Bailey who does not know Ithaca and will soon grow tired of it, and then half of his usefulness will cease. Too much stress cannot be laid on this point.

Bailey is the man for the place.

LITERARY REVIEW

The New Social Order

This Marrying, By Margaret Culkin Banning. New York. George H. Doran Company. 1920. 8vo, pp. 290. Price, $1.75, net.

This is the first novel of Mrs. Margaret Culkin Banning, wife of Archibald T. Banning, jr., '04, chairman of the highly successful Endowment Campaign committee of Duluth. It is a charming love story of to-day, quietly and simply told, without strain or affectation but firmly holding the reader's attention to the end. Horatia Grant, fitted by birth and to some degree by temperament to enjoy the flesh-pots of Egypt, is seized by that spirit of the New Time which blew upon America from our entrance into the War, and turning her back upon the ease and luxury which her relatives press upon her, starts out to look for a job. She finds her niche in a dingy newspaper office, where, however, some useful work is being done by real men. As her experience of the world enlarges, the great, world-old problem shapes itself before her; and she is compelled to choose between life in a flat with the man she loves and an easy, comfortable existence with a man whom she likes immensely, who is in all ways worthy of her, and who would have given her all the devotion that a woman can expect from a man. It is the old theme of the Choice of Hercules in a new and highly interesting form; and with great skill the author contrives to maintain well the uncertainty as to how the decision will go.

Most of the characters are well drawn. Langley is admirable; Anthony Wentworth could afford to have a few more faults than he exhibits; Mrs. Hubbell is clear-cut and throws some new light on the problem of why some marriages go wrong; Grace Welsh will be the most hotly discussed person in the story; she shows most clearly some of the points of view which characterize a fearless new era justly scornful of Puritan purblindness yet recognizing the essential soundness of the old Puritan morality.

Mrs. Banning is to be congratulated on so successful a first venture into the field of fiction. We hope many others are to follow.

Books and Magazine Articles

In Studies in Philology for April, Dr. Allan H. Gilbert '09 writes on "Milton and the Mysteries," discussing Milton's relation to the mystery plays.

In The Crisis for April Jessie Fauset '05 prints an illustrated article on "Nationalism and Egypt."

The April number of The Agricultural Lime News Bulletin includes a summary of Dr. Walter H. MacIntire's (Ph.D. '17) paper on "The Carbonation of Burnt Lime in Soils," reprinted from Soil Science for May, 1919, and embodying the results of one of the most notable of recent investigations in this field. Among other things he finds no evidence of the chemical destruction of organic matter by burnt lime even from heavy applications; that is, there is no breaking down of the organic matter with the formation of carbon dioxide. For two reasons, therefore, the old statements that have commonly been repeated that caustic lime destroys humus, are wrong; first, because burnt lime does not remain in the caustic form in the soil; secondly, even if it did remain in the caustic form, there is no evidence that humus is destroyed by the burnt lime.

Dean Elmer J. McCaustland, M.C.E. '97, of the School of Engineering of the University of Missouri, writes in American Cities for March on "State-wide Surveys and Tests for Road Materials."

The "Historical Address Delivered on the Occasion of the 250th Anniversary of the Town of Middleborough, Massachusetts, July 5, 1919," by Professor Albert H. Washburn '89, has recently been published in pamphlet form.

The address on "The Need for Vocational Guidance in Colleges" delivered by Professor John M. Brewer, of Harvard, before the Fourth Intercollegiate Conference on Vocations for Women at Cornell on March 5 is published in School and Society for May 1.

Clayton H. Sharp, Ph.D. '95, and W. F. Little are the joint authors of an article on "Automobile Headlighting Regulation: Experiments to Determine How Present Laws May Be Improved" in the April number of The Scientific American Monthly, reprinted from the Journal of the Engineers' Club of Philadelphia. In the same number Professor Wilder D. Bancroft writes on "Bubbles, Drops, and Grains," and Professors George B. Upton '04 and Victor R. Gage '06 present a joint "Investigation of a Muffling Problem for Aeroplane Engines."

DETROIT WAXES MUSICAL

Detroit Cornellians at their weekly luncheon in the Peacock Room at the Cadillac, on May 13, heard Harry Cyphers, manager of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, on the "pop" concerts and other orchestral matters. "Dud" Alleman '14 handled the news from Ithaca.

PITTSBURGH LUNCHEERS

At the regular weekly luncheon of the Pittsburgh Contingent at the Chamber of Commerce on May 14, George S. Oliver, Yale '99, president of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce and of the Newspaper Publishing Company, publishers of the Gazette-Times and Chronicle-Telegraph, was scheduled to speak on Yale and other topics of interest.

CLEVELAND WOMEN OFFICERS

At the annual meeting of the Cornell Women's Club of Cleveland, which was held on May 8 at the home of Mrs. Willard Beahan, elections resulted as follows: president, Mrs. Willard Beahan; resident vice-president, Professor Clara L. Myers; non-resident vice-president, Miss Mabel Little; secretary-treasurer, Miss Lucille Marshall, 11311 Bellflower Road.

OBITUARY

Henry A. Jaeger '98

It has been lately reported here that Henry August Jaeger died on December 28, 1917, at Honolulu, T. H. Jaeger was born on May 21, 1873, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jaeger of Oahu, T. H. He entered Cornell from Oahu College and spent the year 1894-5 here as a special student in agriculture. He was a member of Kappa Sigma.

Marvin H. Stacy, '05-6 Grad.

Dean Marvin Hendrix Stacy, of the University of North Carolina, died on January 21.

Stacy was born on May 12, 1877, the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Stacy, of Waxhaw, N. C., and was graduated Ph. B. from the University of North Carolina in 1902, taking the degree of A.M. in 1904. He was an instructor in mathematics at North Carolina from 1902 till 1905. In 1905-6 and 1911 he studied civil engineering at Cornell, returning to North Carolina in 1906 as associate professor of civil engineering; in 1910 he was made a full professor. In 1913 he was made dean pro tempore of the College of Liberal Arts of his alma mater and was made dean in the following year. Since President Graham's death in 1918, Dean Stacy had been chairman of the faculty with full powers and duties of president. He was very popular with the students. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

Henry H. Cissel '22

Henry Howard Cissel died at the Infirmary on April 10 after an illness of five days. His death was caused by an infection of the throat following an attack of tonsillitis.

Cissel was born in Washington on April 16, 1898. In 1917 he graduated from the Central High School, where he had been captain of the basketball and tennis teams and of one of the companies of cadets.

In the war he went to an officers' training camp at Fort Monroe, Va., and was studying artillery warfare at the time of the signing of the armistice.

He entered Cornell last fall in the course in mechanical engineering, and joined Delta Kappa Epsilon.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mae H. Cissel. He was buried in Mt. Olivet Cemetery, Washington.

Mrs. Horace L. Jones

Mrs. Edna Lyle Jones, wife of Pro-essor Horace L. Jones, Ph. D. '09, of the Department of Greek, died at the City Hospital, Ithaca, on Friday evening, April 30. She had been ill for about a week with a complication of pleurisy and pneumonia.

Besides her husband she leaves a son and three daughters, all young, the youngest daughter born on April 9. The remains were taken to Radford, Va., for interment.

PROFESSOR WILDER D. BANCROFT has been elected a member of the American Philosophical Society of Philadelphia. It is a distinguished honor awarded for eminence in research. Other Cornellian members are Dr. L. H. Bailey, Professor Charles E. Bennett, Dr. John C. Branner '82, Professor John H. Comstock '74, Professor T. F. Crane, Dean J. F. Hayford '89, Professor W. T. Hewett, Dr. L. O. Howard '77, Dr. D. S. Jordan '72, Professor E. L. Nichols, Dr. Ernest F. Nichols, M. S. '93, Professor John C. Rolfe, A. M. '84, President Schurman, Dr. Theobald Smith '81, Professor E. B. Titchener, Professor W. Trelease '80, and Dr. B. G. Wilder. Professor Bancroft has also just been elected to the National Academy of Sciences.

THE FRESHMAN HANDBOOK, otherwise the "Frosh Bible," is undergoing revision in the interests of the class of 1924. The book will be somewhat enlarged. The editor is William C. Murray '21, of Dunkirk, N. Y., and the business manager, James B. Trousdale '22, of Ithaca. A copy of this book is sent in advance of his arrival at the University to every member of the entering class.

THE HOUSE at 510 East Seneca Street, residence of the late Samuel D. Halliday '70, was bought last week by William T. Thomas of the Thomas-Morse Aircraft Corporation. In size, appointments, and location, this is one of the most desirable residences in Ithaca. Mr. Thomas takes possession on July 1.

PRESIDENT and Mrs. Schurman sailed from Yokohama for San Francisco on Friday, May 14. During their stay in Japan the American party has visited several places of historical and commercial interest, including the Mitsubishi shipyards.

THE SAGE CHAPEL preacher for Sunday, May 23, is the Rev. Tertius van Dyke, of the Park Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York City.

ATHLETICS

Crews Triumph at Princeton

The Cornell crews triumphed at Princeton Saturday, defeating Princeton and Yale in both varsity and freshman races and giving a fine exhibition of form, power, and courage. The varsity race, the most important of all rowing events held so far, was a test of fire for the eight as it was matched against two crews that had proven their capacity; Yale by defeating Pennsylvania and Columbia, Princeton by overcoming Harvard and the Quakers; while it was the first intercollegiate race the Cornell eight had ever rowed. The varsity rose splendidly to the test, defeating Princeton by a half boat-length after a mishap early in the race had lost an advantage of nearly a length.

As for the freshmen, also rowing their first race, they romped away from their opponents, winning by six lengths in time only two seconds slower than that made by the varsity. Cornell's time in the senior race was 9.16, in the yearling contest 9.18. Both races were rowed over a course of a mile and seven-eighths.

Mr. Courtney did not accompany the oarsmen to Princeton, the party being in charge of John Hoyle.

Cornell got off to a good start in the varsity contest and soon began to pull ahead. By the time the half-mile mark was reached the Cornell shell was out in front nearly a length. Here occurred a mishap that might have proved disastrous, but which was met coolly and effectively. The varsity shell had been too close to the edge of Cornell's course and as the boat moved by the half mile stake the oar of Shepard, No. 5, struck the marker and that of Daley, No. 6, grazed it. Almost instantaneously all of the others stopped rowing, there was a moment's pause to allow all to regain position, and then the boat shot ahead in its course. The delay was but momentary, but it cost Cornell the lead over Princeton, which had come abreast. For a little while the crews remained bunched, but again Cornell shot ahead and this time to stay. Up to the mile and a half mark Cornell led by a length, rowing 32 to 33 strokes to the minute. In the last quarter mile Princeton spurted, leaving Yale behind and making a gallant bid to catch Cornell. The Tiger spurt apparently failed to ruffle

INDUSTRIAL ACCOUNTANTS

Large firm of Industrial Engineers needs a few more high grade men for Accounting Division:

- (1) A salesman of accounting service
- (2) A supervisor of accountants and
- (3) Several staff men.

Applicants should thoroughly understand fundamentals of functional organization, financing, practical commercial accounting, cost accounting, stores and production control, compilation of payrolls, office methods and appliances; should be capable of making a critical examination and constructive report of a business. Practical accountants who have achieved executive positions through demonstration of their ability to handle big problems are the type desired.

Applicants will be located in different localities for several months at a time. Salary commensurate with worth.

the Cornellians, who maintained a steady, even beat. In the last hundred yards the stroke was raised a trifle, enough to hold Princeton off. The Tigers had made a game effort, but Cornell was equal to it and held the lead to the finish. Yale was third.

The freshman race was never in doubt after the first quarter mile, when the Cornell yearlings had better than a length's lead. At the mile they were over three lengths ahead and they kept pulling away apparently without much effort until they crossed the line six lengths ahead of Princeton, with Yale three lengths behind the Tigers.

The varsity rowed as follows: bow, Young; 2, Wiperman; 3, Baldwin; 4, Linnell; 5, Shepard; 6, Daley; 7, Buckley; stroke, Knight; and coxswain, Marx.

The freshman crew: bow, Hoffman; 2, Garney; 3, Schaenen; 4, Fix; 5, Dollbaum; 6, Hough; 7, Calleson; stroke, Wheeler; coxswain, Millar.

Nine Beats Amherst

The baseball team broke its string of defeats on Saturday when Amherst was beaten in a thirteen-inning game on Percy Field by the score of 2 to 1. The team fielded better than in its previous home games and played snappier baseball, though it still failed to hit opportunely.

Gordon outpitched Clark, allowing five hits to ten for the visitor. He also received better support, Cornell making five errors, none of them serious, to seven for Amherst.

In the first inning Spiers scored a run for Cornell on a wild pitch, preceded by an error, a sacrifice, and two bases on balls. Neither team scored then until the ninth, when Amherst tied up the game. McNamara's single scored Maynard. In the thirteenth a single by Wolf, McNamara's muff of Murphy's grounder, and Wineor's hit, his fourth in the game, scored the winning run.

Two Defeats on Trip

The team lost two games on a trip made earlier in the week, in both cases through weak hitting. Columbia beat Cornell in New York last Tuesday by the score of 1 to 0. Princeton won at Princeton Wednesday by a 2 to 0 score, Margetts allowing Cornell but three hits.

Lacrosse Victory

The lacrosse team won its third straight Intercollegiate League contest last Friday by defeating Hobart by the score of 3 to 2 on Schoellkopf Field. The Cornell offense was not so effective as in preceding games, but the defense was all that could be desired. All three Cornell scores came in the first half, Brady making two goals and Baldwin one. Hobart scored a goal in each half.

Penn Wins Track Meet

The varsity track team was defeated by Pennsylvania at Franklin Field Saturday by the score of 70 to 47, largely through Penn's superiority in the field events. J. M. Watt, one of Cornell's best hurdlers, and R. E. Brown, one of the fastest two-milers, were unable to compete because of injuries and their absence was another factor in the reverse.

Smith of Cornell had no trouble in winning both hurdle events, taking the 120-yard high hurdles in 15 1-5. Another bright spot for Cornell was John's fine victory in the 440, in which he defeated Maxam, the Quaker crack, by a comfortable margin. Minar of Cornell won the hundred-yard dash with Felter of Cornell second, and Lathrop of Cornell tied with Reynolds and Hampton of Penn for first place in the high jump.

Captain Mayer lost the half-mile run to Eby of Penn by about five yards in 1.55 2-5 seconds. Cornell also lost both of the distance events, Brown of Penn defeating McDermott in the mile, while Shields led Dickinson in the two-mile. Victories in the shot put, hammer throw, pole vault, and broad jump gave the Quakers a bunch of points that insured success. They scored 24 points in these events.

Freshmen Lose to Penn

Saturday was not an auspicious day for the Cornell freshman athletic teams. The track team lost a close meet to the Pennsylvania freshman at Schoellkopf Field by the score of 60½ to 56½, while the Pennsylvania youngsters also triumphed in baseball by the score of 3 to 0, this game being played at Philadelphia.

Cornell won seven out of thirteen first places in the track meet, but Penn's team strength was slightly superior to that of the local yearlings. A double winner in this meet for Cornell was R. G. Watt, who took first place in both hurdles. Watt is a brother to "Jack" Watt, the varsity hurdle star.

ALUMNI NOTES

'71 AB—The "Armistice Day Address" delivered on November 11 at Whitehall, Wis., by Judge James O'Neill, of Neillville, Wis., has been printed in a small folder of six pages.

'87 ME—Professor Harris J. Ryan, of Stanford, has been elected to membership in the National Academy of Sciences.

'91-2 G—Professor Vernon L. Kellogg, of Stanford, has been made a member of the American Philosophical Society. He recently spoke before the Phi Beta Kappa Alumni of New York and the Washington Academy of Sciences on "Europe's Food in War and Armistice."

'93 MS—Professor Ernest F. Nichols has resigned his professorship of physics in Yale to accept the post of director of pure science in the Nela Research Laboratories of the General Electric Laboratory at Cleveland, Ohio.

'04—Mr. and Mrs. A. Penn Denton announce the birth of a daughter, Mary Priscilla, on March 21.

'06 ME—George B. Carpenter is foreign trade adviser of the Merchants' National Bank of Los Angeles, Calif. He lives at 142 North Vendome Street.

'07 ME—Samuel D. Sibley, constructing engineer for the Solvay Company of Syracuse, is now in charge of the new construction work of the Brunner-Monde Canda Company, Limited Amherstburg, Ontario. His United States address is in care of the Solvay Process Company, Syracuse, N. Y. The company has purchased the site of the former munition plant at Split Rock.

'09 ME—Albert M. Lamberton has resigned the position of secretary and assistant treasurer of the L. C. Harry Company of New York City, to become the New York manager for Buch and Stoddard, exporters and importers, 90 West Street, New York. The main office of the company is in San Francisco, Calif.

'09 CE—John R. Haswell is the specialist in farm mechanics with the Department of Agricultural Extension, Pennsylvania State College, State College, Pa. After his return from France he resumed his former position as senior drainage engineer, U. S. Bureau of Public Roads, for about a year. He is still connected with that bureau.
